SECRET OF WAR WITH RUSSIA

BY OBSERVER.

Prior to the Chinese-Japanese war, Japan was not a force in international affairs. In the nineteen years which have elapsed since the beginning of that war, Japan has risen to the position of a great power. In fact, its prominence is such that the claim frequently advanced by its press that Japan is sufficiently dominant to demand that any step contemplated in eastern Asia be sanctioned by Japan before being put in execution is a just one.

What are the steps by which Japan has attained this position?

The war with China, begun nominally to free Corea, we now know to have been merely the final step in the ousting of China from that country. Japan's plots gradually to obtain control of the country having failed because of Chinese interference, the Chinese were removed from the scene by force.

The plots continued. The chief obstacle in their successful consummation was the Corean queen. The palace was broken into, the queen murdered, and her body burnt by Japanese. This with the connivance and consent of the Japanese minister.

Cause of War with Russia.

The next obstacle developed was Russia. This country had gradually extended its influence south from the Amur river across Manchuria to the Gulf of Pechili and the Yellow sea. From such a position it was but a step across the Yalu into Corea. Were all of Japan's efforts to come to nothing? Had it driven out China only to find that weak foe replaced by a strong one, Russia? Apparently it had. However, Japan saw what neither the outside world nor the Russians themselves saw. That was that while on the whole Russia was infinitely stronger than Japan, in the far east Russia was pitifully weak by comparison.

Evidently if Japan was going to attack it must be done before the Russians had time to strengthen their hold. Backed up by the ardent support of a people who had never forgiven the robbery from Japan by Russia of the Tiao Tung peninsula, the government went to war, nominally in the interests of Corea and China. By this war Japan forced Russia to recognize its paramount interests in Corea and virtually to share Manchuria with Japan.

Corea Annexed to Japan.

At last Japan had a free hand in Corea. In spite of many treaties to the contrary, Japan gradually tightened its hold and finally annexed that country. Today it is as integral a part of Japan as the island on which the city of Tokio stands. Furthermore, every effort is being made to turn the Coreans into Japanese. The Poles in Russia are free by comparison.

Soon after the Russian war the Chinese and white nations discovered that the "open door" in Manchuria, one of the reasons for which Japan had gone to war, practically did not exist. When they were disposed to press the matter they found to their astonishment that Japan claimed special interests in Manchuria and was ready to fight to maintain those interests.

Furthermore, as the situation developed it showed Japan and Russia no longer opposed to each other, but working together. They have gone from one step to another, until now it is well understood that it is only a question of time until Manchuria will follow the footsteps of Corea, the northern part being annexed to Russia, the southern to Japan.

Mongolia to Be Absorbed.

Not content with this, the two nations have gone a step further. Taking advantage of the Chinese revolution, Russia has alienated Mongolia. By treaty with Mongolia Russia has obtained special rights. Japan has advanced a claim to special rights in Inner Mongolia.

Coupled with the persistent rumors of a special agreement between the two powers regarding Mongolia, we find Japan acquiescing in Russia's action and Russia in Japan's claims. Evidently not content with Manchuria, Mongolia is to be included in the absorption of Chinese property.

Due to the prominence of affairs in north China, Japan's activities in southern China have virtually escaped notice. Since the Chinese-Japanese war Japan has been active in Foo Kien, the Chinese province just across the straits from the Island of Formosa, and the Japanese have made every effort to establish themselves there.

Disregard of Treaties.

They have not only openly disregarded the treaties regulating intercourse between Chinese and foreigners, but have interfered in Chinese affairs and accorded protection to Chinese against the Chinese authorities. To such an extent has this been carried that already in many quarters the Chinese virtually consider the Japanese the masters. During the Boxer outbreak of 1900 the Japanese occupied Amoy, one of the chief ports of this province, with troops. This raised such a storm of protest that Japan, then preparing for the war with Russia, withdrew them.

Looking back then we see that Japan's position has been attained by a policy of aggression from which China has been the chief sufferer. This policy makes use of a diplomacy which thinks nothing of broken

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—Normal winter temperatures in practically all parts of the country east of the Rocky mountains and temperatures slightly above normal on the Pacific slope are indicated for the week, according to the weekly weather bureau bulletin issued today.

"The precipitation during the week," says the bulletin, "will be generally below normal, except in the Pacific states, where rains will be frequent. The next disturbance of importance to cross the country will appear in the far west about Wednesday, cross the middle west Thursday or Friday, and the eastern states at the end of the week.

"This disturbance will be preceded by rising temperature and be attended by general snows in northern and rains in southern states. It will be followed by decidedly colder weather, which will make its appearance in the northwest about Thursday."

REVOLT MAY FORCE U. S. TO INTERVENE; WILSON TO DECIDE

TROOPS AND NAVY READY

Records of State Department Show More than 100 Americans Have Been Killed.

EUROPE LOOKS TO U. S. FOR PEACE

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Intervention by the United States in Mexico has been brought appreciably nearer by the advices that President Madero has been overthrown and that anarchy reigns in the capital of the republic.

Unless Americans are killed or injured American soldiers or marines will not be landed in the territory of the adjoining nation at the instance of the Taft administration. The problem is to be transferred to President Elect Wilson, who will take office three weeks hence. He will be advised of developments in the situation, so that he will be in a position to take prompt action should conditions demand it.

So far as the Taft administration is concerned, it will take every precaution possible, so that if Mr. Wilson gives the word to move, ships and soldiers will be ready to obey.

Wilson Opposed to Force.

The general impression in Washington is that Mr. Wilson will be opposed to a military movement and will endeavor to maintain the status quo. But his hand may be forced by the action of congress. The Democrats, especially from the border states, are insisting upon intervention. They insist that there is no strong man in the republic capable of dealing with the situation, and that Madero will be succeeded by some one equally impotent, and that anarchy will reign throughout the country.

It is fully realized here that Europe is as deeply concerned over the Mexican situation as is the United States. Americans have suffered more than Europeans, and the governments of the latter have not only made protests, but they have claimed and obtained damages. Germany's demands for indemnity have been promptly met, and it is reported that something like $4,000,000 has been paid to her subjects.

The claims of the United States amount to more than $12,000,000, and are not satisfied, the Taft administration taking the view that those who had suffered injury should obtain redress through the Mexican courts. This policy has not met with the approval of congress.

Europe Feels Deep Concern.

But the mere payment of claims is not enough for Europe. It wants peace established. I cannot itself intervene because of the feeling that would be aroused in the United States. Therefore it is looking to this country to take steps to provide protection for foreigners and their interests. Representations to this effect have been made to Secretary of State Knox, but have not been heeded. With anarchy prevailing throughout the republic, the demands of Europe will become more insistent and must be considered by the Wilson administration.

The only advices received here tonight about the revolt in the Mexican capital came from Consul Garrett at Nuevo Laredo. He telegraphed a report from the capital that Gen. Bernardo Reyes and Felix Diaz had been released from prison by a mob, that Reyes was shot through the head by federal guards, and that Diaz escaped. Ambassador Wilson has been instructed by cable to send a detailed statement of the event.

Troops to Be Held Ready.

The entire Atlantic fleet is at Guantanamo, Cuba, and can reach Vera Cruz, the seaport of Mexico City, within two days. Rear Admiral Southerland, with two armored cruisers, the Colorado and South Dakota, can start at a moment's notice down the west coast of Mexico.

A force of American soldiers is distributed along the Mexican border sufficient to handle any situation that may arise in the northern states of the neighboring republic short of actual invasion. Other troops can be dispatched to their assistance if necessary, or hastened by sea to Vera Cruz to force their way to Mexico City.

President Taft and his advisers are handicapped in dealing with the situation because of the approach of the day when they must surrender their power. Moreover, the policy they have been pursuing prevents them from going to the extent of intervention until in their judgment American and foreign life and property are imperiled more than they have been up to this time.

Madero Promises Not Kept.

They made paper protest after paper protest to the Madero government. They served notice upon the rebel leaders that they would be held responsible for assaults upon Americans and American property.

TRAP MADERO IN HIS PALACE; DIAZ IS FREED

REYES SHOT IN FIGHT

DIPLOMATS RECOGNIZE DIAZ

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 9.—The culmination of the revolution came this morning when, without warning, but in accordance with a carefully planned coup d'etat, the majority of the troops in the national capital revolted.

Tonight, after a day of guerrilla fighting in the streets, President Francisco Madero, with his ministers and a strong detachment of loyal troops, is fortified in the national palace, while Gen. Felix Diaz, nephew of the former ruler, with a large majority of the regulars behind him, has practical control in the city.

DEMANDS MADERO'S SURRENDER.

Revolutionary headquarters have been established in the arsenal. From there, under a white flag, Diaz sent a message tonight to Madero demanding his resignation and surrender. The president replied, declining to accede to this demand.

Madero also received another unpleasant call tonight. A delegation representing the diplomatic corps asked him to say "yes" or "no" as to whether he could give protection to foreign residents. The president did not answer.

The diplomats then sent a message to Gen. Diaz notifying him that they would look to him to give such protection.

The number of killed is put at 250, three of them being Spaniards. One American, E. L. Ramsey, formerly of Galveston, was seriously wounded. Vagrant bullets entered some of the embassy buildings.

MADERO AN OPTIMIST.

Despite the fact that he is besieged in the palace, Madero telegraphed to state governors and military commanders that the army was loyal and that "tranquillity had been restored."

To a representative of the Associated Press President Madero said the facility with which the new revolt had been suppressed was only another indication of the strength of the government and the loyalty of the army. Pointing from a window in the palace to a mob, for the most part of boys carrying the national flag and crying vivas for Madero, the president said:

"There you can see the people are with us. It is said that the government stands alone, but that is not true. The government has the support of the people. There will be no more temporizing. We are going to use the iron hand."

FREE DIAZ; GET UPPER HAND.

The army "rose" early in the morning. It took possession of the public buildings, shot down federal adherents in the streets, released Gen. Felix Diaz, leader of the Vera Cruz revolt, from prison, and, falling into line under his banner, soon had the upper hand in the city.

Madero's family has taken refuge in the Japanese legation, and tonight the president is making a fight, desperate in its efforts, against what appears to be enormous odds, for retention of his power.

Gen. Diaz tonight is at the head of a majority of the troops, including most of the artillery, and is in possession of the arsenal in the city and the powder works near by.

Madero is relying on the loyalty of Gen. Blanquet, who has been summoned from Toluca, forty miles distant, but Blanquet has only a thousand men under his command, and the rebels are confident of defeating him should he refuse to join the revolt.

The day was marked by four separate engagements, the most sanguinary of which took place in front of the national palace. But the most important was that which terminated in the formal surrender of the troops in the artillery barracks.

It is believed that not less than two hundred persons were killed in the fighting. Among the number was Gen. Bernardo Reyes, a strong adherent of Porfirio Diaz and ex-secretary of war.

The mutinous troops were led by students of the military school at Tlalpam. They marched to the prison to which Gen. Felix Diaz had been transferred for safe keeping and released him. Gen. Bernardo Reyes was also freed from Santiago military prison, there being no resistance in either quarter.

FEDERAL FORCES JOIN REBELS.

To the army of the mutineers quickly came portions of the First cavalry, Twenty-fourth cavalry, and Twentieth infantry.

Gen. Manuel Mondragon, retired, was in command, but gave way to Gen. Diaz and Gen. Reyes.

At 8:30 o'clock the first encounter with loyal troops occurred in front of the national palace, and Gen. Reyes, whose long record as an army officer was broken little more than a year ago by a farcical revolt, was killed instantly by a bullet through the head.

Many fell in this engagement, and among the scores of bodies which strewed the streets were those of minor officers, women and boys of the lower classes, and members of the great crowd of spectators which had gathered at the firing of the first shot.

Gen. Lauro Villar, post commander of the capital, who remained loyal, was among those slightly wounded. The minister of war, Gen. Garcia Pena, also received a slight injury.

MADERO LEADS OWN FORCE.

At the first call to arms President Madero took command of a force of approximately 1,000, consisting of mounted police, Chapultepec cadets, and a small detachment of volunteers.

He appeared at the head of this force a mile from the national palace, riding a big gray horse. By his side rode Gen. Huerta, hero of the campaign against Orozco and one of the army generals whom the public generally had suspected of being disloyal.

Several blocks from the palace one of Madero's aids attempted to dissuade the president, and, placing his hand on the horse's bridle, half turned the animal from the line. Madero protested vigorously and continued to lead the advance until the shooting began, when Gen. Huerta succeeded in persuading him to enter a building in a side street.

The revolt, in its unexpectedness, was such as to stupefy the populace, the lower elements apparently not knowing for whom to cheer. This is popularly given as the reason for lack of pillaging and looting.

PLAN TO STOP REBELS.

The attack on the national palace found the government not altogether unprepared. In the interim between the release of Diaz and Reyes from prison, Gustavo Madero, brother of the president, and Gov. Garza of the federal district, learned of the plans of the rebels.

The minister of war and Gen. Villar made hasty preparations to guard the palace. Riding at the head of their troops, Diaz and Reyes approached from the east into the Zocalo, the big square in front of the palace.

Gen. Reyes appeared for the first time in many months in the uniform of a general, but Diaz wore a blue sack suit and soft gray hat.

REBELS FIRE ON VILLAR.

A halt of the mutinous forces was made when Gen. Villar, appearing at the door of the palace, raised his hand and challenged them. His answer was an order on the part of the rebels to begin firing.

Quickly the invading forces assumed positions around the square, which soon was clouded with smoke from their rifles. Immediately from the palace came an answering fire. The defenders were using rifles and machine guns.

From the west could be seen advancing the force headed by President Madero. As it approached the rebels retired into a side street.

Thirty minutes later street fighting began in the neighborhood, but lasted only a short time. Neither side appeared ready to press its advantage, but just before noon Gen. Diaz led his command, numbering 1,000, on a wide detour, in an effort to reach the arsenal.

LOYAL FORCES SURRENDER.

The attitude of the artillery stationed in the arsenal was one of much speculation on both sides. The artillery remained loyal and the battle around the arsenal lasted about an hour. No use was made of the big guns inside the arsenal, and it soon became evident that the reinforcements which the government had sent to attack the rebels were not inclined to fight.

One after another these supposedly loyal forces signified their intention to surrender, their chiefs riding to Diaz under flags of truce and extending their hands in congratulation.

Before long almost all the mounted police whom the president had led against the rebels a few hours previously were now in the rebel ranks.

MADERO HAS SMALL FORCE.

The artillery from Tacubaya clattered into the city, but not to oppose the mutinous troops. Instead they joined the movement and lined up with the rebels about the arsenal.

A truce was called and papers of surrender were formally signed. This victory gave to the rebels a majority of all the cannon in the city and left to President Madero probably not more than 25 per cent of the capital's fighting force.

In the meantime alarming rumors reached the city of a mutiny led by striking miners in Pachuca, fifty-five miles to the northeast, and of heavy fighting south of Tlalpam between a force of Zapatistas and the government troops.

Gen. Mondragon and a large force of artillery are believed to be occupying points of vantage surrounding the city and have their guns trained in such a way as practically to command the situation.

PICK UP DEAD; AID WOUNDED.

When the fighting in the Zocalo ceased ambulances of the Red and White Cross engaged in the work of picking up the dead and succoring the wounded. The plaza, an area of four city blocks, was strewn with bodies of men and horses. Within the palace there were few victims, but Col. Morelos, one of the most loyal of Madero's adherents, was killed.

Gen. Gregorio Ruis, a retired officer, two captains, and three lieutenants were executed in the patio of the national palace. It is officially reported that this was by order of the government, but another story is that they were killed by a detachment of their own men because they opposed their joining in the revolt.

REBELS PATROL STREETS.

The Red and White Cross ambulances carried the wounded to provisional hospitals, where investigation showed there were almost as many civilian victims as soldiers.

opposing sides there was little disorder and tonight the streets are patrolled by the rebel troops.

During the day only one mob assembled. It attacked the building of El Pais, the only independent morning newspaper, printed in Spanish. The building was partly burned.

It is reported that revolutionary movements have begun in other places and the Zapatistas are said to be fighting a short distance south of the capital.

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED.

Shortly after the first outbreak occurred in the artillery barracks Madero declared martial law throughout the city and announced that he would ask congress to authorize a suspension of the guarantees throughout the republic. Gen. Huerta was named as post commander on account of the wounding of Gen. Villars.

In the belief that the government had scored an easy victory, Foreign Minister Lascurain, Ernesto Madero, and others of the cabinet embraced one another and congratulated themselves and the president on what they called the new turn of events. Their attitude changed later in the day.

DIAZ TO FIGHT FOR LIFE.

Those who have observed affairs closely point out that Gen. Diaz, who escaped being shot summarily following the failure of the Vera Cruz revolt, can now expect no clemency, but must fight to the death.

There is no question that Diaz is straining every fiber to depose Madero, and with the large forces at his command, both within the city and without, it is not likely that the present revolt and the rising within the capital will be suppressed easily.

EYEWITNESS STORY OF FIGHT.

An American correspondent, who was an eyewitness to the fight before the government palace, describes it as follows:

"Machine guns had been mounted on the roof of the palace, and many soldiers were crowded into the towers of the cathedral and all of them apparently in sympathy with Diaz.

"The First cavalry commander, surveying the situation at the palace, and believing it strongly enough guarded, ordered his regiment to proceed to the penitentiary and there demanded the immediate release of Gens. Felix Diaz and Bernardo Reyes. Both of these men were then taken to the palace by the troops, followed by huge crowds shouting for Diaz and Reyes, and 'Death to Madero.'

TROOPS SURROUND PALACE.

"Their arrival at the palace was marked by the enthusiastic thousands of common people thronging continually into the Zocalo plaza, on the east side of which stands the governmental buildings.

"The cavalry, about 500 strong, and the infantrymen lined up the full length of the palace, 700 feet. Other troops were lying on the paving in skirmish order. A body of mounted police was stationed at the south end of the palace, where Diaz stood watching.

"Suddenly the south door of the palace, known as the president's door, flashed open, and from within came the report of a rifle.

"At the same moment Gen. Reyes, standing near Diaz, crumpled into a heap. He had been shot through the head and died instantly.

"His death was the signal for a general fight. In an instant the machine guns on the roof of the cathedral began spitting their hail of lead and steel, and simultaneously the artillery, which had approached from the south, began an attack on the cavalry.

FALL DEAD AND DYING.

"The mob in the streets swung about and beat a hasty retreat for any available shelter. In a minute or two the Zocalo was filled with the dead and dying. Everywhere a pool of blood marked the place where bullets had found a mark, the shrapnel and the solid shot of the field guns wreaked carnage.

"I was in front of the national palace when the firing began. I ran across the plaza with other thousands of scurrying women, children, and men, scores of whom fell in their flight to cover.

"It is conservatively estimated that 200 were killed in the Zocalo and 500 have been wounded. In the hallway where I found refuge there were seven other men all wounded in the battle.

DIAZ LEADS TROOPS AWAY.

"Outside the plaza resembled a shambles. The battle favored the federals, who, not keeping faith with Diaz, turned the machine guns on the troops below. Diaz, with the remains of cavalry, the Chapultepec cadets, Tlaplan cadets, some aspirants, and a few other soldiers, made his way to the artillery barracks and the arsenal which is on the Plaza Desarms.

"Street cars pass there going to Chapultepec and the residence section, the American colony being but five blocks away. At the arsenal another fierce fight resulted, and, it is reported it was captured by the rebels. The federals had the barracks, and shortly thereafter a truce followed. During this Diaz rode through the streets calling for volunteers to overthrow the government.

"Reliable reports are to the effect that 400 striking miners at the Santa Gertrudio and Blanca mines at Pachucca left there fully armed and carrying dynamite bombs. This body of men is expected to reach the city early in the morning to aid Diaz. It is also reported that many hundreds of Zapatistas are approaching from the south to join the rebels in the city.

"It is impossible to make a forecast of the outcome, but if the mobs get the upper hand it is likely to be a repetition of the Paris commune."

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TRIBUNE.]

Mexico [illegible] of battles, uprisings, intrigues and general revolutionary disturbances covering a period of more than two years have continued with such monotonous frequency that both in Mexico and abroad mention of the government's struggle with a discontented people is regarded as an "old story."

The close of January showed little if any improvement for the government. On numerous occasions the government announced that this or that rebel leader had been killed in action, but in a majority of cases the slaughtered one has proved the government's information erroneous by reappearing at the head of his men in territory some distance from where he was supposed to have been killed.

Only Two Big Rebels Surrender.

Two of Pascual Orozco's officers of importance—Francisco del Toro and Luis Fernandez—did surrender, one of them bringing with him more than a hundred men, but the other surrendered chiefs have been men of almost negligible importance.

From a few regions the rebels have departed or have been driven out, but what was an advantage to the peaceful residents of those regions was almost invariably a disadvantage to property owners of other regions into which the insurrectos had ridden.

Officially the grand total of rebels today is less than a few months ago, but aside from the statement of the government to this effect there is no good reason to believe that the enrollment of rebels is not larger today than ever.

The federal army, its ranks filled with conscripts, including prisoners and even captured rebels, continues to garrison the larger cities, and the rebels continue to control the rural districts almost at will.

Government Censors News.

Tales of rebel victories reach Mexico City from time to time and are as frequently denied by the government officials. That fighting occurs some place almost every day, and that the engagements are of such magnitude that the federal forces employ artillery in many of them, is admitted in government offices, but the losses almost invariably are in the proportion of about 90 per cent rebels dead and 10 per cent federals. Except in rare cases, rebel wounded are reported as rebel dead. The law gives the federals the right to kill the rebel wounded.

The movements of the rebels in the north, along the American frontier, attract more attention in the United States than do the operations of those in the south.

Mexican government circles also display keener interest in the border operations, perhaps on account of the attendant danger of international complications. The greatest activity, however, and by far the largest groups of rebels are found in the region south of the capital.

The isolation of towns of considerable importance no longer is of enough interest to arouse public apprehension to a high pitch, and not even the presence of rebels within ten and fifteen miles of Mexico City excites the residents of the capital.

Atrocities Are Common.

Stories of atrocities are common and the bearing away of young girls by Zapatistas excites about the same degree of interest as does the report that the rebels have confiscated so many head of cattle.

The rebels in the north are not given to the same methods of personal revenge as are those in the south. Occasionally the northern rebels have executed federals in reprisal, but in the south wanton torture is common.

Recently in the state of Mexico, forty miles from the national capital, the Zapatistas, angry at an aged Indian who persisted in carrying the mail after he had been warned not to, disciplined him by first cutting off both his feet. Then they cut off his hands, and the last act was the thrusting of a pole through the man's neck and the hanging of his body in a tree, the ends of the pole resting on branches.

Big Arrests Not Uncommon.

Arrests of prominent persons in Mexico are not uncommon, and the judges of the Supreme court have felt that a little precaution on their part might save embarrassment. In due and formal manner the members of this body decided to carry with them cards of identification which were calculated to convince any zealous police officer that the judges are entitled to the same exemptions that a congressman enjoys.

To protest against the conscription of many of their neighbors, a committee of the citizens of Tenango, in the state of Mexico, has call at the office of the minister of interior. They explained that the federal army officers had made a mistake; that in rounding up a lot of Zapatistas for enforced service in the army they had carried off a number of peaceful citizens.

The committee protested that since these men had not been fighting against the government, they should not be forced to fight for it. The minister of interior promised to call the matter to the attention of the minister of war, who, he assured them, would take such steps as he thought best.

U. S. INTERESTS SAW REVOLT

Concessionists Believe Present Trouble Most Serious.

MEXICAN PEOPLE FICKLE.

Unrest Saturates Country; Leaders in Fear of Intervention.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Reports of the newest uprising in Mexico today greatly interested business men who have concessions in that country. The impression, founded on vague information, was that the present situation is the most serious yet encountered.

Clarence Rapkin of the Mexican Telegraph company said that conditions in Mexico had been uncertain during the last few weeks and that the action of the federal troops led by Gen. Felix Diaz was not unexpected.

"It has been known for the last two or three days," said he, "that the Mexican situation was most crucial. We have known of this military party's intention toward Madero and have expected that some such action would be taken, but we were not aware that it was to take place today. Madero's position has never been secure, and it has been evident for some time that he would not last long. It was just a question of who would act first."

American Interests Safe.

Mr. Rapkin did not think that the situation would be perilous for American interests in Mexico. Nor did he believe that the fact that Gen. Felix Diaz was leading the soldiers indicated the recall of former President Porfirio Diaz.

"Porfirio Diaz's days of power in Mexico are over. He has lost prestige and I think there is no connection between him and his nephew. It is simply another evidence of the changeable character of the Mexican people. With them it is off with the old and on with the new, generally without reason.

"As to American interests in Mexico, especially Mexico City, I do not think they can be harmed much. Accidents will happen and some damage may be done, especially to the mining interests toward whom the people are hostile.

"But the leaders of all parties in Mexico are afraid the United States will intervene and their counsel will, of course, be to leave Americans alone. However, I am afraid that in the end intervention will be necessary. If the military party doesn't last long, and it probably will not, another equally frail party will arise and soon fall. We can only sit back and wait for things to happen."

Might Have Been More Serious.

Representatives in this country of Mexicans' interests did not think the situation was nearly as serious as it would have been had Madero's opponents, the rebels, taken control, instead of his supporters, the military. They thought it was pretty bad, but that the attitude of the government toward the United States and its citizens in Mexico would be practically unchanged, and that American property would not be harmed.

Madero has been unseated, they thought, because it was felt a stronger man was needed at the helm. They did not believe Porfirio Diaz would come back, but that younger leaders would be evolved.

Call Diaz Popular Leader.

"Felix Diaz has always been a strong and forcible man," tonight said one of his friends in this city, whose property was confiscated by the Madero government. "He is a man who is much liked all over Mexico, and he has a large following in the army among the young men of the better class.

"When Diaz led the revolt four months ago he did so at the request of prominent Mexicans who wanted to see an orderly government installed. He was selected as leader not only on his own merits, but because it was felt that the great name of Diaz would lend much strength to the movement.

"Diaz was betrayed by some of his generals. They were backed by the Madero government. Diaz was first placed in jail at Vera Cruz, but Madero's friends feared that he might be able to start a revolution from his prison and had him transferred to a prison in Mexico City.

Say Reyes Was Betrayed.

"The truth has never been told of the way in which Gen. Reyes was captured by the Madero forces. He was betrayed by a man sent by Madero. This man followed Reyes into Texas and there came into possession of the code used in the transmission of messages by those interested in organizing the new government. He went into Mexico and sent Reyes a wire in code telling him his forces would be met at a certain place just over the border by another force of loyal men. Reyes crossed the border, and suffered privations for two weeks before he was captured."

State Department Records Show More than 100 Americans Killed.

tection or by what has sometimes been regarded as flippant evasions of responsibility.

The rebel leaders have not failed to make polite rejoinders to the communications addressed to them. But there has been no cessation of the attacks on Americans and their property.

The astounding fact is that the state department is in possession of information showing more than one hundred Americans have been killed and at least another one hundred have been injured.

At first the Mexicans, and this includes federals, rurales masquerading as federal troops, and insurrectos contented themselves with running off cattle from ranches owned by Americans. Then they went a step farther and looted houses, subsequently firing them.

Destroy American Mining Property.

Now the state department is receiving reports that American mining property is being destroyed.

This appalling condition of affairs has existed throughout Mexico. President Madero until today was able to keep the situation in Mexico City and its immediate vicinity under control. But it has been apparent to the authorities here for some time he was struggling against a torrent that was bound to engulf him.

At the time Felix Diaz inaugurated his revolt against Madero at Vera Cruz, it was expected he would win because of the disaffection known to exist in the government army. Madero was able to keep his troops together, he defeated and captured Diaz, and it was supposed that he had obtained a new lease of power.

Instead of shooting Diaz, as was generally expected, Madero imprisoned him. The name of the man who ruled Mexico for years and which was borne by the Vera Cruz revolutionist was one apparently that could be conjured with. Moreover, Felix Diaz is the nephew of the historic dictator, and, in addition, is known throughout the country as the personal representative of his uncle.

Madero Weak in Crisis.

The vacillating policy of Madero, his inability to restore peace, the continued operations of the leading revolutionists, Orozco and Zapata, the spread of the view that Madero had proved traitorous in his relations with the men who had aided him in overthrowing the elder Diaz, and the iteration and reiteration of the charge that Madero allowed the Mexican treasury to be looted of some $62,000,000, combined to weaken him and to make the task of his deposition the easier for his enemies.

Moreover, the situation in the Mexican congress fast became critical as a result of the fight against the Madero administration led by Manuel Calero, who until January was ambassador to the United States. Dispatches received early today announced Calero and his supporters had won their fight against the loan which Madero had asked permission to obtain. It is alleged that Calero really represents the forces of the Cientificos, made up of the elements which were in sympathy with the administration and methods of Porfirio Diaz.

De La Barra Allied with Revolt.

Former Provisional President De La Barra is said to be aligned with this same group. Though not now holding office, De La Barra has never for one moment ceased to be a factor in the political situation in Mexico City since Madero took office. Gen. Bernardo Reyes, who was killed in the fighting today, was in the same group, and Gen. Felix Diaz was also among their number.

Ever since his resignation as ambassador Calero has been making a series of attacks on the Madero administration, especially with reference to its policy with respect to the revolution and relations with the United States. So far as is known here, however, he has not made any proposal of a program as a substitute for the course followed by Madero beyond protesting it was all wrong for the Madero government to misrepresent conditions in Mexico in its communications with the United States government.

Calero stated during his term as ambassador in Washington he spent six months in lying to the state department about the state of affairs in Mexico.

Calero Has New Ambition?

Though on his resignation Calero announced he was to withdraw from politics, it is now suspected that he has definite political ambitions.

So Madero was harassed until at last the inevitable happened. The feeling against him grew among his own troops, and the emeute which occurred today marks its culmination.

It is no secret here that the Washington government hoped for the success of Felix Diaz several months ago, because it realized that what was needed in Mexico was a strong hand. It was disappointed at the success of Madero, and is inclined to be satisfied with his departure from control of the government.

If Diaz should be able to gain command of the situation, if he should be able to make terms with the Orozcoistas and Zapatistas, and if, at the same time, he is able to protect and assure protection for foreign life and property, including Americans, he will relieve the situation of a grave danger so far as the United States is concerned.

President Taft has been unwilling to intervene, because he fully appreciated such action would embark this country upon a long war, with consequent killing of American soldiers. He took this position in spite of warnings given him by Senator Fall and others that 2,000 American citizens, well armed and equipped, are in the vicinity of the Mexican border prepared to cross if any Americans known to them are killed.

He believed that out of the turmoil into which the republic had been precipitated would evolve a government capable of maintaining peace and order. He was actuated, moreover, by the feeling that would be aroused throughout Latin America by the occupation of Mexico.

Finally, the reports received from Mexico showing an intense anti-American feeling established that if the United States intervened all the natives would band together in resistance to the invader.

Senator Smith Demands Action.

Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan, chairman of the senate committee which has been investigating conditions in Mexico, made tonight his first public statement concerning the results of several months' work. He frankly criticises the administration for its Mexican policy.

He declares the attitude of noninterference has been construed as weakness and Americans have been murdered and American property pillaged and burned. He expressed no surprise at the news from Mexico City telling of the downfall of the Madero government, but said that on the contrary he had long expected it. On Oct. 5 last while in El Paso he declined an invitation to go over into Juarez across the river because he apprehended the federal soldiers would desert that very day and he did not want to be on Mexican soil.

Had the same vigorous stand been taken toward Mexico that the state department and the administration has taken in Honduras, a different result might have been brought about, said Senator Smith.

Outbreak Not a Surprise.

"To any one at all familiar with recent events in Mexico, the outbreak today cannot be surprising," he declared. "The friendship of the people of the United States for our sister republic has been evidenced in so many ways the motives of our people cannot be misunderstood with regard to that government.

"Americans have suffered and died, property has been ruthlessly destroyed, a governmental propaganda has been carried on on our side of the border with seeming impunity.

"Personally, I think we have gone far enough in undertaking to bolster up an administration which was doomed to failure and which was partially overthrown today, and which has been anticipated by the more intelligent Mexicans and those intimately associated with its affairs.

"I hope sincerely and have stated that Mexico should be permitted to settle her own affairs. I have never advocated intervention nor desired it; but I do insist that Americans who are noncombatants are entitled to protection at the hands of the Mexican government or our own. I am bound to say that so far as my observation and familiarity with the situation goes, I do not believe that our government has shown proper solicitude up to this time.

Deplores Policy of Inaction.

"Had our government maintained a vigorous American policy in Mexican affairs, as it has seemingly done in Nicaragua and Honduras, much of the disaster to our own people would have been avoided. The senate committee charged with the investigation of Mexican affairs has avoided any attempt whatever to incite trouble, but we cannot close our eyes to what is actually taking place. When a Washington lawyer is paid $50,000 to throw dust in the eyes of the established government and his efforts at all times are to color the real condition of affairs, and our state department contents itself with meaningless protests, insufficient in themselves to prevent further outrages, we have the right to feel disappointed and indignant.

"Enough has been done by the executive department of the government for the Madero administration. What course we shall now take toward real protection for our citizens is a matter of very vital concern."

Calls Madero Rule Unfit.

"I am not surprised by the news from Mexico," said Senator Catron of New Mexico. "It is just what I have expected to hear for several months. The Madero government is unsuitable in every sense of the term, and the problem of Mexico will not be settled until it is settled by force of arms.

"Intervention outright by the United States is the only alternative to the measures by which we have attempted up to date to pacify Mexico. If the Monroe doctrine means anything at all, it means that we ought not to hesitate to intervene and bring order and peace in that unfortunate country.

"The fact is, we ought to have intervened and marched our army down there seven months ago. We have got to do it sooner or later.

"President Taft has been opposed all along to taking any aggresive step to end the disorder permanently, and I don't expect to see him recommend intervention now. Nor will congress take any action in the few remaining days of this session unless the president should send in a recommendation, and that I do not look for. But the next administration and the next congress will be called upon to face this problem in an aggraviated form."

Demands American Interference.

"The news from Mexico tonight discloses to the world the terrible condition of affairs in that country, which has been known to American government officials and other interested persons for several months," said Senator Ashurst of Arizona. "I am not surprised at the outbreak reported in the dispatches, nor is any one else who has been in touch with Mexican affairs.

"It is terrible to think of the American lives endangered by this renewed outburst of disorder. I only hope that an actual sacrifice of American lives will not be necessary to convince this country that steps should be taken to put an end to an intolerable situation.

"The state department long has been familiar with the actual conditions in Mexico, and in my opinion ought to have taken aggressive steps to compel the suppression of disorder, the protection of American lives and interests, and the payment of indemnities for injuries already suffered by citizens of the United States."

Who's Who in Mexico.

FRANCISCO I. MADERO has been president of Mexico since November, 1911, when he was elected following the revolution which he led, and which resulted in Porfirio Diaz resigning. Madero is the head of an old Mexican family of Portuguese ancestry, which was immensely wealthy before they lost everything when Texas became part of the United States and which later regained the wealth lost and more. The family owns flour, woolen, and cotton mills in the state of Coahuila, in connection with which there are schools, orphan asylums, and hospitals for the laboring classes. The friends of the Madero family claim that the history of this family is the history of the sole real effort ever made for the uplift of the Mexican people.

FELIX DIAZ is a nephew of the former president of Mexico. Felix Diaz was chief of police of the City of Mexico when his uncle was president. He left Mexico during the Madero revolution, and did not return until October of last year, when he landed at Vera Cruz, gathered together some followers, and seized the arsenal. A week later Madero troops recaptured the city and took Diaz and a number of his staff prisoners. Diaz and his aids were court-martialed and sentenced to death, but Diaz was saved from execution by the intervention of Madero, who ordered instead that he be brought to Mexico City and placed in jail. His aids were executed. He remained in jail at Mexico City until yesterday, when one of the first acts of the revolting troops was to release him and to claim him as leader.

GEN. BERNARDO REYES, who was killed in yesterday's fighting after he had been released from jail by the anti-Madero troops, was long known in Mexico as the "Idol of the Army," and as a possible rival of Porfirio Diaz for the presidency. He held many offices under Diaz, including minister of war and governor of provinces, but fell out with the president and was induced to go to Europe. Toward the close of the Madero revolution he was recalled to Mexico by Porfirio Diaz, but did not arrive in time to be of any use to his former chief. In December, 1911, several months after the election of Madero as president, Reyes started a revolt, but found he could not hold his followers, and rode alone into Linarez and surrendered to the commander of twenty-five government soldiers stationed there. A court martial found him guilty of treason, and he has since been held in the jail at Mexico City, Madero not wishing to execute the gray haired old man.

GUSTAVO MADERO is a brother of President Madero. His part in the revolution in 1910 and 1911 was to raise funds and look after the finances of the movement, while Francisco led the operations in the field.

DIAZ, GIVEN LIFE, MAY OUST MADERO

Threatens to Unseat Man Who Commuted Death Sentence for Treason.

Mexico City, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—By one of the most curious turns of fortune's wheel, a comic opera revolt becomes a tremendous revolution, and the man who lately was at the mercy of Madero becomes Madero's conqueror and the new master of Mexico.

This man is Gen. Felix Diaz, the favorite nephew of the banished dictator, and as it now seems, a leader of Porfirio Diaz's daring and ability. A little more than three months ago, Gen. Diaz raised the banner of insurrection in Vera Cruz against Madero, but was overwhelmed and captured with hardly a shot fired. The uprising was quelled so easily that the world laughed at the fizzle and people asked:

"What sort of a little Diaz is this fellow that has been performing in Mexico?"

Death Sentence Commuted.

Tried for treason, found guilty, and condemned to death, Diaz was saved only by the clemency of President Madero who commuted the death sentence to imprisonment in the military fortress of San Juan de Ulua at Vera Cruz. Several of Madero's advisers saw more clearly than their chief and advised the president to let the sentence of the court take its course. But Madero, mindful of the delicacy of his position would not sign the warrant of execution.

The fact is the Diaz revolution of October was not a fizzle and it did not prove that Felix Diaz was a weakling or a bad leader. The uprising was badly timed. Demonstrations that should have been made simultaneously failed because of delayed communications and because of the keenness and activity of President Madero's spies.

Name of Diaz Potent.

Madero's army was rotten with disloyalty. The name of Diaz was still potent. The Cientifico party—the supporters of Porfirio—had lost none of their cohesiveness. The Indians of the Pacific still revered the memory of the old Diaz. So that when young Diaz escaped from his prison, fled to this country, and took the time and patience to organize properly an irresistible rebellion, his success became certain.

Felix Diaz is upwards of 40 years old and is the son of Gen. Felix Diaz, a brother of the former president, who was killed in 1871 during a revolution which the Diaz faction led against President Juarez.

Physically young Diaz greatly resembles his uncle. Temperamentally they were different. Where President Diaz was intolerant, suspicious, heavy handed, and tyrannical, Gen. Diaz was for a larger measure of liberty, and used the power his uncle gave him for the good of the people. He was, in fact, so tolerant that on more that one occasion he fell under the displeasure of the old president.

Officer of Federal Army.

For six years before the downfall of the Diaz rule, young Diaz was chief of police of Mexico. He supported his uncle throughout the revolution, but when Madero triumphed, he accepted the situation with apparent grace and, until two months before he organized the revolution in Vera Cruz, remained a commissioned officer in the federal army.

He understood the temper of the troops thoroughly. While serving under Madero envoys came to him from most of the recalcitrant leaders asking him to attempt to unify the factions so that a rule hateful to so many could be overthrown.

DIAZ'S EXILE DUE TO MADERO.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—When Mexico's iron man, Porfirio Diaz, turned a deaf ear to the rumblings of discontent and set himself up for the presidency once more after having been virtually a dictator for twenty-six years, few were courageous enough to interpose themselves between the dictator and his ambition.

The bravest of the few was a young man who had won merit as a mathematician, poet, philosopher, and author; who had been a planter and a winemaker; who had all his life been a dreamer, an idealist.

Madero Raises Voice.

Early in 1910 this young man, whose name was Francisco Indalecia Madero, raised his voice so loudly that all Mexico listened.

Campaigning largely in the state of Chihuahua, Madero and his generals concentrated their attack finally on Juarez, the government's stronghold of northern Mexico. Defeating the governor, Gen. Navarro, Gen. Pasquale Orozco captured the city early in 1911, and broke the back of the Diaz resistance.

From that time on Madero's march to the capital was irresistible. The government troops deserted by companies and regiments. The aged Diaz, embittered, forsaken by scores of men whom he had enriched, found himself in a position in which his resignation was demanded as the price of peace.

He sought to make terms, but the victorious Madero was not to be denied the full fruits of his campaigns. So on May 25, 1911, Gen. Diaz resigned the office he had held so many years, traveled to Vera Cruz, and sailed for Havana, accompanied by his son, Porfirio Diaz Jr., and his suite.

From Havana he went to France and Spain, where he has kept close watch on events in Mexico. Recently the aged ex-president has been traveling in Egypt.

Chaos of Disorder.

The successes of Madero in the revolution which led to the overthrow of Diaz and the election of Madero to the presidency turned Mexico for many months into a chaos of disorder. As a natural consequence of revolution, property belonging to Americans and foreign residents was destroyed or confiscated.

Madero took office on Nov. 6, 1911, under the most encouraging conditions, but it was not long before he himself had to do with influential and able plotters.

These men charged that Madero had violated the sanctity of free ballot; that he had intimidated the congress; that he had deprived the states of their rights; that he had filled rich offices with members of his own family; that he had looted the treasury, and that he had sought to treat as bandits and criminals honest men who tried to speak out against oppression and abuses. Several revolts took place.

BEGAN LATEST REBELLION.

Mexico City, Feb. 9.—The killing of Gen. Bernardo Reyes, always a progressive, removes one of the most bitter and uncompromising opponents in Mexico to the Madero government.

For over a year he had been in prison, charged with treason in fomenting an uprising against Madero. He had never been tried, and as late as last January it was reported the government was in a quandary as to what should be done with him.

Reyes had freely admitted his guilt, but it was said the Mexican government was afraid to punish him, believing that to do so would cause Reyes to be regarded as a martyr; to give him a light sentence would make it inconvenient to impose heavy terms upon other offenders, and to exile him would be dangerous. It was believed in the Mexican capital that finally he would be released under an amnesty decree.

Long Record of Achievements.

Reyes was a soldier and statesman with a long record of achievements. He was born in Guadalajara about sixty-two years ago.

A few months prior to the outbreak of the Madero revolution there were rumors of an uprising against President Diaz in favor of Gen. Reyes, who was extremely popular throughout the country. Diaz sent Reyes to Europe, ostensibly to study military organization, but recalled him before the revolution of Madero had reached a crisis. When Reyes reached Mexico, however, Diaz had been forced to resign.

Reyes then aligned himself with Madero and agreed to accept the portfolio of minister of war when Madero's cabinet was formed. Later, however, he decided himself to run for the presidency, but was overwhelmingly defeated at the polls by Madero.

Reyes Foments Revolution.

Partisans of Reyes attempted to nullify the election of Madero, but failed, and Reyes went to Texas. There he started a revolution and was proclaimed provisional president of Mexico. This was in December, 1911.

After operating for a short time against the government forces, Reyes surrendered to Gen. Trevino at Linares. He asked no guarantee for himself, but pleaded for mercy for his followers.

While preparing for his revolution against Madero, Reyes was arrested in San Antonio, Tex., charged with conspiring against a friendly government. He was released on heavy bail for his appearance for trial and this bail was declared forfeited at Laredo last November, while Reyes was in prison in Mexico.

PRESIDENT OF SALVADOR DIES.

SAN SALVADOR, Feb. 9.—Dr. Manuel E. Araujo, president of the republic of Salvador, who was wounded by the bullets of an assassin on Feb. 4, died today.

NO COMMENT FROM CASTRO.

New York, Feb. 9.—Still suffering from a slight indisposition which kept him indoors on Saturday, Gen. Castro, former president of Venezuela, remained in his rooms at his hotel today. When informed of the Mexican situation Gen. Castro said he had no comments to make. He said that he would remain in New York until Friday, at least, when Judge Ward in the federal court will rule on his application for a permanent writ of habeas corpus permitting him to continue his visit to this country.

LIGHT REVOLT FUSE TOO SOON; DATE WAS SET FOR MARCH 1.

Practically All Revolutionary Factions in the Republic Were in League with the Movement.

They connect it directly with the program of Gen. Trevino, former federal commander in the state of Neuvo Leon and a military favorite of the Diaz regime.

They say the date for a general revolt of the army had been set for March 1, and had practically all revolutionary factions in the republic in league with the movement.

In order to hold the army Gen. Trevino will be named provisional president, says Ricardo Gomez Robelo, Orozco agent, and Manuel Lujan, former rebel representative at Washington.

To this they say the rebels have agreed if national election were guaranteed in a reasonable length of time. The arrangement, it is said, was made some weeks ago between the principal leaders of the various factions. Only the larger military chiefs were taken into the confidence of the plotters.

Juarez, scene of the ex-insurrecto mutiny and riots last year, was quiet today. Federal commanders, however, took care to keep the news from the 900-odd troops in the border town, who were kept in their barracks during the day.

Telegraph advices from Chihuahua City, the state capital, said all was quiet throughout the state.

BLOOD SPILT IN MOZAMBIQUE.

The governor immediately dispatched a punitive expedition. After a march of nearly 400 miles the expedition came upon the band and routed them after five hours' fighting, killing 200 and wounding 500. The Portuguese lost 3 killed and 22 wounded.

The victory is considered important, because a new region will be opened for Portuguese development.

RUSSIA SENDS MORE CONSULS; TAKES FRIENDLY ATTITUDE.

Duma Votes to Establish Additional Posts in America—Representatives to Study Administrative Methods.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 9.—The government has indicated an optimistic attitude with regard to developments in Russo-American relations by introducing a bill in the duma establishing consulates at Nome, Sitka, Seattle, Honolulu, and Pittsburgh and increasing the staffs at Chicago and New York. The consulate staff at Montreal also will be increased.

One of the chief aims of the consulates at Seattle and in Alaska, according to an explanatory note, will be the study of American methods which may serve as examples for Russian administration of its Pacific domains, as well as for the protection of Russian subjects in these places.

The establishment of a consulate at Honolulu, it is announced, is due to the importance of Hawaii as a point of observation on the Japan-American route.

CO-EDS QUIT DORMITORIES FOR LIFE AS BACHELOR GIRLS.

Four Northwestern University Sorority Members Shatter Rules to Live in a Flat.

Four Northwestern university sorority girls yesterday left dormitories and the watchfulness of official chaperons. They started a bachelor girl existence in a flat by themselves.

They intend doing their own housework. This means the cooking, sweeping, making of beds, washing of dishes and windows. The members of the expedition into the hitherto unexplored regions of domestic science are Miss Sue Markley, Miss Irene Farnham, Miss Mary Head, and Miss Ramona Herrod.

The fair co-eds have sublet an apartment at 1732 Orrington avenue from Mrs. A. J. Burdick. All the girls belong to the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Custom heretofore has ruled that the co-eds be quartered in dormitories or specially designated rooming and boarding houses.

Miss Irene Blanchard, dean of women at the university, said, however, she had no objection to the next move. In discussing the advisability of mixing first hand instruction in housekeeping and wifely duties with their other studies at the university, Dean Blanchard said:

"I think they are wise girls."

ALLIES ADVANCE ON BULAIR

SERVIAN TROOPS GIVE AID.

May Attack Peninsula to Open Way by Sea to Constantinople.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Some light is beginning to be shed by the brief official dispatches, which contain almost all the available news, upon the military tactics in the Balkans.

Reports of attempts on the part of the Turks to land troops along the coasts of the Black sea and the Sea of Marmora, which heretofore were only learned from unofficial sources, are officially admitted, and it looks as if Enver Bey's mysterious and desperate move, of which there have been some rumors, is an attempt to effect a landing at Charkeui, about thirty-five miles southeast of Rodesto, with the intention of relieving the pressure of the Bulgarian attack on the Bulair lines.

This movement of the Bulgarians, according to an uncensored dispatch from Constantinople, is causing serious anxiety at the Turkish war office.

Greek Fleet in Saros Gulf.

It is now known that the allies are advancing in strength against Bulair, and the Constantinople dispatch adds that the Greek fleet has appeared in the Gulf of Saros, where Servian troops also are reported to have landed to assist the Bulgarians.

It now seems clear that the allies have abandoned the attempt to force the Tchatalja lines in favor of an attempt to capture the Gallipoli peninsula, so as to open the way by sea to Constantinople.

The bombardment of Adrianople is still in progress.

SIXTEEN INJURED WHEN CARS CRASH

ACCIDENT AT CROSSING.

Four of Victims Seriously Hurt in Wreck at Sixty-first and State Streets.

Sixteen were hurt, four said to be seriously, in a street car wreck at Sixty-first and State streets early this morning.

Ambulances and patrol wagons from Englewood, Woodlawn, and Hyde Park police stations were summoned, and the injured bundled aboard. Most of them were cut by glass and bruised and were taken to their residences.

The police say the Sixty-first street car was swinging around the curve that carries it toward Forty-ninth street, by which it continues on the route toward the lake. The motorman of the heavy State street car missed the signal and could not stop, crashing into the other and throwing both from the track. The cars were well filled.

Among the injured are Roy Kirkbirde and his wife, 510 East Sixtieth street; Mrs. Catherine Allender, 6000 Prairie avenue; J. Harron, 6407 Lexington avenue; J. M. Dowling, 6505 South La Salle street; H. Anderson, 6332 Cottage Grove avenue; A. Charlson, 7220 St. Lawrence avenue, and C. Soderlun, 6335 South Lincoln street. All were cut and bruised.

CHICAGO DISOWNS NEAR HERO; "JOHN LIVINGSTONE" UNKNOWN.

Said to Have Been Duped in Spain and Rescued Just in Time—Police Prevent Fraud.

"John Livingstone of Chicago," who went to Madrid, Spain, to liberate a "bee-utiful" maiden's father who was languishing in prison, and incidentally to accumulate a nice little bag full of shining Spanish pesetas, probably is not from Chicago.

Men of his own name here refuse to believe it. They don't understand how any one from Chicago could "be sucker enough to bite on that."

A reporter called up every John Livingstone and all the Livingstone families in the telephone book yesterday, in addition to all the Livingstons. Those he was able to interrogate gave their namesake the merry "ha ha."

There are three John Livingstones in the city directory, a painter at 209 West Goethe street, a clerk at 3940 Janssen avenue, and a TRIBUNE reporter at 807 Buckingham place. The last was emphatic in his denials that his love of adventure had stifled his calm reasoning powers.

John Livingston, 4423 Calumet avenue, said the would-be liberator was a prize "boob," and had grave doubts that the man was a Chicagoan.

John Livingston, 5837 Indiana avenue, said the "hero" was as green as a young onion, and was positive he came from Snowhomish, Mich., or some other small town.

And so it went. Nobody knew anything of John. Everybody disowned any relationship with the man of adventurous proclivities and dreams of castles in Spain. Each and every one thought that Chicagoans were far too wise to let that "stuff" get by. Livingstone never lived here long, that's certain.

And yet a cablegram from Madrid announces that "John Livingstone, Chicago, was saved by the Madrid police from falling victim to the buried treasure fraud." From Chicago! Think of it!

BILL WOULD FORCE VOTE MACHINE USE

EXTENDS POLLING HOURS.

Workmen's Interests Said to Be Consulted in Making Closing Time 7 P. M.

Sweeping changes in the Chicago election laws are provided for in ten bills to be introduced in the legislature this week by Representative John S. Burns of the Seventeenth district, Chicago. Mr. Burns took the measures to Springfield with him last night.

The principal provision of the proposed laws is the installation of voting machines in all Chicago precincts. If this is done provision is made to eliminate 2,500 clerks of election at a saving, the advocates of the bills claim, of $140,000 annually.

Charles H. Mitchell, attorney for the election board, assisted by George B. Rapp, drew up the bills in conference with Representative Burns and Chief Clerk William H. Stuart of the board. They assert that the suggested changes are nonpartisan in character and reforms resulting from practical experience with the operation of the primary and election laws.

Here Are the Provisions.

Following are salient provisions of the bills, as outlined by Mr. Stuart:

Extension of voting hours in machine precincts to 7 p. m.

Increase in number of signatures for primary petitions from one-half of one per cent to not less than 3 per cent nor more than 5 per cent of party vote, with elector limited to signing one petition for the same office.

Provision for official bodies to scrutinize all petitions and hear objections to the same—secretary of state, state auditor and attorney general for state petitions; county clerk and board of election commissioners for county petitions; board of elections commissioners and city clerk for city petitions.

Provisions for Committeemen.

Provision for separate return and canvass on precinct committeemen, making certificates of election issued by election board and county clerk sole evidence of committeemen's right to participate in conventions. Penalty: Fine not to exceed $1,000, or imprisonment not to exceed one year, or both, for county, state, or congressional convention chairmen, or other persons refusing to admit precinct committeemen, or interfering in any other way with the rights of committeemen.

Setting forward dates of state, county and congressional conventions one week, to give opportunity for proper canvass of precinct committeeman returns.

Insertion in primary law of same penalties for frauds as are now in the general election law.

Recalls Armory Fight.

The provisions relating to the recognition of precinct committeemen recalled to politicians the seizure by the Hearst-Harrison forces, with the aid of the police and an ax, of the Seventh Regiment armory convention last spring.

Mayor Harrison, in commenting on this provision, was quoted as saying that "it is a travesty to spend $15,000 or any great sum of money in electing a majority of the precinct committeemen if a majority can be turned into a minority by a stroke of the gavel."

The charge was made at the time by the Sullivan committee that they had been kept out of the convention by the police after the possession of the building had been forcibly wrested from Chairman John McGillen.

ROBS PEACOCK JEWELRY STORE

"Well Dressed Man" Substitutes "Phony" Brooch for $550 Gems and Walks Out.

A well dressed middle aged man is being sought for the theft of a diamond brooch, valued at $550, from the jewelry store of C. D. Peacock, 141 South State street.

The man entered the store Saturday and asked to be shown some diamond brooches. He seemed dissatisfied and left. When the tray containing the brooches was taken out again to show another customer an hour later the loss was discovered. A cheap brooch, resembling the original one, had been substituted in its place.

The missing brooch held sixteen one-fourth carat diamonds.

Lieut. Gov. Barratt O'Hara yesterday announced he expected to bring the senate vice committee to Chicago next Saturday to begin an investigation of conditions.

Boys Taken as Butter Thieves.

Three boys, Walter Walkowski of 645 West Elm street, John Ward, 840 Sedgwick street, and John Stetz, 515 West Superior street, were arrested last night for the theft of a tub of butter. The boys found the tub in front of the grocery of Harry Buykop, 29 West Michigan street.

GROGAN SPLITS H.-H. CAMP

CALLED TRAITOR AS RESULT

Last Day for Petitions Finds Tearney's Name Missing.

War has broken out in the Hearst-Harrison camp as a result of aldermanic ward disputes which followers of the mayor predict will create havoc in the city hall organization.

City Prosecutor James S. McInerney's position as secretary of the H-H managing committee is reported to be in jeopardy because of the internal dissension. There are some who also assert that the prosecutor's official job is none too safe.

McInerney's known friendship for Barney Grogan is said to be the cause of the prosecutor's poor standing at court. His indifference in the Ald. Tearney 1 o'clock closing suits also is held against him by Harrison lieutenants, who charge him with embarrassing the administration.

Grogan is now charged with treachery to the mayor in lining up with Ald. John J. Brennan in the Eighteenth ward. Although brothers-in-law, Grogan and Brennan have heretofore been considered bitter political rivals. Grogan henchmen now are openly espousing Brennan's reëlection.

Turn Mayor Against Grogan.

The Gazzolo element has been laboring to convince the mayor that Grogan has been "doublecrossing" him, and in their charges McInerney's name usually is included, it is asserted.

The Hearst-Harrison men also are said to be preparing to withdraw support of Ald. John A. Richert for city treasurer. They even went so far yesterday as to spread the rumor that Richert would quit before the primaries in favor of Michael C. Buckley, traction expert under Mayor Harrison. Buckley's petitions for treasurer were circulated in the city hall on Saturday.

Charles H. Kellermann, president of the board of election commissioners, also wants the treasurership. Both he and Buckley will file their petitions today with the city clerk, it is said. As this is the last day on which the petitions for aldermanic and city offices may be filed, jockeying for last place—considered as good as the top place—is expected.

Deny Making Indorsements.

Denial was made at the Hearst-Harrison headquarters that the organization had made any primary indorsements despite the fact that it had been noised about for two weeks that Richert was slated for treasurer and Joseph Coffey, brother of Larry Coffey, was favored for city clerk.

Michael J. Flynn is the Dunne-Sullivan candidate for treasurer and City Clerk Connery will receive the backing of the Sullivan crowd in his fight to succeed himself.

Anti-Tearneyism His Platform.

Thomas F. Ennis has entered the aldermanic field in the Second ward on a Democratic anti-Tearney platform. Mr. Ennis is reported to be manager of the savings department of the Drexel State bank, and a graduate of the Wendell Phillips High school. He claims to have the support of the younger Democratic element of the ward. Ald. Tearney has not yet announced his candidacy for reëlection.

The United Societies will hold a delegate meeting tonight at Wicker Park hall to consider the aldermanic situation in all of the wards.

Frederick Dunham, a former newspaper man, has announced himself as the "antistraphanging candidate" for the Democratic aldermanic nomination in the Twenty-sixth ward. If elected Mr. Dunham promises "efficient and sufficient car service."

USE HATPINS AS WEAPONS.

Women Attack Two Men Whose Arrest They Cause on Mashing Charge.

William Farages of 709 South Kedzie avenue and George Eangel of 748 North Clark street were arrested last night after they were attacked by Mrs. Lydia Tighe, 718 North Clark street, and a woman companion, who charged them with trying to flirt. According to Mrs. Tighe the men made remarks which they resented by the use of hatpins, but the two persisted in following. The men were locked up at the East Chicago avenue station.

DOCTOR BATTLES WITH ROBBER.

Successfully Resists Demand for Money but Aged Physician Is Injured by Blows on Head.

Dr. W. E. J. Michelet, who is 68 years old and lives at 4719 Magnolia avenue, battled with a burglar in the stairway leading to his office at 1252 West Twelfth street Saturday night. He was struck repeatedly over the head by the man who demanded money. The robber carried a heavy club. The doctor received cuts on his head and over his right eye.

BAKER KEPT ALIVE BY OXYGEN.

Chicago Broker Battling with Death at Los Angeles—Pneumonia Sapping Vitality.

A dispatch from Los Angeles late last night stated that Alfred L. Baker, the Chicago broker, was being kept alive by oxygen. The attack of pneumonia, which became serious on Friday, is admitted to be grave. Mr. Baker left for his summer residence in Santa Barbara, Cal., several weeks ago. He was then in good health.

ALDERMEN DOOM NEAR SIDE CARS

TRIES TO REMEDY DEFECT

Company Hopes to Make Vehicles Usable Until Thrown on the Scrapheap.

One of Chicago's many traction problems, that of equipment, may have been partly solved with the announcement by Ald. Eugene Block, chairman of the local transportation committee, that the near side car officially has been declared a failure, and no more are to be put in service.

What is to be done with the 125 now in operation on Cottage Grove avenue and Fifty-fifth street-Jackson Park lines has not been determined. It is probable the experts of the Chicago City railway company now experimenting with them to overcome their principal defects will recommend such alterations as will make them pass muster with the board of supervising engineers until they are sent to the scrap heap.

Agreed to Heed City Request.

Ald. Block already has notified the board no more cars of the "muzzle loading" type will be authorized. President Leonard A. Busby of the City Railway company has agreed to heed the request of the city. He admitted at a meeting of the local transportation committee last week that in some respects the cars were not satisfactory. He said they were purchased as an experiment, and if not entirely satisfactory to the city no more will be installed.

Inability to load and unload rapidly and the prevalence of dusty air blown in through ventilators along the bottom of the car were the two complaints made against the new type of cars.

Patron's Complaint Read.

According to one complaint by a resident of the Sixth ward read at the committee meeting, the dust feature has caused the most trouble both to patrons and to the company's experts trying to eliminate it.

"All air taken into the car, except what blows in when the doors are opened, comes in from below the floor," the complaint reads. "When the streets are dusty and unsprinkled, as in winter when there happens to be no snow, and after 6 p. m. in spring, summer, and fall, when the car companies stop sprinkling, air loaded with dust, dirt, and manure is whirled into the car and spread over everything and everybody. I repeatedly have seen the air so full of dust one hardly could see the length of the car. On several occasions I have seen patrons try to seek relief by leaving their seats and standing as near the doors as possible."

President Busby said the company was trying to remedy this defect.

CHANGES PIONEER PLAYHOUSE INTO A WEST SIDE CHURCH.

Evangelist Buys People's Theater for Metropolitan Church of Christ, the Rev. Dr. Hull, Pastor.

The People's theater, long a fixture on the west side, has been turned into a church.

The big brick and stone three story building at Van Buren and Leavitt streets now houses the Metropolitan Church of Christ, of which the Rev. John Delano Hull is pastor.

The building was purchased for $35,000, by Dr. Charles Reign Scoville, evangelist. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Breeden donated $30,000 of this money and the balance was raised on subscriptions.

The evangelist refused last night to tell where Mr. and Mrs. Breeden lived, saying they came from another city. He gave as his reason that if their address were known they would be deluged by appeals for help.

Dedicatory services were held during the day and the address was made by the Rev. J. H. O. Smith of the First Christian church of Oklahoma City. More than $1,000 was pledged at the evening session. In all $44,365 has been raised to make the change. Much alteration of the interior will be necessary before the old theater becomes a church proper.

ASSAILS WAR BY SUFFRAGISTS

Dr. Jenkin Lloyd Jones Thinks Them Faithless to Own Logic.

SAYS THEY RETARD CAUSE.

Asserts They Ape Militancy Man Is Too Slow to Drop.

Faithlessness to their logic and their cause was charged against the militant suffragists yesterday by the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, speaking at Lincoln center on "Debt," composing with "Dress" and "Diet" his list of "The Three Deadly D's." He spoke of the national debts, due to costly wars, as retarding the development of humanity.

"The economic wastage represented by the dress and diet extravagances and indulgencies pale in their importance compared with the still more lamentable and inexcusable devastations of war represented by the accumulations of national debts, which so fetter all the creative and restoring activities of the state.

Wars Cause Debts.

"National debts are chiefly incurred by war and no national debts can be much reduced by militant powers. Any discussion of debt, then, must be concerned with a more primary discussion of war, the abolition of which is demanded by moralists in all times, and which demand is enforced in these days by the economist and the statesman.

"One of the saddest developments of militancy in modern times, one of the most discouraging evidences of the power of conventional and traditional logic, the force of what Novicow calls 'St. Routine,' is the present recrudescence of the militant spirit among the women reformers of Great Britain and elsewhere.

Aping the Militancy.

"In the interest of a great evolution in the theory and practice of government, passing from the militant to the domestic ideal, those women belie their argument, neutralize their logic and greatly imperil and retard their cause by aping the militancy which their brothers are all too slowly outgrowing."

FACE PARALYSIS PREVENTS SERMON BY BISHOP E. E. HOSS.

Methodist Prelate Stricken When About to Preach to Chicago Congregation and Goes to Battle Creek.

Bishop E. E. Hoss of Nashville, Tenn., one of the most widely known of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, is in Chicago suffering from face paralysis, which prevented him from fulfilling an engagement to preach at the Moody church yesterday. He will leave this morning at 9 o'clock for Battle Creek, Mich., where he will go for treatment.

Bishop Hoss was accompanied by Bishop Collins Denny of Richmond, Va., secretary of the board of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, south. Bishop Denny preached in place of Bishop Hoss at the Moody church yesterday and will go with him to Battle Creek this morning. Bishop Hoss sat upon the platform and took a minor part in the services, but declared himself unable to preach.

ARRESTED ON VOIDED WARRANT

Promoter in Custody at Waterloo, Ia., on Chicago Charge, Will Be Given Liberty.

Edward L. Collins, a business promoter, was arrested yesterday in Waterloo, Ia., on a Chicago warrant withdrawn more than a year ago. Collins was charged with swindling Charles H. Aldrich, a lawyer living at 137 South La Salle street, out of $1,800 on a spurious check. Aldrich, in a statement to THE TRIBUNE, said that friends of Collins had repaid the amount and that the warrant charging the man operating a confidence game had been withdrawn with the consent of Municipal Judge Scully. The police intended to send Detective Philip Miller to Waterloo, but in view of Aldrich's statement yesterday Collins' release undoubtedly will be ordered.

Girl Flees Children's Home.

Alice Foster, who is 17 years old, last night, escaped from the Illinois Industrial Home for Children, 826 Ridge avenue, Evanston, after she had been reprimanded for a breach of etiquette at the supper table.

LUCEY IN RULING ON SENATOR VOTE

Attorney General Holds Assembly May Fill Six Year Term Before Vacancy.

OVERRULES JONES' POINT.

Issue Comes Up Tomorrow; Lewis Supporters Fear Result of Caucus.

Attorney General P. J. Lucey held yesterday the legislature may elect a United States senator for the six year term before it takes up the question of filling the two year term, or Lorimer vacancy.

An opinion to this effect was given by Mr. Lucey to Lieut. Gov. Barratt O'Hara, who will submit it to the state senate when it convenes tomorrow to take up with the house in separate sessions the two senatorships.

The attorney general did not attempt to decide for the legislature which of the two senatorial places should be filled first, but merely confined himself to overruling the contention of Senator Walter Clyde Jones, Progressive, that the election of the long term senator first would invalidate the short term vacancy. Senator Jones' objection was made last Tuesday following the introduction by Senator D. Duff Piercy [Dem.] of Mount Vernon of a joint resolution binding the assembly to settle the six year term before attempting to vote on the vacancy.

Resolution Favors Col. Lewis.

It was generally accepted that Senator Piercy acted as the representative of Col. James Hamilton Lewis in offering the resolution, which if adopted would relieve Col. Lewis of the embarrassment of being connected with National Committeeman Boeschenstein's candidacy for the short term.

Lieut. Gov. O'Hara declined to rule on Senator Jones' point of order, holding a constitutional rather than a parliamentary question was involved and that only the attorney general could settle it officially. Mr. Lucey brought his opinion to Chicago and turned it over to Mr. O'Hara, who made it public.

After quoting numerous senatorial precedents, Mr. Lucey concludes that if the assembly should decide to pick the long term senator first such action would not "in any way prejudice the title of a senator subsequently elected to fill the unexpired term."

This ruling leaves the Piercy joint resolution before the senate to be voted on tomorrow. If it passes the senate it then will be sent to the house for concurrence. In the event it fails in either body parliamentarians say it then would be up to Lieut. Gov. O'Hara and Speaker McKinley to determine the course of action.

Col. Lewis, Mr. Boeschenstein, William L. O'Connell, Gov. Dunne's political mentor, and many Chicago legislators went to the capital on night trains so as to be on the ground early for the various party caucuses set for today.

FEAR SIDETRACK OF LEWIS.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Col. James Hamilton Lewis' friends are now thoroughly alarmed over what a Democratic joint caucus may do to the colonel's senatorial hopes and took steps today to call off the caucus, which has been summoned for tomorrow night.

Senators Compton of Macomb and Keller of Ava, who are charged up as active managers of Col. Lewis' boom in the senate, assumed the initiative this afternoon and announced they will confer with Senator Walter I. Manny, president pro tem. of the senate, the purpose being to prepare a formal request that State Chairman Arthur W. Charles rescind the call for the joint caucus.

Caucus Worries Lewis' Friends.

The Lewis men—those who sincerely are for him—appear to be nearly panic stricken by the phrasing of the caucus call and are full of fear that a caucus selection of a short term candidate tomorrow night leaves Col. Lewis with the bare chance of winning the long term and without any trading stock left by way of votes for the short term.

The old stagers believe that a caucus in advance of Tuesday's balloting, which stands for Col. Lewis for the long term and for some other candidate for the short term, means the elimination of the colonel from the senatorship going.

These fears are not alarming to the friends of Charles Boeschenstein. Mr. Boeschenstein has been a candidate for the short term only and is ready for the opening of hostilities. He declares he has nothing to do with the long term and wants to have nothing to do with it.

Predict Democratic Row.

The probabilities are that there will be a nasty row among the Democrats when they get here tomorrow. Feeling tonight among those who had arrived is intense and it appears that if there is Democratic caucus, one of the biggest political fights ever pulled in the state capital will be staged.

From what has been understood of the intentions of State Chairman Charles, and of the state organization generally, there is no disposition to call off the caucus.

The Republican managers for Lawrence Y. Sherman are somewhat aroused over the intentions of Albert J. Hopkins. Mr. Hopkins will be here early in the morning with his headquarters in full operation, demanding the short term as a matter of right.

The Republican policy, is to fight to the finish for Sherman for the long term if he can land it and for the short term if he is nosed out of the big plum.

No Line on Progressives.

No line is available in Springfield upon the plans of the Progressives. Their caucus is called for tomorrow night, with the prospects good for a stiff fight inside the caucus chamber.

The senatorial affray will capture all of the attention of the legislature during the week and there is not much prospect of progress in legislation.

The separate ballots will be taken Tuesday and the first joint ballot Wednesday.

TAFT BOOMS McKINLEY.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—A boom for Representative William B. McKinley of Champaign for senator from Illinois was started by President Taft at a reception given the congressman by his friends last night at the Willard hotel.

"My dear old Mack," the president said, "in this room there are gathered friends whom you have hooked to yourself with hooks of steel. It is not because you talk, but because you do, that you make friends. It is not because you promise, but because you make them know that you are necessary to their existence.

"I regard this farewell to you, sir, as a mere formality. When I come back to the streets of Washington looking to see what changes have occurred, I expect to find you, sir, sitting in that greatest body of legislation in the world, the senate of the United States.

"You will take your place again in Champaign county and will come back to congress, it may be in two years, it may be in four years, it may be in six years."

Neal 3 Day Liquor Cure In Chicago

FINDS HUGE FRAUD IN RECLAMATION OF WESTERN LANDS

Committee Holds Government Will Lose $100,000,000 by Irrigation Projects.

HEADS OF SERVICE HIT

REPORT DEMANDS BROAD INQUIRY

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—A drastic indictment of the reclamation service of the national government on the charge of gross maladminstration and inefficiency is contained in a report of the house committee on expenditures in the interior department. The report will be presented tomorrow. It is charged the government stands to lose more than $100,000,000 on irrigation projects under way.

The report, made public tonight by Representative Graham of Illinois, chairman of the committee, accuses government officials with having manipulated the construction of the Roosevelt dam and Salt river and the Gila river irrigation projects in Arizona to the detriment of the small farmer and the Indians and to the great profit of the land speculators, millionaire ranchmen, the Southern Pacific railroad and a Phoenix electric company.

Collusion between government officials and representatives of these wealthy interests is charged.

Committee Asks Broad Inquiry.

These revelations of reckless extravagance and corrupt transactions relating to only two out of thirty reclamation projects says the committee, make imperative an investigation of the entire irrigation work of the government and an accounting of all funds handled. The house is asked to appropriate $25,000 for such an inquiry.

Samuel Adams of Chicago, assistant secretary of the interior, Director Newell, and Supervising Engineer Lewis C. Hill of the reclamation service are severely criticised for decisions relating to the administration of the Arizona projects. The committee recommends that the president remove them from office pending the investigation, "to prevent possible obstruction of our progress by these officials."

Other recommendations are that the contract of the Pacific Gas and Electric company for electricity from the Roosevelt dam be canceled, and that no private lands shall be reclaimed unless sold to settlers at the low price of government lands.

Fears Reclamation Will Fail.

The committee asserts the laudable policy of land reclamation will fail unless efficient administration be obtained. It characterizes the four completed projects—Garden City, Kas.; Hondo and Carlsbad, N. M.; and Okanogan, Wash.—as failures, and of the whole reclamation work says: "At this rate of reckless progress the probable loss to the government over and above estimates will be from $110,000,000 to $115,000,000. Such a dalliance with millions of dollars by persons who are styled 'engineers,' but whose mathematic work would discredit a village high school, is calculated to breed contempt for the government in the public mind."

Assistant Secretary Adams said tonight that in so far as the report refers to him, it is a "tissue of inaccuracies."

Director Newell said the report blamed him for the acts of other administrations. He denied emphatically the government stands to lose any amount of money on the reclamation work.

Sought to Help Indians.

One of the arguments for the irrigation legislation was the need of reclaiming the Gila river valley and saving the starving Pima and Maricopa Indians. F. H. Newell, then chief hydrographer of the geological survey, reported this could be done by a dam at San Carlos, costing $1,038,926. The committee says this proposition was sidetracked in favor of the Rosevelt dam project in Salt river at the instance of the land speculators.

As a result the Gila river Indians, deprived of the promised water, were barely able to support existence.

It developed a few years later that the Southern Pacific railway wanted the San Carlos dam site for a right of way. The government engineers, who previously had recommended the site for a reclamation dam, now declared the project impracticable. Assistant Secretary Adams said tonight he denied the railroad application a year ago.

W. H. Code, irrigation engineer for Chandler, became reclamation engineer for the Indian bureau and collaborated with Newell and Supervising Engineer Hill of the reclamation service on an irrigation system for the Pima Indians.

Land Grab Scheme Charged.

They installed at an expense of $500,000 a pumping system which is alleged to be a failure and proposed to sell half the reservation, 180,000 acres contiguous to the Chandler ranch, for $3 an acre in order to reimburse the government. This, the report says, was an arrangement to help the land grabbers.

"As soon as it became known," says the report, "that this committee was about to investigate the conditions surrounding this project, Code resigned his position as irrigation engineer for the Indian bureau and left Arizona, although he still retains his position as vice president of Chandler's bank at Mesa, in which bank Lewis C. Hill is also a stockholder."

The estimate of the cost of the Roosevelt dam project was $3,850,000, but up to date $10,547,396 has been spent on it. The government will be reimbursed only the former amount. The report cites numerous examples of extravagance in construction and administration.

Engineer Hill Under Fire.

The committee charges Engineer Hill permitted Chandler to get a valuable water power site and favorable water contracts. Restrictions of use of the water to actual settlers were nullified by dummy entrymen and by a ruling by Secretary Garfield permitting corporations to file.

The report says Adams ruled a bona fide resident is any settler within fifty miles. Mr. Adams said tonight that this ruling was made by his predecessor, Pierce.

The Bartlett-Heard Land and Cattle company, a Chicago concern, had old water rights in the Gila valley, and Dwight B. Heard refused to become a party to the irrigation project, which he characterized as a "speculative unloading proposition." But when Heard saw Chandler make $1,500,000 out of the enterprise, he "succumbed to the temptation," says the report, and got a contract with the government as favorable as Chandler's.

The committee says the government made no improvements on the early cultivated lands, but built "cement ditches and fancy concrete works" on the speculative lands.

Report Attacks Adams' Ruling.

It is charged Adams recently made a ruling cutting in half the amount of water allowance for each Salt river farmer, as a result of which the speculators are getting all the water they want. Mr. Adams said tonight his ruling does not limit the amount of water allowed.

Under the law Phoenix had the first claim on electricity generated at the Roosevelt dam, but Engineer Hill gave a contract to the Pacific Gas and Electric company, which pays the government 1½ cents a kilowatt hour and sells light to Phoenix residents at 12 cents. Manager Ensign of the electric company, it is stated, is a brother of the government engineer in charge of the electric works at the Roosevelt dam. Phoenix has protested for years against this contract.

NEW YORK GRAFT TOTALS $2,400,000

District Attorney Hopes Police Inspector Will Tell of "Higher Up."

MANY TRUE BILLS TODAY.

Indictments to Be Returned Against Men Named in Aldermanic Investigation.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Two million four hundred thousand dollars graft from gamblers, poolroom men and illegal resort keepers in a year—$1,200,000 for the captains and their collectors, $600,000 for the inspectors, $600,000 into the hands of one man and then out again divided into three parts, one for a hotel man, one for a man who represents an officeholder, and the third for a man who represented himself or another official.

This is the "graft system" as District Attorney Whitman understands it today, and that is the "system" upon which he begins his first actual legal battle tomorrow.

Before nightfall he hopes to have made his first inroad by indictments against Police Inspector Dennis F. Sweeney and Police Captain Thomas W. Walsh. Walsh has already told much and will tell more. Sweeney's representatives or those who pretended to represent him have already tried to intercede for the inspector and have received no satisfaction.

Must Divulge "Higher Up's" Name.

The bargain that Sweeney must make will be a hard one. If he would save himself after indictment, he will be handed a statement like the foregoing and will be told to tell the name of the one man to whom he monthly turned over his share of the $50,000 which all the inspectors had to deliver. If Sweeney consents, a circle already cracked by the confession of Walsh will be torn into segments and those protected inside will be disclosed. They are the men whom Whitman is after.

District Attorney Whitman believes that from the three phases of crime mentioned at least $2,400,000 annually went into the hands of captains either direct or through the intermediary hands of faithful ward men.

Passes "Clearing House."

One-half of this sum went along to the inspectors, and after the usual half was taken out the other half went higher up. The name of the man next in line, the "clearing house," is known to the district attorney, or it is suspected that his name is known.

There will be other indictments tomorrow, too, Mr. Whitman hopes, all of them having to do with the general operations of the system.

BALKS AT EDUCATION TEST

President Taft Hesitates About Signing Immigration Bill.

TO ASK CABINET'S ADVICE.

Secretary Nagel Opposes It, but Commissioner Keefe Favors It.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.—President Taft is in a quandary as to the action he ought to take in respect to the immigration bill passed by congress and before him for approval or disapproval.

His secretary of commerce and labor believes it to be unwise legislation and has recommended its veto. His commissioner general of immigration believes it is good legislation and should become law.

So Mr. Taft has been holding hearings in which representatives of different classes and different interests have taken part. Tomorrow he will consult the conferees of the two houses, who arranged the differences between the bill passed by the senate and that passed by the house. He also has called a special cabinet meeting.

The president's inclination has been to veto the measure, but he is still weighing the facts which have been presented to him.

This legislation is not only a matter of supreme importance to the country in the way it will affect immigration, but is the cause of a great deal of friction within the administration.

Nagel Alters Keefe Report.

It is apparent to those who know the relations of Secretary Nagel and Commissioner General of Immigration Keefe that only the near approach of the retirement of the former with President Taft prevents an eruption which would result in the resignation of one or the other official. Mr. Nagel has had nothing to do with Mr. Keefe for nearly two years, and his feelings towards him have become accentuated by the earnestness with which Mr. Keefe has supported the literacy test in the immigration bill.

Mr. Keefe included in his annual report, which was made public today, a recommendation for the enactment of legislation of this kind. The report was presented to the secretary, who directed that the recommendation be stricken out. So Mr. Keefe has made no mention whatever of what is regarded here as a vital feature of any discussion of the immigration question.

Taft Studies the Problem.

President Taft has carefully examined the figures reported by the commissioner general and the arguments made for an educational test. He realizes that mingled with the many good immigrants which enter the United States there are aliens who, though not excludable under the terms of existing law, cannot be considered "desirable." The congressional immigration commission advocated the adoption of further legal restriction on the ground of "economic, moral, and social considerations."

Wickersham Says Competition Will Supplant Monopoly by Dissolution.

FEEDING ROADS DIVIDED.

Plan Gives Subsidiary Company in Harriman Merger Control of Its Own Stock.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—Attorney General Wickersham tonight announced he had reached an agreement with the representatives of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads for the dissolution of the great Harriman merger as decreed by the Supreme court.

The Union Pacific agrees to sell its 1,266,500 shares of Southern Pacific stock to its own stockholders and those of the Southern Pacific in what the government regards as a safe proportion. The Union Pacific will acquire the Centrad Pacific from the Southern Pacific, giving it an extension from Ogden to the Pacific coast.

Plan for Sale of Shares.

The agreement as stated by the attorney general is this:

"The plan in brief provides for the disposition of 1,266,500 shares of stock of the Southern Pacific company, which the Supreme court requires the Union Pacific to dispose of, by offering the same for subscription to and among the stockholders of the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific companies, the holder of every four shares of stock of the Union Pacific company to have the right to subscribe for one of such Southern Pacific shares, and the holder of every three shares of Southern Pacific stock to have the right to subscribe for one share of such shares.

Southern Pacific to Control.

"The result of the distribution, if all the shareholders should avail themselves of their subscription rights, will be that the present stockholders of the Southern Pacific company will own 71 per cent of its capital stock, while the stockholders of the Union Pacific will only hold 29 per cent. The stock is so offered for subscription at a price practically equal to par, payable in four installments, extending over a period of nine months.

"Out of the proceeds of such sale of stock the Union Pacific railroad company is to pay to the Southern Pacific company for the entire capital stock of the Central Pacific railroad company, now held by the Southern Pacific company, the total consideration amounting to upwards of $104,000,000, and the existing leases of the Central Pacific to the Southern Pacific railroad are to be canceled."

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1913.

TURN ON THE LIGHT.

The Chicago real estate board has done well to call for an investigation of the operations of the drainage board.

It has been developed by Ald. Long that the enormous taxes levied by this board are the cause of the city's financial stringency.

The majority members, composed of men of no reputation and men of bad reputation, are meeting behind closed doors to devise ways to spend money that never should have been collected.

The bureau of public efficiency should investigate at once and if refused admission should call for the assistance of the state's attorney.

HAZARDS THEN AND NOW.

Something is being made of the fact that a man and his wife were attacked by thugs in the early evening near the spot where the Fort Dearborn massacre occurred, and that good fortune alone saved the wife from being shot. It might be worth while to consider the geographical accident of the assault for what it is worth in illustrating the hazards of Chicago in its infancy and Chicago in its maturity.

In the evening a householder and his wife might reasonably expect to be secure in their property and their lives on the street, and the fact that they cannot enjoy that security is not one which grows more comfortable on consideration. And we are yet to be persuaded that there is sufficient excuse for a hazard in 1913 which might have been accepted as necessary 100 years ago.

WHIMSICAL.

There's a healthy American sentiment which supports an objection to the exclusion of Castro from this country and which likewise receives an affront when the Venezuelan is received and entertained by the governor of New York. Mr. Sulzer is privileged to have his own rules of hospitality, official or personal, and select his own guests, but the privilege does not protect him from comment.

The federal government condemns Castro as a person unfit to enter the country even as a visitor, and the New York state government accepts him as a person worthy of courtesy. The whimsicality of our government processes gets illustration.

Gov. Sulzer in the rôle of a little friend of the oppressed is as unsatisfactory as Secretary Nagel in his attitude of barring out the oppressor.

—NO HOPE THIS WAY.

Mr. O'Laughlin's adumbration of plans for the revival of the Republican party raises some interesting questions. For example:

Upon what basis of honorable compromise can Senators Cummins and La Follette join with Reed Smoot and Gallinger?

If these men are not fundamentally at variance, their public utterances, to say nothing of their records, belie them.

As for Senators Root and La Follette, what is the bond that is to bind a convinced and formidable conservative and an enthusiastic democratic radical?

Political legerdemain by which incompatibles are forced into temporary truce for the sake of a campaign will not restore real strength to the Republican party. A program formed by Smoot and La Follette would not be taken seriously by the people, would bring no Progressives back into the fold, would give no inspiring assurance to the Progressives who remained within.

AN EXPERT ON TOLL EXEMPTION.

The preposterous thing about the international complications into which the canal bill is precipitating us is that it is all on behalf of one of the most indefensible subsidy grafts ever proposed in congress. It is bad enough to face a protest from friendly foreign powers which involves our national good faith and will cost much difficult and vexatious diplomacy. But when we stop to realize that it is all on behalf of an organized interest already buttressed against foreign competition or invasion the exasperation and disgust of the plain citizen are more than justified.

Prof. Emory Johnson, who was the government special commissioner on Panama traffic and tolls, an expert, able, disinterested, and thoroughly informed, lets the light through this toll exemption graft in every direction. One of his main points he states compactly thus:

> Most of the intercoastal traffic will consist of general commodities and package freight, handled by the established steamship lines. The rates charged by the several steamship lines will be the same. The charges will be regulated by agreements among the competing companies and will be fixed primarily with reference to what the traffic will bear, and only secondarily, if at all, with reference to the cost of service to the carriers.

And the result will be that "the tolls to be paid by the navigation companies will be part of their operation expenses. If exempt, the steamship companies virtually will receive a subsidy equal to the amount of tolls not collected."

As for the arbitration to which we are in honor and national policy firmly bound, if we lose we must return all the tolls collected, while if we win we have fixed upon ourselves a policy detrimental to the public interest.

If we are going in for subsidy, let us make it a direct subsidy.

It is intimated that the railroads are supporting the fight on toll exemption. If they are they are fighting for the country in this case at least.

THE APPETITE OF DEMOCRACY.

State's Attorney Hoyne's appeal for a larger appropriation for the sake of paying higher salaries to assistants reads well—if taken without reference to facts.

Let us examine it in the light of some of these facts.

The first fact is that Mr. Hoyne makes appointments on conventional political lines. His present assistants, or several of them, have been promoted from politico-legal jobs in which they were willing to serve for less than they are getting now.

Mr. Hoyne may reply to this that if given funds to offer higher salaries he can get a higher grade of efficiency even within the limitations of political or factional choice.

Experience gives no basis for hope that this will be the result. While politics rules appointment, politics, not high efficiency, rules, and higher salaries mean not better service but more profit for politicians. We were told that the salaries of judges should be increased in order to attract a higher type of man to the bench. The higher salaries were given, but the higher type of man has not appeared. On the contrary, the general level of our judiciary is today lower in spite of higher pay, and, it may be added, because of the recent successes of Mr. Hoyne's party.

It is the standards of the state's attorney which govern the quality of the service his office performs, his disposition to use it as a high public trust or a political instrument. It is not whether he pays his young men a few hundreds a year more or less. Service in the state's attorney's office is of very great value to the young lawyer, and young men of zeal, character, and ability can be "attracted" to the work without the proposed increase, whereas older men of established practice will not be "attracted" by the possible advance unless they are of a grade or condition which should not induce the county board in the interest of the public to "attract" them.

Another fact is that if the records are correct the expenditures of the state's attorney's office have been steadily, rapidly, and heavily increasing, while the amount of work done seems to have been decreasing.

Thus, taking indictments returned as a rough but not unreliable guide, in 1903 the number was 3,392. That year the salaries paid totaled $57,024.88, the total expenditures being $63,980.45. In 1912 indictments returned were 1,938, the salaries paid, $136,520.81; the total expenditures, $186,762.91.

In other words, the expenditures were about three times as great, the results as measured by indictments returned were not very much over half!

The total expenditures for Deneen's last term were $245,444.64; for Healy's, $347,874.37, an increase of $102,429.75, or 42 per cent; for Wayman's, $596,038.25, an increase over Deneen of $312,193.61, or 127 per cent; and over Healy of $209,763.88, or 88 per cent. From the figures for Wayman's term should be deducted the state's attorney's salary, not included in previous figures, a total deduction of $40,000.

Mr. Hoyne has asked for $162,300 for salaries, an increase of $43,885 over Mr. Wayman's average for four years. He has asked for $53,000 for other expenses, an increase of over $25,000 over Mr. Wayman's average for years, excluding the $10,000 expended in the vice inquiry.

Now, it may be that the work of the state's attorney's office has increased in proportion to this astonishing increase in expenditures. But if it has, the taxpayers have very little evidence of it and have a right to an explanation.

This community ought by this time to have the full measure of Democracy as a champion of economy. When Bartzen was making his first campaign he filled the air with complaints against Republican extravagance. Bartzen's record as a spender in office will not be surpassed in our time, it is to be hoped. Yet not only Bartzen but virtually every other Democratic official elected during the present political turnover has begun his term by asking for more money.

Abstinence produces a keen appetite. But gorging is not consistent with preëlection promises of temperance.

The Tribune has no desire to cripple the state's attorney. It has every desire to assist him to serve the public. It is not counseling unwise parsimony on the part of the county board. It advises fully adequate funds.

But it believes the public is due an accounting in this matter.

Mr. Taft must be suffering from that premonitory feeling of goneness.

Zbyszko, according to all accounts, won the wrestling match with Cazeau in two strazsighyzkt failzsyszsz.

In addition to its celebrated output of weather February seldom fails to cause trouble at the intakes.

For a few weeks New York City probably will be too busy with its own little affairs to have time to devote much attention to crime in Chicago.

Turkey is hard up for cash, and not particularly flush in the matter of credit. Also it has been conducting a losing fight with the Balkan allies from the beginning. Aside from these drawbacks, however, and a few others, there is apparently nothing the matter with Turkey.

The city, as we learn from Mr. McInerney, "did not like to be placed in the position of prosecuting an alderman." It was very evident that the city prosecutor did not like to be placed in that position.

There are times when the Rockefeller wealth seems to be a burden to its possessors, but you seldom hear them complaining of it.

Among thoughtful citizens there is a growing conviction that the well known party circle is not a good thing to have 'round.

Does not the time pass with exceeding slowness when you are a passenger on a lake steamer that is frozen in, hard and fast, within sight of port? Or does the pleasure of relating the experience compensate for all the discomforts and hardships of the trip?

HEALTH IS WEALTH

How to Keep Well, By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

ONSET AND INCUBATION.

The incubation period is the time that elapses between exposure to contagion and the development of a disease. In this season of epidemics many people are asking how long it will be after a case of contagion has been taken out of an office until those in the office may figure that they are safe.

During this incubation period those who are due to get sick are carrying the germs somewhere in their bodies, though what is happening to either the germs or to the hosts is not known.

Diphtheria	3	[1 to 10]	days
Scarlet fever	4	[2 to 7]	days
Measles	10	[7 to 18]	days
German measles	14	[14 to 20]	days
Chicken pox	16	[10 to 18]	days
Smallpox	12	[10 to 20]	days
Mumps	16	[14 to 20]	days
Whooping cough	8	[7 to 10]	days
Tuberculosis			Indefinite

The first figure given is the number of days that elapse between exposure and illness in the average case. But disease does not always run on schedule; sometimes it rolls in a day or two early, and sometimes a day or two late.

The figures in brackets indicate the ordinary limits of these variations.

If a case develops after a shorter interval than the minimum given, the probability is that there was a prior, though unrecognized, exposure. If later, that there was some other focus of infection.

In this connection, it is well to know that some of these diseases are infectious during the period of incubation; for instance, a man with diphtheria has been infectious since the day he became infected, through his three days of incubation as well as through his days of sore throat.

All forms of contagion begin with fever and general aching. In measles, scarlet fever, and diphtheria there is sore throat in the early stages, about as early as the fever.

Therefore, in this season of epidemics, a sore throat, fever, and aching should put one on his guard.

The attack may be nothing more than a cold or a simple sore throat, but it is fairer to the office and fairer to oneself to go home with the first oncoming of the aching and there await a decision as to what the illness is going to be.

Both measles and scarlet fever break out in the mouth before they break out on the skin, and diphtheria usually shows a membrane on the throat and never, or rarely, any skin eruption.

Therefore, when this group of contagious diseases is suspected, the mouth is to be watched.

Smallpox is characterized by a violent aching and high fever, persisted in for three days. Up to this point most anybody would be liable to confound smallpox with nearly any fever. Then comes the turn that distinguishes the disease—the fever drops, the aching ceases, and the eruption appears.

OBEY HEALTH BOARD.

Mrs. W. P. C. writes: "My family has been in quarantine for seven weeks, owing to scarlet fever, and the child who had it is still scaling off on the feet and on the hands. She has scaled off three times already. I wish to know if this last scaling is dangerous, and if it would be all right for the family to get out of quarantine."

REPLY.

If the throat and nose are well, if there is no discharge from the ears, the peeling may be disregarded. By all means obey the instructions of your health board, charged as it is with the responsibility of protecting your community. But call its attention to the more recent writings on the subject; for instance, Chapin's "Sources and Modes of Infection," or Hill's articles in the Canadian Public Health journal.

EPIDEMIC OF SMALLPOX.

A. W. M. writes: "I am inclosing some clippings from the daily papers bearing on the smallpox situation in Evansville, Ind. I have always lived in the north, and I simply cannot understand how people can fight a regulation of the health board in this manner. Papers say they will get an injunction to stop vaccinations. Doesn't a health board have police powers to regulate an epidemic in any manner it sees fit? There are over sixty cases in this town now that the health board knows of, and no one knows how many more."

REPLY.

The statistics of the public health service show that the epidemic at Evansville is one of the worst, in point of number of cases, now prevailing in the country. The reason is apparent from your letter, from the clippings, and the generally reputed attitude of a small group in Evansville.

The power of a small minority to do serious damage is being demonstrated in Evansville, as it has been demonstrated elsewhere. An epidemic can be controlled by vaccination through the force of public opinion, but that method is always expensive, both in unnecessary illness and in the loss from paralyzed business.

As to the rights of health departments to control smallpox through the exercise of police power, the courts have held differently in the different states.

So long as Evansville puts up with the public enemies called anti-vaccinationists and lets them shoot off their wild-eyed ideas in times of peace it probably will have to pay the penalty to the tune of much illness and a few hundred thousand dollars of loss in times of war—epidemics. Anti-vaccinationists come high, but, like other luxuries, we seem willing to afford them.

HAS CO-OPERATIVE PLAN.

A. L. writes: "I am trying to get a number of persons to coöperate with me in making use of some of the idle lots in our city by cultivating them for their mutual benefit and sharing the proceeds of their labor equally. There are many ways in which such work may be made more profitable in a city than in isolated country places, while at the same time the persons can continue in their present homes. In this way those who are now working for wages could provide employment for themselves, and those who are now idle could have steady work of their own. All who would be in favor of such a plan should meet together often and help get it started. If they will send me their address I shall send them my circular, explaining my ideas of operation."

REPLY.

Suppose you call on Mrs. Laura Dainty Pelham of Hull house and see what is planned along this line and where your scheme fits in.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1913: By the Brentwood Company.]

France's new president, Raymond Poincare, has by his election to that office become invested with a distinction which the chief magistrate of the republic is alone to share with the venerable emperor of Austria—namely: that of collar knight of the French national order of the Legion of Honor.

In France, the collar, which is a gold chain composed of seventeen gold and blue enamel medallions, connected with one another by large gold links, is superior to the grand cross or first class of the order.

It is worn around the neck, fastened to each shoulder with bows of white ribbon, while suspended from the front of the collar is the cross of the order.

The first seven medallions are engraved with the names of the chief magistrates who have worn the collar since the foundation of the present republic—namely: Thiers, Marshal MacMahon, Grevy, Sadi-Carnot, Casimir-Perier, Faure, and Fallières, while the name of Raymond Poincaré will now be engraved on the eighth medallion.

The collar is handed to the chief magistrate of France immediately on his election by the grand chancellor of the order, at present Gen. Florentin, with a considerable amount of ceremony.

This collar, dating from 1872, is the fourth that has been made of the order since its foundation, just 111 years ago, by the first Napoleon.

The emperor caused three collars to be made. The first one was for himself, and was worn by his nephew, Napoleon III., throughout his reign.

The second is in the possession of Prince Joachim Murat, who inherited it from his great-great-grandfather, Field Marshal Joachim Murat, brother-in-law to the first Napoleon and king of Naples. Prince Joachim Murat, of course, cannot wear it, not being a knight of the order, even of the lowest grade. He merely owns it as a family relic.

No one knew what had become of the third until it turned up in 1867 among the crown jewels of the emperor of Austria.

The sovereign, when about to visit the court of the Tuileries in connection with the great international exhibition of that year in Paris, had sent to the keeper of his crown jewels before his departure from Vienna, directing him to see if there were not among the treasures confided to his care some jeweled insignia of the order of the Legion of Honor which he could wear in Paris.

The keeper turned over to him a long forgotten superb jeweled gold collar of the Legion of Honor which it seems that the first Napoleon had had made for his Austrian father-in-law, Emperor Ferdinand, and which had after the great Corsican's overthrow been relegated to the darkest recesses of the crown jewel treasury at the Hofburg.

Francis Joseph inquired of Napoleon III. whether it would be agreeable to him that he should wear at the Tuileries this collar in lieu of the ordinary grand cordon, and of course received a request to do so and his confirmation as a collar knight of the order.

Napoleon III., in his customary silent manner, said nothing about it to any one else, and the result was that when Francis Joseph appeared in the French capital wearing this particular collar, the existence of which had passed out of memory, it aroused extraordinary interest and created a sensation.

President Poincaré will, like his predecessors at the Elysée, be compelled to relinquish the collar at the close of his seven years' term of office.

He will, however, remain a knight grand cross of the order for the remainder of his days, and this in itself gives him high official rank.

Indeed, the knights grand cross of the order, relatively few in number, are officially considered as the highest dignitaries of the republic, coming immediately after the president and the heads of the senate and the chamber of deputies.

They are entitled to all sorts of military and official honors and prerogatives, are exempt from the jurisdiction of the ordinary courts of law, and are amenable only to the senate, sitting as a high court of justice. On their death the entire garrison turns out to render them funeral honors.

When I add to this that the grand cross of the Legion of Honor, when bestowed upon Frenchmen, carries with it a pension, it will be seen that France indirectly makes suitable provision both for the honor and for the maintenance of its former chief magistrates, who are thus saved from relegation to the obscurity of ordinary, every day citizenship.

President Poincaré, who was but 10 years old at the time of the Franco-German war, did not even have the lowest grade of the Legion of Honor—namely: the cross of an ordinary chevalier—at the time of his election last month, although during the last twenty-five years he has repeatedly held cabinet office, as minister of finance, as minister of public instruction, and as premier, besides being the acknowledged leader of the French bar and one of the forty immortals—that is to say, a member of the Academy of France.

This was mainly owing to certain rules and regulations governing the bestowal of the order, rules of which even the bulk of the French people are ignorant, and which it may be well therefore to set forth here. Members of the French senate and of the chamber of deputies, and, in consequence thereof, the members of the cabinet, are debarred throughout their entire tenure of seats from receiving the Legion of Honor, or, if they have it already, from being accorded any promotion therein.

It is held that, having a voice more or less direct in the nominations to the order, they should be placed beyond the temptation of being able to nominate themselves for the distinction.

It serves to explain why there are so many eminent men in France who have no vestige of red ribbon.

At the time when Emile Loubet was elected president of the republic he had, like M. Poincaré, not even the lowest grade of the order, although he had previously held office as mayor, provisional councilor general, cabinet minister, premier, and president of the senate.

Ex-Premier Combes, ex-Premier Dupuy, ex-Premier Meline, ex-Premier Ribot, and ex-Premier Clemenceau, none of them has the decoration of the Legion of Honor any more than had the late ex-Premier Waldeck-Rousseau and ex-Premier Brisson, although they nominated not hundreds but thousands to membership thereof.

Those statesmen who happen to possess the cross either won it on the battlefields of 1870 or else received it for services as government officials prior to obtaining cabinet rank or legislative eminence.

Another rule of the order strictly forbids the exhibition of its insignia in connection with any business undertaking whatsoever—that is to say, as a trade mark—and infractions of this regulation expose the guilty party to expulsion, as does also fraudulent bankruptcy, and even any act which, while not punishable by law, appears to the council of the order as dishonorable.

The council consists of a dozen knights of high degree, men most eminent in their various callings, and is presided over by the chancellor.

The approval by this council of a candidate's past record is necessary before he can receive the cross from the president of the republic, no matter how much the executive may wish to confer it, nor how insistent the demands of cabinet ministers for its bestowal upon their nominees.

THE top o' the morning to you! The rest of the column to us.—W. F. D.

THE MONDAY PROBLEM.

Your problem as to Monday's Line
  Should not perplex you for a minute.
You ask an answer; this is mine—

Our weekly thought you well express;
  But Monday's Line, howe'er you plan it,
Is stale and flat and profitless.
  B. L., take my advice and can it.

For sure the Monday's Colyum falls
  As flat as fell the Campanile.
The wisdom wilts, the humor crawls;
  But we must take it willy-nilly.

My Q. E. D., by rule of thumb
  Is in your very problem hinted:
Just three per cent, not ninety-some,
  If Monday's Line must still be printed.
ARIES.

ON THE CONTRARY.

Sir: If you think your own writings are entertaining you are mistaken. Fill it with contributions or discontinue. E. B.

NO ACCOUNTING FOR TASTES.

Sir: Write the entire colyum for Monday and all other mornings when you have the slightest inclination so to do. Fill it with such pictures as those of the P. S. C. and the East Window—glimpses, to the city dweller, of otherwheres, all too unfamiliar, although not unknown. C. K. D.

ZERO IN ENTHUSIASM.

Sir: If you really think you can write a column all by yourself, for some Blue Monday (and make it interesting for the silent majority), go ahead. I'll vote for it—once. R. R. J.

THE FLY IN THE SALVE.

Sir: Write the whole Line yourself. I don't enjoy it when I get in because I think of the money I've squandered in postage. S. C. B.

THE HEIGHT OF FOLLY.

Sir: I think it is foolish for a person to rack their brains to help another fellow to gain notoriety and perhaps fame (who knows?) and incidentally to earn him a good salary. J. H. B.

LOUDER!

If my opinion you would ask
  About Blue Monday's Line,
I'd answer ('twere a pleasant task)
  I like you best for mine.
L. B. L.

SOMEWHAT NON-COMMITTAL.

Sir: Of course, if you must keep pace with Doc Evans and have the Line all to yourself for one day I suppose it may as well be Monday. I spend Sunday with my wife and kiddies and my spirits are therefore not "at lowest ebb" on Monday. I could stand the maximum dose. H. U. H.

NOW FOR SOME REAL STUFF.

O, have you seen
My wonder queen,
  My Wilhelmine of Wilhelmette?
Her eyes they shine like acetylene,
Her hair it gleams like butterine,
  My Wilhelmine of Wilhelmette.

She ain't no grand Lake Forester,
Or even Win-net-ka,
  But believe me she wears some raiment.

Some day we'll hire a bungalow
In that gay suburb town,
  And there amidst those dear old trees
Boy Cupid us will crown
  Constituting some nuptials.

And then when we've been married
  A year or two or so
We'll have the cutest little ——,
  With a baby tonneau;
For we don't want no limousine,
  We ain't that grand in that burg yet.
And I'll be happy with my queen,
  My Wilhelmine of Wilhelmette. N. R. J.

SPEAKING OF ENSILAGE—

Sir: The boy asked what a silo was. On being told that it was an affair for holding sour corn to be fed to cattle, he inquired, apparently without effort, "Is that where we get our sour milk from?"

Incidentally, this settled the argument as to which parent the boy resembled. C. H. T.

THE POINT OF VIEW.

[From Oak Leaves.]

Dr. Hemingway and family arrived safely at their home in China via the Russia-Siberia railroad. The doctor reports that his hospital is full of patients and he is very busy. He considers the outlook in China very hopeful.

WE'D CONSIDER ANYTHING TODAY.

Sir: Would you consider it entirely prudent, if sick, to allow Olive Saltzgiver (a nurse in the state hospital) to administer your medicine? C. F.

WHY ADVERTISING MEN TAKE TRIPS TO NEW YORK.

"Advertising, eh! Well, it's no wonder you can sport a fur overcoat."

"O, yes—that's the business my sister was in a while ago; but she didn't like it."

"Do you make any of the heads for the Saturday Evening Post?"

"My wife's brother would be a good man for you—he wrote some swell ads for our church program."

"Nothing to it—we ran an ad in our trade paper once, and it didn't pay worth a cent."

"I certainly wish I had an easy job like yours."

"I always like to drop in on you—you're never busy."

"Here's a jingle I wrote—maybe you can use it."

"Did you ever try to make the Line?" (Never.) C. A. M.

A REGULAR CUT-UP.

Sir: N. Y., a regular cut-up in a clipping bureau, takes friend wife the remainder and residue of the old home papers just to hear her ask, from sheer curiosity, "What did you cut out?" F. H. M.

SURE!

Dear Sir: Can I make the "Line" with the following: Was riding on a West Eighteenth street car and heard two 14 year old girls discussing banging their hair, when one remarked, "Let us comb ourselves alike for Easter." M. K.

THE MAIDEN WHEEZE.

"What'll you have?"

"O, sandwiches for mine."

"George, what kind of sandwiches have you got?"

20 BELOW IN FRIGIDITY.

Sir: To have an acquaintance, who owns an open faced motor car, pass you up all the nice, balmy days of summer and fall and then ask you to ride down with him on one of these cold, slippery mornings, presumably for ballast. G. L. V.

SETTLING AN ESTATE.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a will is left, how long after death is the will supposed to be read and by whom?

2. Can some of the children go to the bank and have the will read to them before they or all of the heirs are notified?

3. How long after death does it take a will to go through probate or before such heirs are notified to appear in court?

4. How often must the administrator make a settlement with the heirs, all being of age, in case all the property is in real estate and rents?

TRIBUNE READER.

1. Immediately after the death. The executor under the will, any of the beneficiaries or heirs have the right to read the will.
2. Yes, if the bank is willing.
3. The heirs will be notified as soon as the will is probated.
4. The rent belongs to the heirs and not the executor unless the will provides that the rents be collected by the executor.

A GUARDIAN'S ACCOUNTING.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A child at the age of 5 is left an orphan; the father leaves a savings account of $600 to the child. His brother and wife are appointed her guardians. The funeral expenses of the father are to be deducted from the amount stated.

Now the girl in another month is of age and never having gained their love, she is going to leave them and make her home with the people who took her when three weeks old and had her until she went to live with the uncle and aunt. Her mother died when she was three months old.

Now what must she do in regard to this money, which should after thirteen years amount to something? Can they collect her board bill? She has helped with the housework, even to washing; as for clothing they have bought very little, as she had friends who were very good to her. She has been working now for almost two years and gives the aunt every cent.

Her uncle never made any accounting to the court, which I understand should have been done after the death of the father, in regard to the funeral bill.

A lawyer's fee is high and she, being an orphan, was afraid her sum would be smaller, so decided to first ask The Tribune, a friend to the people always. J. J.

The guardian must account for all the money received. It is probable that he will be allowed something for the support of this girl, but this must be reasonable in view of all the circumstances and must be shown in an account itemized. We are not well enough advised as to the circumstances to give you a more definite answer.

INHERITANCE TAX LAW.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—If a man dies and leaves a will stipulating that his widow shall have the use of the income from the property during her lifetime and that at her death said property shall be divided equally among the children does the Illinois law require that the widow shall pay an inheritance tax?

AURELIUS.

The wife must pay an inheritance only in the event that her interest in this property exceeds $20,000 in value. From $20,000 to $100,000 the tax is at the rate of 1 per cent in this case.

MIRRORS FOR HIGHWAYS.

[From Le Temps, Paris.]

Some English municipalities, at the urgent solicitation of the great automobile associations of Great Britain, have just installed at certain crossings or dangerous bifurcations, mirrors, which permit drivers of vehicles to see the reflection of vehicles coming in the opposite direction.

The French Touring club took the initiative in this matter some years ago on the road between Menton and Ventimille, but did not follow it up.

England seems to have obtained better results, according to letters received from English officials. A. E. Nichols, borough engineer and surveyor of Folkestone, writes:

"I fixed a mirror twenty-four inches square at the crossing of two roads at Folkestone in June, 1910. The cost was only $750. It is at the corner of Bonverie road and Cheriton place, where buildings are close together. The movement of vehicles there is swift and it was impossible for chauffeurs to see the vehicles they were about to meet. The place was dangerous and accidents were frequent. I have heard of no accidents there since the mirror was put up. I am an automobilist myself and have experienced the benefits of the system. I have not found that humidity, fog, rain, or frost has had any bad effect upon the mirror, which is cleaned from time to time when the panes of the neighboring street lamps are wiped. The mirror seems to deter drivers from going around the corner too fast."

C. Bowman, borough surveyor of Malmesbury, writes:

"The mirror which I have put up needs cleaning rarely, perhaps once in three months. It is not effective on foggy days or on frosty days until after the sun has shone on it a few minutes. Drivers and chauffeurs approach the turn more slowly since the mirror was put up, and we have had no accident since that date."

This mirror is much larger than the one at Folkestone, 96x60 inches, with the long side horizontally placed, about six feet from the ground.

There is a mirror also at Beckenham, Kent, at the junction of four roads. It is placed on stakes five feet high. There is one also at Norwich and others are about to be installed at Colchester and Knaresborough. None of those already in place has been injured in any way by mischief makers.

SALOON INTERESTS AND THE COUNCIL.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Where does the city council come in as to a case like that of Ald. Tearney? Has not such a body any responsibility as to the character and conduct of its members?

Should not the council take steps to investigate a member under serious charges of law breaking? Is there any provision for impeaching a city official?

Would it require a constitutional amendment to forbid a saloonkeeper holding office, especially that of alderman?

When the saloon business pays over $7,000,000 for licenses and requires citizens of Chicago to spend over $100,000,000 a year to support the saloons, in addition to many other liabilities as to crime, courts, jails, as well as disease, poverty, and suffering—should saloonkeepers have official direction and management of this vast business with which they are directly identified?

Is it not audacious for citizens of Chicago to ask the legislature of Illinois for the extension of home rule as long as city authorities so utterly fail to enforce many laws of city, as well as of the state?

MINIMUM WAGE FOR WOMEN.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The action of the city council urging a thorough investigation of the compensation paid to women workers is a sane step in the right direction. Thousands of working women in Chicago would rejoice if they could obtain the minimum wage suggested by the council—$12 a week.

That the grinding drudgery imposed on women who have no specialty and are forced to earn their living weakens them mentally and physically is only too true. Women who come in here, who have had good educational advantages and who command a good salary, are appalled at the timidity of the average working woman. I can point out hundreds in my own experience who have worked for years at almost starvation wages. The subject has been most interesting to me and I have interviewed many girls to get a general lineup on the average working girl's life and, to say the least, the conditions are disgraceful. How an enlightened public can so long be blinded to true conditions is puzzling. If some of these girls were depending on their salaries for clothes, shoes, and living they would go naked and starve. If they ask for more wages they are sometimes discharged and there are thousands of other slaves to take their places and get the pittance until discouraged with long hours and small pay they go down to the seemingly easier way which for a time looks brighter.

Back of it is the employer and back of him the community, and it is tolerated year in and year out. Low wages and long hours are undoubtedly the cause of the downfall of many women, and all that is possible should be done to legislate a minimum wage. Then the incompetents would be made to earn their salaries, while the more competent would not have to be placed in the same strata with those who are willing to work cheap and do not care for advancement.

WANTS JUNIOR AND SENIOR ALDERMEN.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The Municipal Voters' league has promulgated the fact that the makeup of the city council is too mediocre and the members are not calculated to handle in a broad and progressive manner the large civic problems that are being given them for solution. The mayor also has declared his belief that the city will never have thoroughly efficient local government until their officers shall be elected on the sole basis of capacity, fitness, and training.

Under the present system the voters have no means of knowing what a man's capacity, fitness, and training really are. A comparatively unknown candidate presents himself, is elected, and lands upon one of the most important committees, to make good or not as in him lies.

There should be two grades of aldermen—call them junior and senior for lack of a better title. The junior alderman, elected for two years, would attend exclusively to ward affairs, having a definitely located office or building in his own ward, and where his constituents would have no difficulty in locating him at certain business hours. The senior aldermen would have their headquarters at the city hall, and have in charge matters of general civic importance, transportation, lighting, streets, subway, etc. These would be elected to their positions for their capacity, fitness, and training.

If a junior alderman rendered services in a smaller capacity that showed he was fitted to take up larger duties the people would reward him by electing him in time as a senior alderman. B. E. A.

A GUARDIAN'S ACCOUNTING.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A child at the age of 5 is left an orphan; the father leaves a savings account of $600 to the child. His brother and wife are appointed her guardians. The funeral expenses of the father are to be deducted from the amount stated.

Now the girl in another month is of age and never having gained their love, she is going to leave them and make her home with the people who took her when three weeks old and had her until she went to live with the uncle and aunt. Her mother died when she was three months old.

Now what must she do in regard to this money, which should after thirteen years amount to something? Can they collect her board bill? She has helped with the housework, even to washing; as for clothing they have bought very little, as she had friends who were very good to her. She has been working now for almost two years and gives the aunt every cent.

Her uncle never made any accounting to the court, which I understand should have been done after the death of the father, in regard to the funeral bill.

A lawyer's fee is high and she, being an orphan, was afraid her sum would be smaller, so decided to first ask THE TRIBUNE, a friend to the people always. J. J.

The guardian must account for all the money received. It is probable that he will be allowed something for the support of this girl, but this must be reasonable in view of all the circumstances and must be shown in an account itemized. We are not well enough advised as to the circumstances to give you a more definite answer.

The heating plant is in good running order, but on account of neglect by janitor and the agent having knowledge of his neglect as above, conditions have been reported four or five times during this winter without any change except for a week. The wife must pay an inheritance only in the event that her interest in this property exceeds $20,000 in value. From $20,000 to $100,000 the tax is at the rate of 1 per cent in this case.

SLUG WATCHMAN; ROB NEARBY SAFE

LOSES 6 MONTHS SAVINGS.

Three burglars broke into the Perfection and Manhattan laundry at 1804 North Leavitt street early yesterday, beat the watchman unconscious, "cracked" the safe at their leisure, and then, finding the watchman's senses restored, beat him up again. How much they got is in question. The police say it was only about $25 in counter money. Charles C. Keese, 2125 Alice place, says it may be much more.

Henry Delfoss, 3251 South Oakley avenue, the watchman, says he was sweeping the floor when he heard a light footfall. Before he could turn something hit him and he collapsed. He recovered when the "yeggmen" were stuffing part of an apron in his mouth with a revolver muzzle. His arms and legs were securely tied. Over the gag was tied another strip of cloth.

Gains His Freedom.

Laughing at him, the men went to the safe, muffled the lock with a blanket, and blew it. During the operation one returned three times to make sure Delfoss was safe. After the explosion all three returned and struck the unresisting watchman with a revolver butt. The last blow, under the eye, knocked him senseless again.

About an hour afterward, Delfoss thinks, he awoke once more. His throat was swollen from the irritation of the gag, his head buzzing from the blows, and circulation almost stopped in his limbs. He rolled toward a chair and pushed off the cloth about his face, frantically struggled and spit out the gag. Then he screamed for help and a watchman in the Armour & Co. branch office across the street heard him and came to the rescue. Delfoss was on the verge of collapse and was carried home in a taxicab.

Lumberjack Loses Savings.

The Desplaines street police heard the sad story of William Potoski, a Michigan lumberjack, who arrived three days ago with $177. This represented his six months' savings over and above the cost of a new outfit of clothes. He was picked up in early morning at Jackson boulevard and Desplaines street, without his $177, his hat, coat, shoes, and overcoat.

The police still are looking for the men who held up Shay & Larkin's saloon at 700 North Kedzie avenue and Philip Kaplan's place at 4453 South State street, netting $19.85 from the transactions. Kaplan and two patrons were locked in a back room and had to break down the door.

Burglars looted the residences of T. C. Baumont, 6120 South Bishop street, of $135 worth of clothing and Archie Cameron, 6126 Bishop street, of $100 worth of jewelry. Entrance to both places was made by forcing the rear doors.

Rob Woman of $50.

Willingness of Mrs. Bertha Silverman, 1679 Milwaukee avenue, to give information to lost strangers got her in a mess of trouble at night. Two men approached her at Robey and Division streets and asked for some street addresses. After the strangers left she found $50 gone from her handbag.

Thomas Loonen, saloonkeeper at 1100 West Adams street, lost $30 when three patrons drew revolvers, cowed the bartender, and rifled the cash register.

The same trio is believed to be responsible for two later holdups on the northwest side. They entered the saloon of Martin Peterson, 4735 West North avenue, took $70 from the register and $12 from a patron and the barkeeper.

Old Time Choir and Presence of Former Pastors Enliven Homecoming Services.

An old time choir, a dollar shower, and the return of former pastors were features at a series of home coming services yesterday at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Harrison street and Ashland avenue. The dollar shower brought $370. There were six ministers present beside the pastor, the Rev. Alfred Peache. They were the Rev. H. V. Holt, the Rev. W. H. Burns, the Rev. A. L. Allais, the Rev. J. M. Phelps, the Rev. G. K. Flack, and the Rev. John Thompson.

Modern 'Jekyll and Hyde' in Two Poses.

William J. Reid — Reid Disguised.

Photographs just received at the local office of the Pinkerton detective agency illustrate the "Jekyll and Hyde" existence of William J. Reid. Two descriptions have been circulated of the man, who is said to have been the most resourceful and successful check forger of the last decade. He now is under a seven year sentence in the San Quentin (Cal.) penitentiary.

Description No. 1 says: "Quite corpulent, but in an unusual way, his chest being as prominent as the middle portion of his abdomen, where corpulency usually appears, his body being apparently out of proportion to the rest of his build."

Description No. 2 says: "Appearing like a slender man, without the fullness of the chest and stomach noticed before."

Representatives of the Ceylon (Minn.) bank, where Reid is said to have passed a worthless check for $6,000, under the name of John Carr, are in Chicago, trying to locate real estate in the name of Reid.

GIVES FIVE 'DON'TS' FOR GIRLS

Minister Warns Against Accepting "Gifts" from Men.

SEES DANGER IN CARESS.

Prohibit Familiarity or Physical Contact, Says Dr. Hayes.

Young girls were warned against accepting gifts from men under the guise of friendship in a sermon yesterday by the Rev. F. L. Hayes, pastor of the California avenue Congregational church. His subject was "Is the Young Woman Safe?"

He gave some of his warnings in the form of these "don'ts":

Don't allow any man to use unbecoming language in your presence.

Don't permit the first attempt of undue familiarity by way of a caress or other physical contact.

Don't go to a place the character of which you are not sure of.

Don't accept gifts from men out of proportion to any claim that your relationship to them might warrant.

"Every girls needs friends, but she needs the right friends," he said. "Father and mother are the best friends, but if the young woman is deprived of these she should seek her friends with the utmost care.

"That there is need of warning concerning the safety of young women is seen in the report of the New York police department, which said that in 1911 there were reported 1,000 young women who had disappeared, and the report suggested this number probably was less than one-half the actual number.

"A recent dance in Chicago was announced as a 'barn dance,' and it was said there would be live geese and barnyard animals. If it was like many dances that are held, there is no doubt some of the young men were 'calves' and 'hogs,' and some of the young women were 'geese.'

"It is strange that girls will be so silly as to paint for the sake of beauty.

"Some churches have provided escorts for young women going home after service, but we can't go with our young women everywhere. There can be no external safety that always will be availing. A young woman's safety lies alone in the inner principles which Christianity seeks to cultivate."

CIGARET SPARK BLOWS UP AUTO

Prospective "Joy Rider" Starts to Crank Up for Three Chorus Girls —Bang!

An intoxicated young man last night invited three chorus girls to take a "joy ride" with him. He started to crank up and appropriate Dave Friedman's automobile at Randolph and Clark streets. He was puffing on a cigaret. Burning ashes fell on escaping gasoline and an explosion followed. The body of the car was torn open, the engine damaged, and the radiator wrecked. The machine caught fire. Firemen extinguished the flames. Afterward the youth, who gave the name of "Roy White," congratulated himself when the girls fled.

ASK 10,000 VOTERS TO GO TO CHURCH

Nine Pastors, 'Oakland Group,' Use Polling Lists to Invite Men to Service.

GOOD RESULTS ALREADY.

The Rev. E. L. Daken Says Letters Increased Worshipers Immediately.

Ten thousand voters received last week a personal invitation to attend church. The entire polling list in the territory bounded by Thirty-fifth street on the north, Forty-third street on the south, Indiana avenue on the west, and Lake Michigan on the east was utilized in sending out the letters of invitation.

The invitations were the result of a conference of a group of nine pastors, known as the "Oakland group." The invitation was signed by all the ministers and was an appeal to men to attend church during February and March.

Who the Pastors Are.

The Rev. C. W. Covert and the Rev. J. N. Freeman, First Presbyterian church; the Rev. G. K. Newell, Sixth Presbyterian church; the Rev. E. L. Dakin, Memorial Church of Christ; the Rev. Harry E. Peabody, South Congregational church; Jenkin Lloyd Jones, All Souls' church; the Rev. F. W. Barnum, Oakland Methodist Episcopal church; the Rev. N. W. Deveneau, French Methodist Episcopal church, and Francis W. Russell, warden of St. Mark's Episcopal church, who represented the church, which is at present without a pastor.

"The invitation is not sectarian," the letter said. "You are not asked to leave your own church and go to some other, but simply to attend your own church with special regularity.

To Build Up Regular Service.

"This is not a call to a special or union service. It is an invitation to build up the regular service.

"A definite time is named because of the value of having the attention of many on the same object at once.

"No one can estimate how much good would result from the coming to church of 10,000 men. If any man does not now have a church home he will find a hearty welcome in any one of the churches extending this welcome."

CALLS BROTHERLY LOVE MYTH

IDEA IS AGAINST REASON.

University Divine Says Sympathy Ends with Own Kin.

The church assertion of the brotherhood of man is barefaced hypocrisy, according to Prof. George B. Foster of the University of Chicago, who spoke yesterday before a joint meeting of the social service class of the Unity church, Oak Park, and the applied christianity class of the First Baptist church, Oak Park. The meeting was held in the Baptist church.

"It is absurd," said Prof. Foster, "to expect that between men who are no relation to each other there will be the same bond which exists between brothers in the same family.

Limits Brotherhood to Blood Kin.

"Take a family of five or six brothers. If the fortunes of one brother are such that he becomes wealthy he won't let another brother, less fortunate, go about in rags or wanting food.

"It is a point of pride with the wealthier brother that the appearance of the other brothers shall not be such as will reflect discredit on himself.

Idle to Expect Rich to Aid Poor.

"While you will find this condition between the members of the same family, it is idle to expect that a person who has wealth should feel the same interest in the unfortunates at large.

"We used to think that God made the world perfect, but man imperfect. We know now that everything is bent toward perfection, but that nothing has attained it. Happiness is found only in producing something."

AGGRESSIVE JAPAN WANTS MORE LAND

Population of 50,000,000 Dwells in Territory About the Size of Nevada.

promises and treaties and succeeds by force when diplomatic means fail.

What is the reason for this policy? It is evident that the claims advanced by the admirers of Japan that it had no other basis for its actions than protection of itself and China from Russia are absurd. Is it then due to nothing but the natural aggressiveness of a war loving people?

How Japan Is Governed.

The answer to the question is found in an examination of the government of Japan and its position with respect to the surrounding nations.

Japan, while nominally a constitutional monarchy, is in reality an oligarchy of which the elder statesmen are virtually the rulers. Up to the present they have directed the course of Japan and have been able to do so without taking the people into their confidence.

When it was decided that, to hold its own against the white man, Japan must adopt the material part of his civilization it was soon seen that while in population Japan was not far behind the first class powers in territory, in commerce and financially it was hopelessly outclassed. While the population was sufficient, it was so crowded and increaing so rapidly that an outlet was becoming urgently essential.

Density of Population.

This will be better understood when it is remembered that Japan's 50,000,000, increasing at the rate of 2 per cent yearly, are crowded into a country about the size of Montana.

To add to the difficulty of the situation, the rapid increase of population, coupled with the fact that, due to its mountainous character, but one-tenth of the country is fit for cultivation, meant that sooner or later the importation of food would be a necessity.

In looking around to see what nation offered a similar example, Japan naturally picked out Great Britain. Here was a nation similarly situated, but with land for its overflowing population to settle on and a commerce which had made it a creditor nation and given it first place financially. Colonies planted over the face of the earth had given it the necessary land and many of its markets. Within itself it possessed the iron and coal necessary for manufacture on a large scale at home.

Need of More Territory.

The products borne by British merchantmen to the markets of the world completed the tale of prosperity. Naval supremacy on the sea had given it the colonies. These colonies in turn furnished the necessary bases for the fleets to operate from, thus giving strategic control of the trade routes of the world. There was but one weak point, the food necessary for its population and raw material for its manufactures had to be imported.

Judging from England's position, then, Japan needed land for the surplus population, manufactures to build up trade, ships to carry produce in, markets to sell them in, and the naval fleet with the necessary bases to operate from to insure its predominance on those trade routes which are essential to its commerce.

In addition to having to import food and raw material, the importation of iron would be necessary. If it could add territories which would furnish these essentials then indeed would its position be secure.

Position of Other Powers.

In embarking on a course which would lead to the acquisition of the necessary territory and commerce with its consequent financial independence, it was necessary to consider the neighboring powers who might interfere or be interfered with to such an extent that armed force would be necessary to overcome the obstacle.

Russia, China, and the United States were the three nearest. The population of Russia was more than three times that of Japan and increasing at the same rate. That of China was nearly nine times as great and as far as could be told increasing at a rate of not less than that of Japan. The population of the United States, almost double that of Japan, was increasing 3 per cent a year to Japan's 2 per cent. Each year then these nations would grow relatively stronger and stronger than Japan, and other things being equal Japan's chance of being able to engage successfully in an armed conflict with any one of them would become less and less. Therefore, to carry out its program Japan needed, in addition to its other wants, more people. By adding territory already peopled by a similar race it could gain the desired strength.

Precedents Found in History.

There were ample historical precedents for this point of view. The virility of the American people showed that similar races mix readily and with excellent results.

The history of Prussia showed that peoples of the same stock can be united in a strong nation even though force be used.

There was one more lesson to be learned from the history of the German states. By failing to achieve their unity until considerably after their rivals had succeeded in doing so they arrived on the scene so late that there was no unoccupied land left for their surplus population and they were at a serious disadvantage in securing the commerce necessary for their development.

Evrything pointed then to the need for an aggresive policy pushed as rapidly as possible. With the power in their own hands and no necessity of convincing or appealing to the people there was no obstacle to the immediate beginning of such a policy.

"Open Door" Policy Ends.

There being no parties with divergent views, such as those in America, there was nothing to prevent the policy being continuous. Such differences of opinion as exist among the elder statesmen are due to different views as to the best methods to be pursued and not as to the end to be attained.

The annexation of Corea added 10,000,000 to the population of Japan. Lower Manchuria will add another 10,000,000. Foo Kien province would bring 23,000,000.

The abolition of the "open door" policy of equal opportunities for all and the substitution of the "sphere of influence" policy, or special privileges in certain territories, means a great advantage in trade.

Increase in territory and population at the expense of China means not only increased strength for Japan but a corresponding decrease and therefore weakening of China, the rival most to be feared.

While an alliance with Russia means sharing the spoil, it brings with it powerful support instead of equally powerful opposition.

Result in Other Lines.

Japan then, by its policy in China, has gained in territory, population, and in trade. What has been the result, however, in other lines?

Manchuria, Corea, Formosa, and the lower half of Saghalien furnish no outlet for the surplus population. The standard of living of the Chinaman and of the Corean is so much lower than that of the Japanese that so far Japanese immigrants have been unable successfully to compete with them.

Formosa is tropical. The Japanese, essentially a northern race, do not prosper as natives of a tropical country. Neither do they take readily to residence in such countries. Saghalien requires pioneer work. The Japanese emigrant wishes to go to a country where the reward is more immediate.

The enforcement of their policy on the continent of Asia has cost the Japanese considerable financially. They had hoped to straighten this out by a large indemnity from Russia at the close of the war. Their financial situation has necessitated burdensome taxation which naturally has not made for contentment.

Imports Exceed the Exports.

While the Japanese manufactures have steadily increased, while their trade has increased and while their merchant marine has, aided by the government, increased until it covers all the principal trade routes of the Pacific ocean, the balance of trade is against Japan. Apparently this balance against Japan is increasing. This increase is primarily due to the greatly increased importation of food and raw material.

The mere fact of the balance of trade being against a nation does not necessarily count. To get at the truth the financial situation must also be considered. When a nation is a debtor nation and can pay its debts abroad by an excess of exports over imports its position is sound. This is the position of the United States. When, however, it is a debtor nation and in addition has to pay for an excess of imports over exports, which is the position of Japan, then its position is not a desirable one.

Needs Outlet for People.

Thus we see that Japan still needs an outlet for its surplus population; it more than ever needs its own territory from which to draw its foodstuffs and raw material, and above all it needs that control of markets and of trade routes which will make competition with it hard if not impossible. All of this means the giving up of territory and trade by other nations.

There is but one means of accomplishing this, and that is by war.

Failing these, Japan must frankly abandon its efforts to remain a first class power by largely giving up its army and navy, and thus recouping its finances. This would mean being subordinate to China, Russia, and the United States, and the annual expatriation of large numbers of its subjects. Whether the present financial gain would be commensurate with the ultimate commercial loss due to its consequent weak position is a question.

Which will Japan choose? Choose it must, and soon. For along with existing troubles there is a new cloud on the horizon caused by these very troubles. That cloud is the fact that there is finally appearing in Japan a party which wishes a really constitutional government.

Signs of Coming Revolt.

The disorder in the diet and the popular support accorded it, all occasioned by the appointment of Prince Katsura as premier, shows that the time is rapidly approaching when the people of Japan will no longer willingly submit to the burdens imposed on them by the elder statesmen.

How will these burdens be removed? By a successful war making Japan in reality a first class power or by frank acceptance of a position as a second class power.

But, say some, how can war bring relief? A successful war prosecuted against the right power means more territory with a consequent lessening of congestion and a national supply of food and raw material. It means the possession of the points necessary to give the strategic and consequent commercial control of trade routes. All this means a balance of trade for instead of against Japan. A successful war means a large indemnity with the consequent payment of debts.

Increase of Army and Navy.

Each year since the Russo-Japanese war Japan has spent more money on its army and navy than in any year prior to that war. Both these forces have been and are being materially increased. As a result of a dispute among the elder statesmen as to whether the forces in Corea should be increased or the money saved the cabinet of the Marquis Saionji, which was in favor of economy, has fallen, and the Prince Katsura, the advocate above all others of aggressiveness, is once more premier.

There can be little doubt as to which policy has been chosen.

GANGSTER STABS BAD MAN TO DEATH

LAUGHS WHEN ARRESTED

Culprit and Brother, Locked Up, Cheerfully Say "We Should Worry."

A knife thrust through the heart yesterday put a sudden end to the career of Walter "Buck" Masterson, bad man. He was caught unprepared and disposed of by "Ed" Barrett, out on bail and awaiting trial for a murder last summer.

Masterson was with two brothers in Harry Treusch's saloon at 3415 Lincoln avenue, on which the police keep an eye generally. Barrett stepped up and with a knife in one hand picked a quarrel with one of the brothers, who ordered him to "put down the knife and fight fair." "Buck" interposed.

"You want some?" inquired Barrett, and lunged. Buck tottered forward, clutching at the knife hilt, then fell coughing to the sawdust covered floor, tried to pick himself up, and rolled over dead. The brothers stooped over him and the crowd hurried toward the exits, Barrett and his brother Henry with them.

Dammann Arrests Brothers.

When Lieut. John Dammann of North Robey street arrived they were gone. He arrested the surviving Mastersons and ordered Sergt. John Sheehan of North Halsted street to take four detectives to a house at 2224 North Halsted street. There both Barretts were arrested without resistance.

"We should worry," they remarked, and went to jail laughing.

"Buck" Masterson was arrested for burglary three months ago. Barrett's record is more extensive. Also his father is serving twenty years for murder, the police say, and two brothers are serving time at Joliet.

The quarrel is understood to have been over the wife of one of the Mastersons, who, Barrett said, was "tipping off" the police to the Barretts' movements. Treusch's place is patronized by various persons of police acquaintance, and it was stated a revocation of his license would be asked.

Blanche Williams, 1923 Bissell street, sweetheart of "Ed" Barrett, was also arrested. She was in a rear room of the saloon when the stabbing occurred. Treusch, who denied witnessing the stabbing, did see it, according to the Williams girl.

She was arrested by Policemen Pape and Loftus.

"Slim Jim" Taylor Arrested.

Detectives Alcock and Johnson of Desplaines street made a quick arrest of William Taylor, traveling under the noms de guerre of "Slim Jim" and "Cripple Jim," in the morning. On Saturday night Taylor shot and killed Ed Williams in Sullivan's saloon at 823 West Jackson boulevard. After failing to find him that night, the detectives went to his residence, 230 South Sangamon street, and camped out.

At [illegible] o'clock a face peered from a hole in the back fence, and a moment later a foot was stuck through cautiously. The detectives waited until Taylor was wedged in the narrow opening and then rushed him. They took him without difficulty and led him back to the house. Under the back steps was found his revolver.

Taylor's employer, Jacob Meyers, who is said to have quarreled with Williams, was also arrested.

A street fight over a hatchet yesterday may result fatally to Joseph Zolinsky, 1542 Cornell street, slashed by Stanley Nowak, a carpenter living at 1800 West Huron street. When the men were separated, both covered with blood, Zolinsky was hardly recognizable because of six deep razor cuts.

WILLIAM KIRBY SIDLEY DEAD.

Former President of Wholesale Hat and Cap House in Chicago Succumbs in California.

William Kirby Sidley, former president of Keith Bros. & Co., pioneers in the wholesale hat and cap trade, died yesterday at Coronado Beach, Cal. He was 75 years old. He was born in Yeoghal, Ireland, and as a boy went to Boston and later to Milwaukee, coming to Chicago in 1862. He went to California in December because of failing health. Death was due to cerebral hemorrhage. He was a member of the Union League club. He is survived by the widow and sons, William P., Frank C., and Thomas H., all of Chicago; Dr. Frederick K., Peoria; Dr. John S., Racine, Wis., and Mrs. Henry S. Foster, Denver. The funeral will be held on Friday at Christ church, Twenty-fourth street and Michigan avenue, and interment will be at Oakwoods.

Girl's Burns Prove Fatal.

Theresa Middona, who was 4 years old and lived at 125 East One Hundred and Seventeenth place, died yesterday at Pullman hospital of burns received while playing around a bonfire at the rear of 11735 South Michigan avenue.

New President of Merit Reform.

Russell Whitman

Attorney Russell Whitman was chosen president of the Civil Service Reform association of Chicago to succeed Robert Catherwood by the executive committee on Saturday. Mr. Whitman, who was the unanimous choice of the committee, is an advocate of practical tests for the selection of civil service commissioners. He also believes attorneys filling appointive positions should be selected through tests of experience and ability.

"I am very eager," said Mr. Whitman at night, "that civil service commissioners should not only subject everybody else to a test, but also that they themselves should be required to show their own fitness for so important a position as civil service commissioner.

"Their selection as at present is the last vestige of the spoils system and I believe they and attorneys in appointive positions should be selected through a practical test covering experience and ability.

"Any change in administration tests the laws previously enacted," said Mr. Whitman, "and I am not unmindful that the civil service laws in Illinois are to be severely tested because of recent change of administration. I want to aid in every possible way in maintaining and enforcing laws looking toward efficient public service."

OBITUARY.

NERE CATELLIER, one of the men who helped to rebuild Chicago after the fire of 1871, will be buried today from the family residence, 2036 West Congress street. He was born in the city of Quebec and came to Chicago while the fire ruins were still smoldering. Having worked at the carpenter trade in Canada, he took contracts for building stores and residences, and was one of the big contractors of that day. The funeral will be from the Notre Dame church. Burial will be at Mount Carmel.

MRS. CATHERINE FOLEY, mother of the Rev. William M. Foley, pastor of St. Ambrose Roman Catholic church at Forty-seventh street and Ellis avenue, died yesterday. She was 76 years old and a native of Chicago. Her husband, Lawrence Foley, who was killed in an accident sixteen years ago, was the pioneer undertaker of the northwest side. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 9:30 a. m., at St. Ambrose's church.

MRS. BARBARA BONNEY died yesterday at her residence, 1861 North Leavitt street. She was born in Germany eighty-six years ago and lived in Chicago for half a century. She was the mother of Mrs. Christian Paschen Sr., and grandmother of the Paschen brothers, building contractors.

POLICE SERGT. JOHN SIBLEY, 47 years old, of the New City station, died early yesterday at his residence, 6423 Normal avenue, following a short illness. He is survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. U. J. Murphy. Funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon in St. Bernard church.

MRS. MARY F. BLAIR'S funeral will take place at 3 p. m. today. She died Saturday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Chauncey Keep, 2825 Prairie avenue. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Keep and Mrs. Cyrus Adams, and a son, Lyman Blair of Greenville, Me.

JOKER SUSPECTED IN BEMIS' REPORT

ABSURD, ASSERTS SUNNY.

Clause Merely Stops Gossips from Monopolizing Phones, He Says.

Is there a "joker" in the Bemis report on telephone rates which is to be the foundation for a new ordinance?

Members of the council committee on gas, oil, and electric light, to which the report was made on Saturday, declare there is. President Bernard E. Sunny of the Chicago Telephone company and L. G. Richardson, counsel for the corporation, insist there is nothing of the sort to be found in it.

Talk of a "joker" first started when the report by Prof. Bemis was read to the committee.

Here's the Worry Clause.

The clause worrying the aldermen is the last part of concession No. 4. The whole sentence reads as follows: "The right to make contracts for and to furnish special service or regular service for shorter periods than one year, and to make and enforce reasonable rules for the use of telephones, and the conduct of the traffic."

In the last eighteen words is hidden the joker, the aldermen declare.

Ald. Sitts, chairman of the gas, oil, and electric light committee, declared the sentence "looked queer."

Bowler Also Suspects Joker.

Alderman James B. Bowler of the nineteenth ward, also expressed the fear that the telephone company had a joker carefully hidden among the concessions they demand.

"It looks to me as though there is a joker in the last part of the fourth concession," he said. "As it is worded it relegates almost unlimited powers to the company which are now held by the city."

Alderman Eugene Block of the ninth ward declared that not only did he fear a joker was hidden in the report but if the fourth concession is granted it will be a step backwards for the city.

"The city should retain the right to make and enforce reasonable rules," he said. "It is entirely wrong to turn this over to the company. It is a step backward and I shouldn't be surprised if this clause contains a joker."

President Sunny of the telephone company denied there was anything remotely resembling a "joker" hidden in the report.

Joker? Absurd, Says Sunny.

"There's no joker in the report. That's absurd," he said. "That clause 'to make and enforce reasonable rules' refers principally to a rule we want to put in force which will reduce the time limit of conversation on party lines. It will put a check to gossiping and tying up the lines. There are several other rules we need in force."

POLICEMAN WOUNDS HIS WIFE.

Mrs. Charles Heeney, [illegible] Gilpin place, nearly lost her life yesterday through a "didn't know it was loaded" incident.

Heeney is a policeman at the Fillmore station. He bought a new revolver and was showing it to his brother-in-law, William Cowen, when his wife jokingly said: "Put a cartridge in the gun and shoot me."

Heeney, thinking there were empty chambers in the gun, snapped it. There was a shot, a cry, and the blood streamed from above Mrs. Heeney's left eye, where a bullet entered.

Heeney and his brother-in-law became frantic. Mrs. Heeney kept her nerve and walked to Reisman's pharmacy, Taylor and Loomis streets, where an ambulance was summoned. Dr. A. Levinson, 1400 West Taylor street, was called, and stanched the flow of blood. Mrs. Heeney was taken to the county hospital. She will recover.

'TRILBY'S HERE!' POLICE HOAX

SLEUTHS DRAW WEAPONS.

Enter Saloon, Find Placid Group; Duped by Phone Call.

A patrol wagon filled with patrolmen rushed out to get "Trilby" Thompson last night. They heard that he was dying. The location of "Trilby" and his "dying" moments was given to the police of the Maxwell street station as the saloon of Thomas Stanton, 1557 West Twelfth street.

The telephone message giving the "tip" said a policeman and "Trilby" had fought a duel in the saloon. The policeman, according to the voice over the telephone, tried to avenge the hints of cowardice on the part of the police in their search for Thompson. He died in the effort.

Three Placid Beer Imbibers.

His comrades at the station had visions of avenging the death of one of their number. Also, wasn't there a reward of $500 for "Trilby," and how easy it would be with the escaped convict dying.

Three hungry men were eating smoked fish and drinking beer when the policemen, with drawn revolvers, burst into the saloon. The bartender was smoking a cigaret.

"Where's 'Trilby?'" the leader asked.

Report Hoax of Rival Bar Owner.

The source of the alarm is said to have come from the saloon of James Barren, 1700 West Twelfth street. Business rivalry between Stanton and Barren is believed to be the reason. Barren will be asked to explain to Capt. Gleason of the Maxwell street station this morning.

DR. SAMUEL WILLARD DIES; NOTED EDUCATOR AND AUTHOR.

Hero of "Underground Railway" Slaves Station Case Succumbs to Long Illness at Age of 91.

Dr. Samuel Willard, 91 years old, soldier, author, and educator, died last night at his residence, 1526 Fargo avenue. He had been ill several months.

Dr. Willard was born in Lunenberg, Vt., Dec. 30, 1821. He came to Illinois when he was 10 years old. He graduated from the Illinois state college in 1843. In 1851 he married Miss Harriet Jane Edgar.

He came into prominence with his father, Julius Willard, when they established a "station" for runaway slaves who escaped by the "underground railroad." The case was taken to the Supreme court by Julius Willard. The decision was given against the Willards, after a fight of many years.

During the civil war he enlisted in the Ninety-seventh Illinois regiment.

Dr. Willard came to Chicago in 1870.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Henry Hiestand, Mrs. W. R. Putnam, and Miss Mary Frances Willard; two sons, John F. and Charles Dwight Willard of Los Angeles, Cal. He also leaves eleven grandchildren and four great grandchildren. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

COMMERCIAL CAR SHOW OPENS TODAY

"Fool Proof" Mechanism, Pulmotor Patrol, and Giant Tractors Among the Exhibits.

BY REED L. PARKER.

Approximately 400 commercial vehicles, the product of seventy-six manufacturers, will be exhibited to the public at the Coliseum, First regiment armory, and Wilson building, today, the second week of the thirteenth annual automobile show being scheduled to open at 10 o'clock. The show is of greatest importance to the public. No exposition this year has had so complete a representation of a great utilitarian if prosaic industry.

That there will be numerous novelties is assured. There will be special emergency wagons for use by gas companies, equipped with the new pulmotor for bringing back to life asphyxiated persons, tower wagons for repairings breaks in trolley wires, motor tractors for hauling hook and ladder trucks. In fact, there will be every kind of truck for every kind of business.

Packards at the Armory.

Two companies, the Packard and White, have each taken large space in the armory, instead of remaining in the Coliseum. Both are showing the latest innovations in power wagon construction.

The Packard trucks offer attractive and interesting features, none of which is more important than that which protects the owner against careless or reckless drivers. Three of the most important preventives include automatic governor of speed, automatic spark regulator, and the splash system of oiling.

In speaking of these advantages C. R. Norton, truck sales agent of the Packard Motor Car company, said: "The owner of a Packard truck, or fleet of trucks, is now able to control the speed at which these trucks may be driven, owing to a sealed governor which regulates the speed to a certain number of miles per hour.

"The speed governor is properly adjusted at the factory and sealed before the truck is shipped. It regulates the flow of gas into the cylinders in such a way that when the motor is run up to the required speed it is impossible to drive the truck faster without tampering with the governor.

Cars Are Made "Fool Proof."

"The automatic timing device regulates the spark, advancing or retarding it, in accordance with the speed of the motor. This advance or retard has been figured out on absolutely accurate basis, so as to obtain the greatest amount of power from the least amount of gasoline at all times, doing away with the ill effects of a hand regulated spark.

"The oiling system is fool proof. It is a splash system, the use of which is made possible owing to the fact that high speed is not desired in a motor truck."

Every manufacturer claims the motor truck is a cheaper means of transportation than the horse and wagon, and special efforts will be made during the show to make this plain. Companies making trucks have kept close watch on the feature of saving, as is testified to by the experience of C. W. Hellen, president of the Dart Manufacturing company, makers of delivery wagons and trucks.

Found Cheaper than Feeding Horse.

"Mr. James Merkel, a sheet metal contractor of St. Louis, showed us that the upkeep on his delivery truck was $94 less for a period of four months than the maintenance of his horse and wagon for an equal period. The saving doubles and triples itself when a number of horses and wagons are replaced by auto trucks."

The figures presented by Mr. Merkel follow:

LIGHT DELIVERY TRUCK.

Total cost for four months:

Gasoline	$ 16.00
Lubricating oil	2.00
Cup grease	1.50
Alcohol	1.20
Total	$ 20.70

HORSE AND WAGON.

Total cost for four months:

Board	$ 90.00
Shoeing	12.00
Repairs on wagon and harness	12.00
Total	$114.00

TOO MUCH ADVICE SPOILS THE AUTO

Wardrop Says Motor Wagon Builders Should Be Let Alone by Customers.

TIP FOR AMBITIOUS FIRMS

Asserts Companies in Other Business Cannot Manage Such Work.

BY WALTER WARDROP.

There is more consideration given to the engineering of the motor wagon than is good for the buyer's peace of mind or business. It is quite proper for the purchaser to take a reasonable interest in the visible features of construction, but when he affects a competence to deal professionally with the hidden design principles he becomes a victim of a common vanity. The shoemaker should stick to his last.

The revocation of many a decision to apply machines has been caused by the presumptuous folly of amateurs who could not be persuaded that motors will ever be wholly satisfactory until their pet theories of design are incorporated in current manufacture.

It never occurs to buyers of this type that antecedent training excludes the majority from considering anything but the most elementary properties of mechanical transportation. They are coached and coaxed by salesmen to believe that it is easy to comprehend the finer mysteries of mechanics, and almost before the tutors are aware of it the scholars have acquired the jargon of professionals and are offering advice instead of accepting it. The matter would not be worth mentioning if opinion so formed was reserved exclusively for private relation.

Full of Suggestion.

These critical people are as full of suggestion for improvement in design as their recommendations are as empty of practical value. They itch to advise all who come near them, and may be contemplating the purchase of machines. Nothing suits them. They abominate standard practice. They sigh for what is impractical and undiscovered. The most vagrant forms of invention attract and hold their attention.

Always they seem to have an air of authority in chattering of new and untried devices, ascribing the most extraordinary merit to that which is suspected of being mechanically worthless, and so retarding the free employment of what is orthodox and worth while. It is in this atmosphere the unrecognized inventor flaps his wings and crows.

Manufacturers of motor wagons are not alarmed by these obstructionists. Experienced salesmen give them a wide berth. If ever their company is sought by professionals, it is with the deliberate intention of demonstrating that the economy of the machine is a derivative of its present engineering, and not a defect of it.

Points to Firm Vanity.

But this is not the only outcome of a too free discussion of engineering between buyers and sellers. It has also encouraged some concerns to consider the manufacture of their own machines. This is a form of vanity peculiar to big houses, which like to contemplate the making of everything they cannot cheaply buy.

One of the local packing houses is preparing to try an experiment of this sort. It can hardly be successful, for as the competitive incentive in manufacture will be lacking the design of the model must always lag behind the fashion of the times.

By buying parts and assembling them any one can make a machine that will travel on the road and bear loads, but competition in production is required to make models which will be as efficient and economical as the period and the demands of transportation require.

Doubtless motor wagon makers could smoke hams or pickle meat, but the methods and processes they would employ in doing so would not bear close inspection. And it is likely the product would be fit only for the cat.

Tells of Experiment That Failed.

Some years ago one of the large interstate express companies, which operates a fleet of motor wagons worth close to $1,000,000, was falsely inspired with the same idea. It would control the manufacture of the machines it was about to apply. The first lot of 150 were built to the specifications of the company's engineer. All were distinctly inferior to the regular issue of the factory in which they were produced. The experiment went no further, and there never has been any talk of reviving it.

NEW ROAD TO PROGRESS AND PROSPERITY.
OLD ROAD INEFFICIENCY, FAILURE AND STAGNATION.

MAN first carried a load on his back; then he dragged it over the ground. Then he invented the wheel; and drew the load in a cart. Next, man tamed a wild beast, and made the beast haul the cart.

Then followed the ox; but the ox was too slow. Next came the horse; but the horse could not keep up with the pace of modern business. Now comes the motor truck—a creature of steel.

A Creature of Steel

The Alco truck is a mechanical creature that hauls heavy loads faster than the horse. It is the outgrowth of a 250 years' search to find a substitute for the beast of burden.

Ever since man invented the wheel its coming has been expected. It is a device of Destiny.

Its only reason for existing to-day is to save. It saves time, saves labor, saves money—it has been known even to save a man's business. If it did not save, it would not exist long. Modern business would quickly dispense with it.

It has saved because there are close on to 1000 of its kind in use—and the number is is constantly increasing.

It is proving its economy in over 108 lines of business. It is meeting this supreme test daily—in almost every State in America.

It is hauling cane in Cuba, fresh fruit in Porto Rico, rice in the Philippines, pineapples in Hawaii, oranges in California, ore in Alaska, produce in Long Island, textiles in Massachusetts, cotton in Alabama, groceries in Ohio, milk in Boston, meat in Chicago and trunks in New York City.

It has performed its tasks well, for its sales record in re-orders is 62 per cent.

Sixty-five per cent of its kind are being operated by large concerns listed by Bradstreet's or Dun at $1,000,000 or over—concerns that rarely purchase "unknowns."

Its early life is spent in large foundries, among huge hammers and extensive heat treating plants, among automatic machines and as it grows up it receives the severest of tests of chemical and physical laboratories. It is well built and strong. It has power. Its "rolling rubber feet" never tire. It is well fitted for the bumps of the world.

It goes out upon its career backed by a company, capitalized at $50,000,000, which has a transportation experience as movers of the world's goods that dates back to 1835.

Take a second look at this car

The International Commercial Car meets the needs of business men everywhere. It reduces the expense of making deliveries. It shortens the time required for making trips with tools or equipment. It easily takes the place of two single wagons, and of three where the average haul is a mile or more.

The International Commercial Car

is powerful and has road clearance enough to travel anywhere that horses can go. It is ready to work twenty-four hours a day if necessary, and will do as much work in the last hour as in the first. If worn, or injured by accident, it is easily repaired and made as good as new.

An International Motor Car may be the means of largely increasing your present business. At any rate, it costs you nothing to find out what this car will do for you. See the International Commercial Car at the Chicago Motor Truck Show, Section E, First Regiment Armory, February 8 to 15, or write to us for catalog.

PRAISE LINCOLN AS MOSES OF '61

Ministers Use Sunday Dedicated to Martyr's Memory to Carry Lessons.

RELIGION MOTHER-MADE.

Churchgoing Chicago yesterday observed Lincoln Sunday. Places of worship of practically every denomination were filled with men and women who listened reverently to sermons on the great war president.

The hundred and first anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln will be celebrated on Wednesday by appropriate ceremonies throughout the city. Being a state holiday, public buildings, schools, and banks will be closed.

Holds Memorial Service.

At the Grace English Evangelical Lutheran church the Rev. H. H. Van Meter delivered an address on "Lincoln and His Religion" at a Lincoln memorial service under the auspices of the Lake View court of the Guardians of Liberty.

He quoted Lincoln's words, "All that I am and hope to be I owe to my angel mother."

"Lincoln's own mother lived to train her boy only until he was 10 years old," said Dr. Van Meter, "teaching him life's earliest lessons at her knee.

"He was born in a pen rather than a stable, for it consisted of posts driven into the ground, with a roof but no floor. No doors nor windows nor furniture adorned that abode, and only such cooking utensils as abject poverty could provide. But any home with such a mother becomes a holy of holies to her children and surpasses all our modern theological seminaries beyond compare.

Bible Boyhood Inspiration.

"Its library being limited to the bible, little Abraham and his sister Sarah learned the letters and to read therefrom, as it was their only reader. So its spirit inspired the earnest soul of the boy who was to become the modern Moses, to lead millions of slaves into liberty, and guide 'government of the people, by the people, for the people' from destruction, through the most terrible struggle the world ever saw, into success never before dreamed of.

"Abraham Lincoln was a truer christian than those church members who denounced him as an 'unbeliever,' for all alone outside of any denomination his heart held true to the truth and his voice rang out in clarion notes for its defense, and he it was who stamped the coin of our country with the motto, 'In God We Trust,' in the darkest hours our nation ever knew since the stars on our banner first shone forth in glory.

"He is the world's hero. While he lived the whole world wondered. When he died the whole world wept."

Likened to Moses.

Dr. Tobias Schanfarber, rabbi of Kehilath Anshe Mayriv, Indiana avenue and Thirty-third street, also compared Lincoln with the great Hebrew prophet, Moses.

"By a strange coincidence the anniversary of the birth of Lincoln occurs almost simultaneously this year with the traditional day of the birth of Moses," he said.

"Moses and Lincoln, the world's great emancipators, had much in common and seemed to be commissioned into the world by God to fulfill transcendent and divine tasks. Both were born in trying and troublous times, but by dint of heroic perseverance rose superior to the untoward circumstances that confronted them. Both were of prophetic fire and genius. Both unified a dismembered people into a homogeneous nation. Both were statesmen of the highest type, forgetting self in the higher good they wrought to humanity.

"Both were decried and denounced in their day. The one was Israel's greatest Jew, the other was America's first American."

Tells "Why Lincoln Was Loved."

At California Avenue Congregational church the Rev. Frank L. Hayes spoke on "Why Lincoln Was Loved." The Rev. David T. Magill spoke on "Real Americans" at Calvary Baptist church. "The Drama of Abraham Lincoln" was the subject of the Rev. Frank C. Bruner's sermon at Ogden Park Methodist Episcopal church.

The Rev. J. H. Odgers spoke on "The Qualities That Made Lincoln" at the Epworth Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. Jenkin Lloyd Jones discussed "The Americanism of Abraham Lincoln in the Light of Present Day Problems" at South Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal church. The Rev. Ralph D. Kearns preached on "The Life Lessons from Abraham Lincoln" at Calvary Presbyterian church.

Children Celebrate Wednesday.

The school children of Chicago will hold Lincoln exercises in different sections of the city on Wednesday, although the plans are not on as extensive a scale as last year, when the Lincoln centenary was observed. Supt. Mrs. Ella Flagg Young has been in charge of the Lincoln day plans and representatives of patriotic organizations have volunteered to send speakers and arrange musical programs.

The different Grand Army posts of the city all have outlined programs for the day. Services will be held at the Grand Army hall in Memorial hall at the public library by the Grand Army Memorial association. The Rev. Herman Page will deliver an address on "Lincoln" and Col. George V. Lauman will recite Lincoln's Gettysburg address. President F. A. Smith of the association also will deliver an address.

Mrs. Martha Duff Lee Haynie.

Born June 3, 1826. Died Feb. 9, 1913.

Mrs. Martha Duff Lee Haynie, 86 years old, for twenty years a professor in the State Normal school, died at the residence of her son, William Duff Haynie, 4636 Drexel boulevard, yesterday. She was a native of Danville, Ky., and the widow of Dr. Abner Haynie, a Chicago physician.

Mrs. Haynie was born June 3, 1826. She was one of the first teachers of the State Normal school at Normal, Ill. She taught there until 1886. She was the teacher of many prominent men. President Edmund J. James of the University of Illinois was one of her pupils. Funeral services will be held at her son's residence on Tuesday afternoon. The body will be sent to Morganfield, Ky.

BEWARE, MOTHERS, OF THEORY

Dr. Nicely Thinks Grandmothers Best Guide for 1913 Wives.

Must Be Good, Industrious, Saving, but Always in Moderation.

"Wives of this generation should not model themselves after their mothers, but after their grandmothers," said the Rev. J. W. Nicely yesterday in a sermon at Crerar Memorial Presbyterian church.

"Mothers of the brides of today are too theoretical. They acquire their housewifely knowledge from books, while the practical grandmother merely consulted the book, and her ideas about running the house and bringing up the family were practical.

"Bad Wives Millstones."

"A good wife is a crown jewel—a bad one is a millstone about the neck of her husband. A wife who gossips about the defects of her husband is striking a blow at the happiness of the home. A good wife is wisely industrious—a lazy wife is a hopeless handicap—she is busy about everything except the home.

"No true husband wants to make of his wife a laundress or a scrubwoman, but this does not mean she should assume the position of an enameled doll or an ethereal angel feeding on ambrosia. She is not a creation of the poets or the novelist's fancy. She is made of real flesh and blood which ought not to be hurt by industrious housework. The good wife has time to take care of her home and family and still spare some time to stretch out her hands for the poor. But always her first work is in the home. Too often the mothers of today make their clubs first, while the grandmother used to make the home preëminent.

Must Not Be Wasteful.

"A good wife must be a good economist, but not parsimonious. This saving instinct is the true foundation of the home. In these times of the high cost of living a wasteful wife is a menace to the home. No man can beat the high cost of living or get ahead, if his wife is extravagant.

"A good wife is not extravagant in dress. The best dresses are modest dresses. The modest dresses are the cheapest dresses. It is the immodest ones that are the most expensive.

PLANS A COMMUNITY CENTER.

Evanston Civic Organizations Will Make Special Effort to Enlist Interest of Girls.

Mrs. Emma Reckitt, chairman of a committee representing various civic organizations in Evanston, yesterday announced a community center will be established March 1. A special effort will be made to attract girls. Negotiations are now being made for the employment of a woman director.

SHOOTS BOY WITH AIR RIFLE.

Henry Martin, 5 years old, 1819 Ellen street, was shot through the nose yesterday with an air rifle by Max Schecker, 12 years old, of the same address. They were playing with the rifle.

CITES PERILS IN "MACHINERY AGE"

Dr. Henry Van Dyke Says Idolatry of Wonderful Mechanisms Is Injurious to Race.

SEES MEN DETERIORATE.

Speaker Before Sunday Evening Club Says Workers Are Losing Efficiency.

All Chicago seemed determined last evening to hear Dr. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton, poet, essayist, critic, recently voted to be one of the "Immortals." He was the speaker before the Sunday Evening club.

Within fifteen minutes after the doors of Orchestra hall, which seats 2,800, were opened at 6:30 o'clock not a seat was vacant and hundreds were turned away.

Dr. Van Dyke's subject was "The Gospel for an Age of Machinery." The significance of the title came from the fact that Dr. Van Dyke is the author of two volumes, "The Gospel for a World of Doubt" and "The Gospel for a World of Sin."

"What is the gospel for an age of machinery?" he said. "What place and mission has Christianity in such an age? What is the message of Christ to a civilization which more than ever rests upon machines and inclines to give them an unconscious worship?

"A city is a magician's wonder box. Farming is done by gigantic fairies, who bring water from the mountains and harvest the wheat with huge steel fingers. It took 366,000 men thirty years to build the great pyramid 481 feet high. The Metropolitan Life tower in New York, nearly twice as high, is run up by a few hundred men in a few months, 400 times as useful as the great pyramid was.

"The sea path that Columbus traced in two months with his tiny caravels is traversed by floating hotels carrying the population of a whole village with the velocity of a railway train.

Comforts Widely Distributed.

"Undoubtedly these blessings are considerable. What we call the comforts of civilization were never so widely distributed. It has been said with truth that the dwelling of the modern artisan has luxuries unknown to the palace of the medieval noble. Sanitary inventions have added from three to five years to the average term of human life in the last century.

"One man with modern machinery can do the work of ten. One man also with machinery can kill a thousand. He presses a button and dynamite does the rest. The child also presses a button and the sun takes a picture for her. The woman also presses a button and the tame lightning lights her room, or runs her sewing machine, or pumps water for her washing, or sweeps her floor. It is wonderful, it is exciting, it is in some respects exceedingly convenient to live in an age of machinery.

"But there is another side to it all—a side which we have not yet fully recognized.

"First, there is the transformation which the coming of all these machines has wrought in the field of human labor. Tools have become more perfect, more costly, more efficient. Naturally they have taken the place of human workers by increasing the amount of work which a pair of hands can perform. You cannot help—you can't stop it. We must take it into account.

"Second, the age of machinery has brought with it at least the first warnings of a physical deterioration in large classes of mankind. From cities of England, from France, from Italy, from Germany comes the same complaint of a decline in the stamina of the race. In our American cities competent observers report disquieting signs. You must go back in the country, and far back too, among the mountains and the forests, and the great plains, to find men who can stand everything and take care of themselves on a desert island. Not many around New York whom I should trust to play Robinson Crusoe. The modern man lives a little longer on the average than his ancestors, but he is less active, less enduring, and less efficient, except when you take him with his machine.

Sees Dangers in Machine Age.

"There is a real danger of our becoming dependent upon the things that have been invented to help us. How else shall we explain the loss of skill in handwork? Men can no longer build such cathedrals or make such furniture, or even make shoes that will wear as long as they used to, as they did in the old times. How else shall we account for the increase of nervous diseases and of insanity all over the world? Man loses his balance, the poise of his threefold nature amid his whirling machinery. He is caught by his own engines and maimed or shattered.

"But the third peril of an age of machinery is the greatest of all. It is the temptation to idolatry of the machine. Who can doubt that it is in the air of our times, that it has taken hold of the multitude, that it affects us all? There was never an age so proud of its many inventions, and so subservient to them, as this twentieth century. The conquest of natural resources, of the hidden energies of earth and sea, and finally the partial conquest of the air, has gone to the world's head like wine. It is crazy about it. The aim of life is found in wealth and power. And wealth and power come to us from our machines. Glory to machinery!"

Tel-Electric Piano Player
IN interpreting a musical masterpiece, your attention should not be divided between head, hand and footwork as is required by pneumatic players.
The Tel-Electric is operated entirely by electricity. The feet are idle, the mind is free—even the hand work is so simplified that there is no distraction of attention from the problems of interpretation.
It is brains and fingers which make for artistic piano playing. The Tel-Electric supplies electric fingers, in action wonderfully like human fingers. This action plays the piano in a natural, normal way, from the key board, not from the interior as does the pneumatic. Just consider these exclusive Tel-Electric features:—
Operated by electricity—most perfect mechanically as well as most artistic musically—is not directly attached to the piano—will play to you, or is played by you as you please—absolutely perfect and instantaneous expression devices—does not obstruct the keyboard—uses indestructible music rolls—totally unaffected by weather changes—will play your piano perfectly from any part of the house—any piano with a Tel-Electric attached, costs less than a player piano of the same grade.
Price $350 Convenient Terms
You have but to see and hear the Tel-Electric to acknowledge its absolute superiority—if you cannot call it will pay you to send for interesting illustrated literature.

New Stevecco Model for Full Figures

New Models Arriving Daily

The corset as usual is the first and most important feature to be considered before buying the new spring outfit, and owing to the fact that Easter comes unusually early this year, women should begin at the earliest possible moment to select their corsets.

No matter how plain or elaborate the gown may be, it is absolutely necessary to have as a foundation the correct fitting corset in order to attain the desired harmonious effect. The care and expertness of our corsetieres is a recognized fact; each type of figure is carefully fitted to its individual requirements, guaranteeing the most satisfactory results.

The illustration shows one of the recent arrivals of our well known Stevecco models especially adapted for a figure requiring the extreme length over the limbs. It is held snugly to the figure by the lacing in front from the base of the steel to the bottom of the corset. Very long and firmly boned over the abdomen, with a double garter adjustment placed inside and outside beginning from below the front steel to give additional support and a very flat effect.

Extremely low bust, very long straight back, especially designed to completely obviate any suggestion of a line showing where corset ends.

This corset is made of imported coutil, finished at the top with a tailored band of ribbon and braid, very flat and close fitting. Altogether a splendid garment for the full figure who desires comfort, correctness and durability. Sizes 21 to 36. Price $16.50

Featured in the Fourth Annual Sale of Negligees

Albatross Negligees Special $5.75

A very charming model in a fine quality of albatross, made with plaited skirt, and waist and sleeves most attractively cut in one piece with the shoulder, which is formed by several tucks.

A very special value at $5.75.

Noonday Luncheon and Afternoon Tea

MAIN AND LOWER FLOORS
THE McCORMICK BUILDING

330 SOUTH MICHIGAN AVENUE

NEAR THE CORNER OF VAN BUREN STREET

Original Allegretti announces the opening today of Chicago's most delightful place for the enjoyment of noonday luncheon and afternoon tea. Location is in the magnificent new McCormick Building, convenient to theaters and concert halls and the great Michigan avenue shopping district. You are invited to come in and acquaint yourself with our unique resources and service.

LOOKING TOWARD FIREPLACE IN GRAY ROOM

Noonday Luncheon in Gray Room

Lower Floor. Served from 11 o'clock until 2:30

Wholesome and delicious novelty describes the simplest repast served in this room. Prompt, thoughtful service and daintiest table appointments give extra zest to good food in its most appetizing form. Yet the charge for the delicate luncheon dishes that make up our menu is moderate, indeed. Though but a few steps from the avenue, this place is quiet, completely detached from the city's rush. Soft indirect lighting, restful gray tone of the woodwork, the lovely Italian garden scene that covers the wall—all these help to make luncheon here a real event in a day of routine or shopping. Business men will find just the brief, sustaining repast that they need at Allegretti's. There is no other such delightful place to bring friends.

Afternoon Tea in the White Room

Main Floor. Served from 3 o'clock until 6

There is unusual charm and distinction about Afternoon Tea as served in this attractive tea room. Every detail of the service is correct and pleasing and the whole tone of the place is certain to win the approval of discriminating people. Neat maids will bring your choice of our select teas; there is coffee or chocolate, and a wide variety of delicious things to go with them, such as sandwiches, cakes, French pastry and so forth. After the concert, matinee or shopping tour you will find just the refreshment and relaxation you need at Original Allegretti's. No other place could be more convenient or more satisfying.

AFTERNOON TEA IN PROGRESS AT WHITE ROOM

Our Soda Fountain Section

In sheltered nooks along the front and center of the store stand the small tables on which are served the well known Original Allegretti fountain drinks. Best known of these, perhaps, is our own Special Hot Chocolate, served to perfection with rich whipped cream. Our Hot Bouillons, Sodas and Sundaes, Ice Creams and Ices, need no introduction to discriminating Chicagoans. Each captivating combination called for has a delicious flavor, that brings the visitor back for more. Only the choicest materials, pure cream and natural flavors, go into the drinks and other fountain offerings.

VIEW OF FOUNTAIN AND SURROUNDINGS

Original Allegretti Chocolates

The rich brown chocolate creams and delicately flavored bonbons that Allegretti first brought out over twenty years ago are today the unequaled standard of surpassing goodness and delight in candy. At our McCormick Building shop and State Street store we have ready a fresh and complete supply of all kinds. They are boxed in right quantity to take along with you—or packed in larger assortment to make the very best of all candy gifts. It is important to remember that none is genuine without the full name "Original Allegretti" on every box, together with our doves trademark, as shown above.

Efforts to Arouse Sympathy Are Indications of a Weak Cause.

CHANGE AND MITT COME TO CHICAGO

Arrives Here with Glove and Wife and Leaves at Night for New York.

EXPECTS TO PLAY AGAIN.

BY SAM WELLER.

With his trusty first baseman's mitt packed in his grip, Frank L. Chance, Peerless Leader, passed through Chicago yesterday en route to New York to assume his new duties as manager of the Yankees. The former leader of the Cubs arrived a little before noon, accompanied by Mrs. Chance. They had dinner at the home of Secretary Williams of the Cubs, then took the 5:30 o'clock limited for Gotham.

At the station, when leaving for the east, Chance found a crowd of his friends to wish him well in his new undertaking. Among them were Mordecai Brown, Pat Moran, and Jack McCarthy, all of whom had seen service on the ball field under the direction of the Peerless Leader.

The big manager never looked better at the start of a spring training trip than he did yesterday. Weeks of labor in his orange grove in California under a hot sun had produced a coat of tan that would become a national pastimer in July. He also took precautions to instruct Charley Williams to order him a pair of baseball shoes at once and to have them sent to New York, all of which indicated he intended to get back into harness.

Intends to Play First Base.

"Are you going to play ball" was the question all his friends were asking. To each he made the same reply.

"I have my glove with me and I'll play if I can make the team. It depends, too, on how Hal Chase gets along as a second baseman. I never felt more like playing ball than I do now."

"I haven't had a headache all winter," was the answer. "I have put myself to the test, too, for I worked in my orchard bareheaded when the sun was hot. A year ago I couldn't have stood it for fifteen minutes, but it didn't bother me at all this time to stay at it for several hours. I guess that operation last fall cured me all right, and if it did there's no reason why I can't play ball if I'm needed.

"I want to tell you there was some labor this winter in that orchard. When I got home after meeting Mr. Farrell here the first of the year I found the frost had killed about half the oranges left on my trees. There wasn't anything left to do but throw the spoiled ones away, and there's nothing better to put one's throwing arm in form than to heave those bad oranges out of the lot. I guess I threw away a thousand boxes of them, and I'm in shape to play ball tomorrow."

Arrives in New York Tonight.

Chance will reach New York tonight too late to be present at the start of the American league meeting, but in plenty of time to listen to any talk of trades with the other managers. One of the first leaders he expects to tackle is Jimmy Callahan, boss of the White Sox. The P. L. hopes to induce Cal to turn over one of his extra infielders, but doesn't expect this to be done until after the training trip, if done at all.

It is thought Chance has designs on Joe Berger, the husky shortstop who played at Los Angeles last year. He has listened to glowing reports on the work of the young German from fans on the coast and figures that if Callahan can't use the recruit there may be room for him on the New York team.

"I hardly think Berger will be a strong batter in the American league at present, but I don't need a heavy hitter so much as a corking good fielder. I have some hitters on the team now, but I think the defense will have to be built up considerably.

"I think our club will have to open the season against Washington, and I suppose I'll have a chance to look at Walter Johnson the first day. I wish they would give me a couple of days to get my bearings before showing that fellow to me, especially if I have to go up there and bat. I know the first thing Clark Griffith will do will be to holler at Johnson to 'take a shot at his bean.'

"I don't know just what I'm going to bump into in the new job, but I think I have a pretty fair bunch of ball players on the list, and with any kind of luck I expect to be fighting the leaders for a time at least. We are to leave for Bermuda the first of March and pass a month there, and when I return from the island I'll know more about my team."

Chance made no comments whatever on his trouble with the Chicago Cubs' president, thus indicating that the subject was dead as far as he was concerned. He was asked if he had seen Orvie Overall, the giant hurler of the Cubs, who retired two years ago, and replied that he had talked with Overall recently and believed that he would return and try to pitch for the Cubs this year. He added that Orvie looked capable of pitching as well as ever.

The Peerless Leader did not travel eastward with his colleagues, Jimmy Callahan, Charley Comiskey, and Secretary Grabiner of the White Sox, and President Johnson and Secretary Herridge, who left on the fast train at noon for New York to attend the meeting. He was afraid to engage transportation on that train, for fear of being too late in reaching Chicago to make connections.

O'Neill Returns from Coast.

Tip O'Neill, president of the Western league and booster for the state of California, returned to Chicago yesterday after passing a few weeks in the Golden state. He was on the train just ahead of Chance. Tip announced that everything is in readiness at Paso Robles for the coming of the White Sox, and the fans of San Francisco and Los Angeles are talking of the invasion of Comiskey.

"Paso Robles is the best spot out there for training, and I know the boys will be delighted with it," said Tip. "There's a good hotel there and a fine big playing field. There are baths, tennis courts, and golf links, so I guess there'll be plenty to put action in the fellows.

"Three of the Sox players are now training at Paso Robles. Jim Scott, who went from here, having been joined by Joe Berger and Ping Bodie. I saw them at work, and from the way they began I guess they'll be in condition when the rest of the boys get there."

GREETINGS FOR "HEINE ZIM."

Cub Third Sacker Today Will Celebrate Twenty-seventh Anniversary —Born in New York City.

Henry Zimmerman, third baseman of the Chicago Cubs and champion batter of the National league in 1912, was born in New York city, Feb. 10, 1886. Heine started in the national pastime as a pitcher for his school team in the Bronx. His performance as a school boy attracted the attention of semi-pro managers, and in a short time "Zim." was drawing $20 a week for playing Saturday and Sunday games. In 1906 he entered the professional ranks as a member of the Wilkesbarre New York State league team, playing with the Barons until purchased by the Cubs in the fall of 1907. He was tried at infield and outfield positions, but was unable to land a regular berth with the Cubs until the death of Third Baseman Jimmy Doyle. Heine has improved in batting each year since becoming a big leaguer. In 1908 his batting average was .202; in 1909 his average was .273; in 1910 he clouted for .284; in 1911 he boosted his figures to .307, and in 1912 he led the National league batsmen with an average of .372.

Peerless A. C., 8; Ætnas, 7.

The Peerless A. C. nine, claimant of the west side championship, defeated the Ætnas, who claim the north side title, 8 to 7, at St. Alphonso's gym yesterday. M. Kohen, 784 South Hermitage avenue, manager of the Peerless team, would like to arrange a game with the Central Turners or Marquettes. Score:

MAGNATES GATHER IN GOTHAM

Club Owners, Managers and Players There for Meeting.

AMERICANS CONVENE TODAY

News Develops That Stars of Boston Red Sox Are Holding Out.

New York, Feb. 9.—Baseball magnates, managers, and players, gathering for the schedule meetings of the big leagues which open here tomorrow, reached the city today and the hotel corridors buzzed with baseball talk.

Among the early arrivals was August Herrmann, chairman of the national commission, together with John E. Bruce, the commission's secretary. The national commission has considerable business before it, involving for the most part cases from minor leagues which piled up during the illness of Secretary Farrell of the national association.

First of the meetings scheduled is that of the American league, set for tomorrow morning. A number of these magnates already are in town, among them James R. McAleer, president of the Boston club, and Robert L. Hedges, owner of the St. Louis Americans.

National league arrivals included Charles W. Murphy of the Chicago club and Johnny Evers, manager. Owner James E. Gaffney and Manager George Stallings of Boston were others to reach the city. The National league meeting opens on Tuesday.

An interesting group representing the Boston world's champions included "Smoky Joe" Wood, who has not yet signed a contract. He conferred with President McAleer, trying to make terms, it was understood. Incidentally it developed that the entire outfield of the Red Sox—Speaker, Hooper, and Lewis—have not yet signed.

YOUNG TAKES SHOOT HONORS AT CHICAGO GUN CLUB TRAPS.

Wins One Event and Ties for Lead in Two Others—Fetherston and Burton Also High.

Jesse Young, the local amateur marksman, carried off the honors yesterday in the weekly shoot at the Chicago Gun club. Young tied for first place in two events and won the third. Weather conditions were ideal for target work, and a large crowd was on hand to see the contestants break the clay pigeons. Thirty-five shooters competed.

Young and L. M. Fetherston tied for first place in the first contest, which was a fifteen bird event from sixteen yards. Both made scores of 14. Ward Burton tied Young for first place in the second contest. Fifty targets were shot at from the sixteen yard mark, and both shooters broke 48. Young won the final event by registering a score of 48 out of 50. A special shoot will be held at the club traps on Wednesday, a train leaving the Randolph street station of the Illinois Central at 11:20 o'clock. Scores:

Event No. 1, 15 targets from 16 yards—Jesse Young, 14; L. M. Fetherston, 14; W. Burton, 13; W. F. Riley, 12; O. W. Crocker, 12; E. L. Kammerer, 11; T. P. Bue, 10; J. Lino, 10; A. Moore, 9; H. Green, 9.

CYCLE RIDER KILLED IN RACE.

Frederich Windt Victim of Accident at St. Louis—Member of Olympic Team Also May Die.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Frederick T. Windt, 22 years old, a member of the St. Louis Cycling club, was fatally injured in a bicycle race when he plunged over the top of the saucer track and fell fifteen feet to a concrete floor below at the Coliseum tonight. The died half an hour later in a hospital.

Walden C. Martin, member of the United States Olympic team which went to Stockholm last summer, plunged over the edge of the saucer and suffered a fractured left leg, a fracture to his left wrist, and internal injuries which physicians said may cause his death.

The men were racing the last lap of the final heat of a half mile handicap race for amateurs. They bunched and one of the others tried to push his way to the top. His wheel wabbled and fell. Windt and Martin passed on the outside of the fallen man, but lost control of their wheels.

Frank Kramer Wins Cycle Race.

KAAD WINS WESTERN TITLES

LOSES FOURTH BY ACCIDENT.

BY KEENE GARDINER.

A bad spill in the feature event of the western outdoor skating championships, held at Douglas park yesterday under the auspices of the Douglas Park Skating club, prevented Harry Kaad of the Illinois Athletic club from making a clean sweep of the title events. He was out in front by a good margin in this race when he tripped at the half way mark. By the time he recovered his footing he was hopelessly beaten.

Kaad won the one-eighth mile, quarter mile, and two mile contests with comparative ease. For scoring the greatest number of points, Kaad was presented with the F. W. Panert cup, in addition to three medals. The tricolored club star won the eighth mile event in :22, beating Simonson of the home club easily. Summaries:

One-eighth mile championship—First heat: Won by H. Kaad, I. A. C.; Roy McWhirter, D. P. S. C., second. Time, :22 2-5.

RITCHIE TO FIGHT NEXT BOUT JULY 4

Plans to Return Here Early in March to Open Week's Stand on the South Side.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion, accompanied by Manager Billy Nolan, passed through Chicago yesterday on his way from Kansas City to Indianapolis, where he will open a week's engagement tonight. Nolan said Ritchie's next fight would be on July 4, with either the winner of the Wolgast-Murphy fight or Packey McFarland.

If Ritchie gives battle to MacFarland, the south side Irishman will have to make the same weight he agreed to do for Wolgast in Milwaukee a little over a year ago. At this time Wolgast insisted on Packey making 133 pounds at 6 o'clock. This is the notch McFarland must make for the champion if he wants to get a crack at the title.

After his week's engagement in Indianapolis, Ritchie will go to Detroit for a week, then to Cincinnati, and then to Chicago for a week's engagement at a south side theater.

Next Bout on July 4.

"We have nothing scheduled in the fight game," said Nolan. "Coffroth and McCarey want us to meet the winner of the Wolgast-Murphy fight. I will make this match if they give us enough money. McCarey wants to match Ritchie with McFarland on July 4. I will make this match if Packey will make 133 pounds at 6 o'clock. If we agree to meet either Wolgast or Murphy, they will have to make 133 pounds ringside.

"Ritchie will not engage in a championship fight before July 4. Since he is the champion, we are going to get all the money in sight. Many persons think Willie was lucky in winning the title, but he put up as great a fight against Wolgast as any lightweight I ever have seen.

"When Nelson was in his prime he would have had a lot of trouble to beat Ritchie. Willie is one of the old school who knows every trick and art of the fistic game. He is cool in the ring and also is a great general. The theatrical work he is doing keeps him in fair shape, and it will take little hard work to fit him for a championship match."

Ritchie Puts O. K. on Nolan.

While Nolan was doing all the talking Willie stood aside and did not say a word until he was called to one side and asked a few questions. Willie is willing to let Nolan do all his matchmaking, and from the tone of his speech he has plenty of confidence in anything his manager does.

"I'll go through with any matches Nolan makes," Ritchie said. "He is a great manager, and as long as we are making nearly as much money in a theatrical way as fighting I am contented to do anything he says. I beat Wolgast all the way in our championship fight and I am sure I can do it again.

"This talk about Nelson wanting to fight me is bosh. He only is seeking a little publicity, and if the promoters thought well enough of the bout they certainly would have offered some sort of inducements before this time. I will be only too glad to give McFarland a match if he will make the weight I demand. I do not intend to take a chance of losing my title by fighting welterweights."

AMATEUR BOUTS AT MILWAUKEE

Athletic Club Will Accept Challenge for Intercity Contests Against Cleveland and St. Louis.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Physical Director Tom Larkin of the Milwaukee Athletic club has received challenges from Cleveland and St. Louis for amateur boxers to meet boxers from those cities. The challenges probably will be accepted, as Larkin has a number of likely looking youngsters in training and a strong team could be selected. The method of picking the team has not been decided.

HEBREWS WIN MAT TOURNEY

GREENSTOHM LANDS TITLE.

Secures Verdict in 140 Pound Junior Class After Hard Battle.

BY HAMMERLOCK.

Hebrew institute grapplers won the team honors in the International Gymnastic union wrestling tournament at the Lincoln Turner hall yesterday. The west siders scored consistently in most events, figuring heavily in the junior contests and the lighter senior events. The bouts were marked by some good mat work, but often proved tedious owing to the large number of qualifiers. The last two events dragged out past midnight.

In the 115 pound junior class G. Weber, La Salle, won the title with F. Kapoum, Pilsen Sokol, second, and J. Goldenberg, Hebrew institute, third. The 125 pound junior honors went to S. Vorja, Hebrew institute, with C. Chaverist, Chicago Turngemeinde, second, and H. Meyer, Hebrew institute, annexing the bronze medal for third place.

Close Battle Among Juniors.

A closely fought final enlivened the 140 pound junior class, in which C. Greenstohm of Hebrew institute, landed the title. S. McCann, La Salle, ranked second, and third was taken by M. Skud of the Hebrew institute. S. Benjamin, Hebrew institute, copped the championship for heavyweight juniors, second place going to S. Varon, and third to O. Ginsburg, both of the institute.

Sleipner matmen cut a wide swath in the 115 and 125 pound senior competition. In the 115 pound event S. Thorpe, Sleipner, won, with J. Mensch, Chicago Turngemeinde, second. Three representatives of the Sleipner club carried off the medals in the 125 pound class, Thorpe landing first, A. Larson second, and P. Thorne, third.

Putkannon Lands 135 Pound Title.

A. Putkannon, wearing the colors of the Finnish society, won the 135 pound senior crown, S. Johnson, Sleipner, ranking second, and M. Smaller, Hebrew institute, third. Ben Ruben again carried off first honors in the 145 pound senior class, the Hebrew institute star showing wonderful ability. W. Boehme, Chicago Turngemeinde, was second, and J. Havlicek, Vorwaerts, finished in third place.

The senior 158 pound honors were annexed by L. Niesen of Chicago Turngemeinde; N. Maller of Hebrew institute was second, and J. Anderson third. A. Minkley, Chicago Turngemeinde, won the senior heavyweight medal, with A. Diete of the same institution second and R. Johnson of the Swedish Turners third.

The final accounting of points was as follows: Chicago Hebrew institute, 28; Chicago Turngemeinde, 22; Sleipner A. C., 17; La Salle Turners, 8; Finnish Turners, 5; Pilsen Sokol, 3; Swedish Turners, 2; Vorwaerts, 1.

Calls Religion Behind Times.

"Religion is conservative, and in religion we are always two or three generations behind the times," said Dr. Gerson B. Levi yesterday before the People's Synagogue association at the Ziegfeld theater. "After a thing has long passed out of ordinary life it still remains in religious life. When a thing ceases to be useful in ordinary life religion protects it by saying it is holy because it was the custom of our forefathers. When in the twentieth century any religion, whether it be Christianity or Judaism, still maintains the forms of the middle ages, for no other reason except that they are old, and therefore holy, they are geenrations behind the times."

How to Earn Money at Home

The purpose of this department is to find profitable employment for women in occupations which they can carry on at home without interfering with their domestic duties. To stimulate suggestions, The Tribune will award $1 each for every help published.

Address—Sally Joy Brown, care The Tribune, Chicago.

The exhibit room in The Tribune building is open from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m., except on Saturday, when it closes at noon.

St. Valentine Dolls Have Arrived.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

The Queen of Hearts and all her retinue have arrived at The Tribune Home Workers' Exhibit Room!

They are the gayest of royal parties and are all ready to go and visit some of the American kings and queens—the little boys and girls on St. Valentine's day.

There is the queen of hearts with a red paper dress trimmed in bands of white and tiny paper hearts, a tall cap with fluttering streamers of white with tiny hearts.

There is the clown of hearts dressed in a suit of white with red hearts as trimming.

There is Dutch Hans all dressed in the most checkered of paper suits and a black paper peasant cap. On his feet are tiny brown paper shoes that look for all the world like real wooden shoes.

As a companion to him is a little Puritan maid that is as demure a member of a royal party as ever came to America.

She makes such good lobster, chicken, or shrimp salad, and for the people who do care for the heavy oil mayonnaise she has a special cream dressing that is delicious.

This same home woman makes fruit salads of all sorts and delivers them ready to serve at any time that the busy hostess feels that she is in need of being relieved of this extra work.

How many opportunities there are for the home woman to help other home women who have so much to do that they cannot undertake everything themselves.

What is there that you can do for which other women would gladly pay?

What a great big wonderful world this is for the woman who has her eyes and her ears and her ambition on the alert every minute of the day!

If she will utilize the talents that she employs in serving her family every day in the year.

If she will make these talents work for her and bring her true returns she will find that they are not only bringing her rich returns of money, but such a happy feeling that she is accomplishing something that is worth while.

Do take the time today before the clock strikes and write to me of the things that you can do and of the little secret ambitions that you have.

I know that I can help you as I have helped others.

Will you let me?

Raisin Cake Recipe.

The following recipe for raisin cake is good and inexpensive, as it requires no eggs or butter:

Put in a sauce pan one cup of dark brown sugar, two cups of raisins, two tablespoons of lard, one-half teaspoon of cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of cloves, one-fourth teaspoon of nutmeg, one cup of water.

Boil this hard for three minutes, then let cool and add one teaspoon of soda dissolved in a little warm water and one teaspoon of baking powder with two cups of flour. Add 10 cents worth of English walnuts and then bake in a loaf in a slow oven for an hour.

Ways Novel and Interesting.

A woman who likes planning for dinners and other such entertainments made money for herself in that way. She had many friends who were rushed by their engagements, and were glad to escape the trouble and worry of planning luncheons and dinners. She charges according to the size of the affair and the time spent in planning it.

A woman living near a large city and having access to records, histories, etc., makes many dollars each year by tracing genealogies for those who wish to become members of the Daughters of the Revolution and other similar clubs. The work is most interesting and pays well.

In a small community where there was no professional hair dresser a woman who had a natural deftness and taste in that direction earned a good many dollars by caring for women's and children's hair, doing up women's hair in proper style for parties, also teaching inexperienced persons new ways of doing up their own hair in the latest style.

Costs 60 Cents, Sells for $1.

A useful, pretty, and inexpensive article is a fancy coat hanger. This article will serve two purposes, that of a hanger and sachet bags. Here is the itemized cost to make: One and one-half yards Dresden ribbon at 25 cents a yard, 38c; sachet, 10 cents; three yards baby ribbon at 3 cents a yard, 9 cents; cotton batting at 10 cents a roll, 3 cents; total, 60 cents.

Take a wire coat hanger and wrap the sides with cotton batting, strewn with the sachet. Double the Dresden ribbon, which should be about 5 inches wide, and sew up the sides with a small running stitch. Pull this over the padded sides, allowing the ribbon to be shirred. The baby ribbon is to be wound around the hook and that part of the hanger which remains uncovered and a rosette placed between the padded sides.

Nut Bread Brought Orders.

This is a recipe for nut bread which was placed on sale at a bakery and which brought in orders so fast that my bakery and home were kept busy:

Beat into one egg one-fourth cup of sugar, add two cups sweet milk, four cups flour, one teaspoon salt, four rounded teaspoons baking powder, one cup chopped walnuts (medium fine). Mix all thoroughly and set to raise in pans twenty minutes. Bake in a hot oven thirty minutes. One cup graham flour can be substituted for one cup white flour if desired. This makes two medium sized loaves.

AMERICAN KISSES—Whites of four eggs, beaten stiff; level pint of granulated sugar sprinkled in teaspoon at a time. Mix, but do not beat it in. Add a few drops vanilla. Drop on greased paper in tins and bake in moderate oven.

OATMEAL COOKIES—Mix one egg beaten with a cup of sugar with one cup of oatmeal, a handful of raisins, and a teaspoon of vanilla. Drop on a greased pan a teaspoon at a time. Bake in a slow oven.

VANILLA CREAM PUFFS—Mix smoothly two ounces of flour with half a pint of milk and half a pint of cream, two ounces of butter, beaten to a cream, four ounces of white sugar, six eggs, and one teaspoon of vanilla. Line some molds with puff paste, fill them three parts full with the cream, and bake for half an hour.

Embroidery Her Hobby.

Embroidering is my hobby and my "best seller" is a table cover made from one yard linen. Allow one and one-fourth inch hem; pull about twelve threads, hemstitch same, and in one corner embroider a cryssanthemum seven inches long with leaves and stem, of course. They sell readily and are beautiful if flower is well padded.

KAISER IN MEMORIAL SPEECH WARNS OF DEITY'S JUDGMENT.

Points to "Oppressed Prussians of 1806"—Tells Subjects Not to Lose Faith and Success Is Assured.

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—Declaring that the Prussians were "oppressed and dismembered folk" in 1806 as a consequence of God's judgment, because they had lost faith in him, the German emperor at a memorial service at Berlin university today delivered a characteristic speech, warning the present generation of Germans not to forget the faith of their fathers.

He asserted that the Germans of today are inclined to believe only in tangible things and to place difficulties in religion's way. They should study history, he said, and see how the Prussians regained their old faith and fought the war of liberation, the glorious result of which was not man's work but God's work.

"So," continued the emperor, "we have in the history of the past certain proof of God's guidance, and that he was and still is with us. And with this teaching of the past the whole German youth can forge in its fire the tried shield of faith, which must never be lacking in the armory of Germans and Prussians.

"With such weapons, looking neither to the right nor to the left, we will go our direct way; eyes uplifted and hearts uplifted with trust in God. Then we can all repeat the great chancellor's words:

"'We Germans fear God and nothing else in the world.'"

BROKER AND MANUFACTURER MUST EXPLAIN CRASHED MIRROR

Stewart Kedzie, a young stock broker living at 6919 Lakewood avenue, and George Willson, vice president of the H. H. Willson company, label manufacturers, this morning will appear at the South Clark street court to explain why John Vogelsang's restaurant, 177 West Madison street, received a fracture in the revolving door and a severe contusion in a big mirror Saturday night.

According to John Vogelsang, Kedzie and Willson entered the buffet in convivial and joyous condition. Being refused further drinks by the bartender, Kedzie is said to have picked up a large silver water pitcher and thrown it through a mirror.

"I always break mirrors when I am angry," he is said to have informed the inquiring Vogelsang. "I just got through paying for one yesterday."

Not knowing exactly how angry Kedzie was and having a few other mirrors in the place, Vogelsang called the police. Just as Detectives Hart and O'Hara entered Willson endeavored to make a hasty exit through the revolving doors. He became confused, made four rapid revolutions, and then climbed through one of the glass doors. He was arrested.

A Special Display of Imported Hats

Brought over by our own buyer, these hats are just out of the custom house and represent the first authentic showing of spring styles. As they are the models from the most exclusive makers and designed to be worn at Biarritz, Monte Carlo and Nice, they are especially suited for

Southern and California Wear

IN ADDITION TO THE IMPORTED HATS WE WILL SHOW MANY ADAPTATIONS AND ORIGINAL DESIGNS FROM OUR OWN WORKROOMS

Interesting small shapes prevail. These small hats are fashioned with great cunning, and, although they appear so simple, are in reality most difficult to achieve, because they owe their charm to a line, a curve, an intangible something that cannot be copied—it can only be originated by an expert.

News of Music and Theaters.

Happenings in and Around the Playhouses.

BY PERCY HAMMOND.

A MAIL box full of communications addressed to the dramatic editor makes the function of composing a column for this Monday morning a recreation rather than a task. From each envelope as it is opened there fall sprightly bits of personal gossip, inspiring confidences from the various box offices, and illuminating comment on theatrical this, that, and the other, here and elsewhere. All that one has to do is to dip into the horn of plenty and pull out an interesting paragraph.

The Messrs. Shubert are energetic contributors today. Miss Bayes and Mr. Norworth will "probably accept invitations" to appear in London and Paris next summer, though from the tone of the note containing the news both of them yawn when they think of it. If they accept they will play in a Parisian revue and at one of the largest London music halls. Tomorrow at the Garrick Mr. Paul Armstrong will begin to rehearse Miss Helen Ware in "The Escape," a new play said to be about crises similar to those in "Hindle Wakes," though more resonant. It was done recently in Los Angeles and was approved by that patriotic community.

The management of McVicker's theater desires it to be known that the story about its contemplated flop into the moving picture business is absolutely false; and the management of the Colonial is equally definite in its denial of a similar report concerning that house. The Messrs. Liebler come forth with the announcement that they are about to produce a play called "A Man's Friends," by Ernest Poole, a name which seems to have a "local" identity. Like most "American" plays and most "American" fiction, it will consider life in New York, "treating a clash between men" representing different forces in that city's life.

Miss Thais McGrane is getting a divorce; so is Miss Marjorie Moreland, Mr. N. C. Goodwin's leading woman. Miss Grace La Rue is sued because her dance in vaudeville is like the staircase dance in "The Count of Luxembourg," and Robert T. Haines has gone into bankruptcy. Dr. Cook, the arctic explorer, is further away from civilization than ever and is delivering moving picture lectures in the theaters of a minor variety circuit of the far west. Miss Marjorie Pearson of Mr. Sam Bernard's company writes to say that the "immortality" of Paris is greatly exaggerated.

Along the line of criticism comes the reflections on "Bought and Paid For" of Mr. B. A. Worthington, president of the Chicago and Alton railroad. Mr. Worthington sees in Mr. Broadhurst's play not so much a temperance sermon or a plea for the abolishment of bestiality from the fireside as a tract on success in business. The protagonist of his idea is Jimmy Gilley, "a jack of all trades and a master of none," selfish, self-assured, but a failure because he doesn't take proper interest in his work. Mr. Worthington, therefore, commends Jimmy Gilley to the observation of his employés.

In Washington Mr. Belasco spends a 2 cent stamp to infofrm us that Mrs. Champ Clark and daughter, Genevieve, went to see "The Governor's Lady" Saturday afternoon and enjoyed it; also that Miss Judith Snaith, who plays the scrubwoman in that drama, gives readings from Lafcadio Hearn and that Milton Sills was once a professor in the University of Chicago.

Reference to the University of Chicago suggests reproduction of the encomiums of Prof. Richard G. Moulton of that institution on the performance of "The Trojan Women" in the Little theater. "I especially admired the choral feature," writes Prof. Moulton; "and in this I include the eminently beautiful bridal dance of Cassandra. The effect on my mind—and I find the same impression in all with whom I have conversed—was a continuous spell of pathetic charm from first to last. It was a performance worthy of Euripides as the world's greatest master of pathos."

In Evanston Mr. Benedict Papot lectures the Drama club on "The French Stage of Today," speaking well of it; which is more than will be done here in view of recent exhibitions of French drama at Powers' theater and the Blackstone. In St. Louis Mr. Maurice Browne of the Little theater of Chicago tells them that we playgoers are much like little children, taking, without question, everything that is offered us. In this as in other things Mr. Browne differs from the commercial managers, who complain that this is the leanest season in theatrical history. One manager in Chicago was congratulated the other night because his audience looked so big and prosperous. "It ought to look that way," he answered, with considerable bitterness. "It was hand-picked."

Mr. Savage continues to knout the dramatic critics with sneer and castigation. He says they are "exploited" on the billboards too much. One of them is being exploited on Mr. Savage's Chicago billboards at present by a detached favorable sentence taken out of a generally unfavorable review of "The Top o' the Morning." The inference on the billboards is that the critic was enthusiastic over the play, though he was not. Permission is hereby given Mr. Savage to cease that particular case of peculiar "exploitation."

EMELIE POLINI as Fanny In "Hindle Wakes" Fine. Arts Theater

Miss Polini is herewith presented as Fanny Hawthorne in the attitude of refusing to be made "an honest woman" by her week end companion and others.

Varied Programs at the Sunday Concerts.

THE most conservative piano program of the season was offered by Max Pauer in his recital yesterday afternoon in the Studebaker theater. It contained nothing that was composed later than 1855, ventured upon no untried paths, and sought to revive no neglected masterpieces. Mr. Pauer is a German pianist and it was doubtless a desire to represent the music of his nation worthily that led him to restrict his selections to compositions of Bach, Beethoven, Schubert, Schumann, and Brahms. Since he elected to set forth the art of Bach as it is revealed in the Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue, while that of Beethoven was represented only by the characteristic fragment that bears the title Andante Favori, and the immature F minor sonata of Brahms was chosen to define the art of that master, the musical interest of the afternoon was somewhat unevenly distributed. For one cannot claim that the Wanderer Fantasy of Schubert or Schumann's Scenes from Childhood are works that profoundly interest the average music lover of the present.

Mr. Pauer is an admirable pianist. He has technic in abundance, commands a wide variety of tone and plays like a musician. His Bach was clearly analyzed. Nicely contrasted dynamic levels sustained its polyphony. It was a well poised delivery with the intellectual element constantly emphasized. It does not seem to have occurred to Mr. Pauer that the music of Bach is touched with imagination. Nor did he discover the atmospheric qualities of Beethoven's beautiful andante, though he supported its simple song with many effective and persuasive inflections of tone quality and endowed it with sufficient sentiment. In the Schubert fantasy he found opportunity to make incidental display of his technical attainments, which seem to be deficient only in the direction of a clear cut articulation of rapid arpeggio passages. But again there was no appeal to the imagination. As a result one found Mr. Pauer somewhat tedious.

Allen Spencer gave his annual recital in the Fine Arts theater, dividing the program with Mme. Ragna Linne, soprano. In contrast to Mr. Pauer's conservatism he selected with catholic taste from the music of France, Germany, America, and Hungary, representing each nation by works that are new or rarely given. Since Mr. Spencer also demonstrated an admirable technical and tonal command of his instrument and played like a well schooled musician, one must conclude that his recital was the more profitable of the two.

Impressions are necessarily incomplete, but his delivery of Oldberg's "Carrilon" and Liszt's E major sonnet, Jeux d'eau and Longing for Home, may be mentioned as happy examples of atmospheric, colorful piano playing. Mme. Linne was heard only in songs by MacFadyen and Grant-Schäfer, upon which she expended the resources of an interpretative art quite incommensurate with their importance. It is understood that Mme. Linne designed this to be a farewell appearance; but she is far too worthy an artist and her voice is still too fresh for her to harbor serious thoughts of retirement from public life.

A small audience gathered at the Auditorium to hear Sirota, the Russian Jewish cantor, in his second Chicago appearance. The impressions of last season were sustained. The Russian would develop into an artist of distinction could he be persuaded to revise some of his vocal methods. The voice has great possibilities. High, generally clear, and of baritone warmth, backed by a volume vastly greater than his physique would lead one to expect, it is capable of unusual "stunts."

The audience was composed mainly of those to whom the subject matter meant much religiously. This significance, of course, was lost on the Gentiles, and its absence from their impressions tended to make the early chants somewhat tedious. There was appreciation in plenty for the more spectacular arias that composed the latter portion of the program. The greater part of the audience was warmly appreciative throughout.

Egg Farming Possibilities.

Nature is calling, the drift of humanity is back to the land. Young men and women leave the farm and drift to the city in hopes of earning more money and having an easier job. They have been sadly disappointed, their earnings are only moderate, they are like a cog in a great machine, and often it is a difficult matter to make a living. Many move from the densely populated city to the suburbs and have taken up poultry raising. Many are at the head of a large egg farm and making a big income which represents 50 per cent a year on the investment. Some have tried and failed.

If girls on the farm or in cities would spend more time in studying the characteristics of the hen than in studying Lady Macbeth they would be walking on velvet instead of walking the hard pavements looking for a job that hardly enables them to exist.

I wish I could impress upon the minds of all who are anxious to go to the cities to find employment the possibilities of an egg farm. The business of egg farming has scarcely any limits. At the same time there is a growing demand for roasting chicks and broilers, while with beef at war time prices, and likely to stay there, any kind of a fowl finds ready sale.

MRS. B. F. WILCOXON, North Platte, Neb.

Storing Eggs Saves.

Housekeeping is an industry to be conducted on an economical basis just as any other enterprise. It is a fact that buying in large lots will insure a considerably saving. By taking bimonthly inventory we have been able to keep a close check on our supplies and know that we have saved from 10 to 20 per cent on our total sum of groceries.

Such supplies as potatoes, cabbage, eggs, etc., can be purchased from the farmer directly in these days of telephone, and when such supplies are cheap. For instance, last May we were able to buy twenty dozen fresh eggs at 18 cents per dozen. We preserved these at a cost of less than 1 cent per dozen, and have eggs the equal of the present marked fresh eggs now selling at 38 cents. We preserve these eggs as follows, and have twelve good eggs in every dozen:

Mix one volume of sodium silicate (water glass) with eleven volumes of water. Heat to the boiling point, then cool. Pack fresh eggs in this solution in a stone jar and store it in a moderately cool place. For this purpose the water glass should have no free alkali in it. If it is found by test, it can be neutralized by hydrochloric acid. What little alkali is set free by hydrolysis need not be considered. Water glass costs only 5 to 10 cents per pound, so the method is inexpensive.

MRS. J. M. B., Waukesha, Wis.

Buy Clothing Judiciously.

The high cost of living should not be considered with reference to food alone. Every woman whose income is limited should know how to buy her clothing judiciously.

In the first place, make your own underwear, and instead of trimming it with cheap, flimsy lace, use a neat embroidery edging, preferably a narrow one, with a well finished edge. Petticoats look as well, wear longer, and are more easily laundered if finished with a neatly tucked ruffle, instead of a lace trimmed or embroidered flounce. A well made black sateen petticoat of good quality will outwear four cheap colored ones.

Buy hats, long coats and coat suits in a conservative style, avoiding all novelties, either in shape, material, or cut. A winter hat, well chosen, can always be worn three seasons, and a summer hat at least two.

In selecting a hat avoid plumes, flowers, and the plumage of birds.

Does Large Eye Mean Large Brain?

It is often asked by what means the weight of the brain in relation to the intellectual development of animals can be determined. It is obvious that formation and weight of brain alone are not indications of intellectual position. Were they so, the whale (whose brain may weigh about fifteen pounds) and the elephant (whose brain may weigh about twelve pounds) would be intellectually superior to man, whose brain weighs about three pounds three ounces. It is now suggested that the eye indicates the weight of the brain, and it is asserted that experiments have proved that this is so. The idea emanated, in the first place, from the observance of fish. There are caught, on the Breton coast pink and gray dorados (of the family coryphænidæ), and it has been noted that the eye of the pink dorado is much bigger than that of the gray dorado, while it has been shown also that the fish with the bigger eye has the bigger brain. The same state of affairs has been noticed in a number of animals. For instance, if a comparison be made between the little tree frog (hyla arborea) and the little swamp-toad (alytes obstetricans) it will be found that, while the weight of their bodies differs considerably (hyla 4 grains 8, and alytes 7 grains 7), the weight of their brains is much the same (0 grains 043, as against 0 grains 041), while the diameter of their eyes is almost the same (4 mm. 6 to 4 mm. 7).

Using the Tide in the Bay of Fundy.

From the bottom of the Bay of Fundy come some of the finest grindstones in the world, and the manner in which they are procured is simple and ingenious, the stonecutters making the exceptional tide perform the hardest part of the work. When the tide is out, which happens twice every day, the workmen quarry the stones from the solid rock and fasten them to a big flatboat. Then in comes the tide, a mighty flood rushing in, as though the great ocean had suddenly changed its mind. Wonderful sight it is—rising often as high as a house. And now the men have nothing more to do. The tide lifts the boat, and up comes the stone with it. Boat and stone are then brought close inshore, where the stone is removed at leisure when the tide is out.

Answers to Saturday's Puzzle.

ANSWER TO PUZZLING PEWS.

There must have been 808 guests at the church wedding.

From the pew No. 60 to pew No. 82 there were 22 pews, or one entire row, since 60 and 82 were opposite.

Altogether there were 88 pews in the center rows, seating 528 people, and 56 pews in the wings, seating 280 people—808 guests in all.

"BABY NO. 20 HAS THE COLIC," MAY RESOUND AT REVIVAL.

"Baby No. 20 has the colic. The mothers of other babies need not leave the room."

Comment of this fashion is promised as part of the program at the revival meetings which began in the big tabernacle at Harvey, Ill., yesterday, with three services under the leadership of Evangelists Hart and Magann.

Evangelist Hart explained his plan for checking babies so mothers can attend the meetings without discomfort or worry. The women of the five coöperating churches are to divide the work of nurses and caretakers.

"In one of the recent campaigns which we conducted," Mr. Hart said, "there were as many as seventy-five babies checked. Now, suppose I had called out, 'One of the babies is crying and needs its mother,' seventy-five mothers would have all started for the door. But when I said, 'Baby No. 20 needs its mother,' only one woman would go to the checking room. The plan works like a charm."

The tabernacle in which the meetings are to be held every day for the next five weeks was built by voluntary work, the five pastors laboring with the men in the work of construction.

WOMEN ASSAIL KEIR HARDIE.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Feb. 9.—Suffragets gave James Keir Hardie, the Socialist and Independent Labor member for Merthyr Tydfil, a warm reception at a meeting here tonight. Although he assured them of the Labor party's support in having the next bill made a government measure, the women rose, one after another, and denounced him. He ordered the police to let them speak, but after one had declaimed violently for a quarter of an hour, the chairman had her removed forcibly. This caused a great tumult.

Girls Arrive Clad in Scanty Dancing Clothing and Shiver Outside While Doors Stay Closed.

The ballet rehearsal scheduled to be held yesterday afternoon in Bartlett gymnasium in preparation for the Florentine carnival for the University of Chicago Settlement tomorrow night was suddenly called off for some reason unknown to the sixty-four students who are to take part in the dances.

Most of the participants in the ballet chorus appeared at the door of the gymnasium at the appointed time and found the door locked. They were dressed for the rehearsals and wore sandals or dancing pumps. They knocked many times and tried every entrance to the building—and then waited nearly an hour, shivering in the cold blasts that blow from the Midway.

"Must be some objection by the university to dancing on Sunday," said one co-ed as she stamped impatiently.

SKATERS THRONG THE PONDS IN ALL OF CHICAGO'S PARKS.

Thousands Witness Races and Fancy Gyrations by Men and Women—Tango Made an Ice Feature.

Yesterday was "skate day" in Chicago. It was estimated that more skaters were out on the ice in the parks in the city than there had been in all the rest of the winter together.

Big western championship races were held in Douglas park. Five thousand skaters and spectators witnessed the nine events. As special attractions there was fancy skating by men and women. Two girls attracted attention by trying to do the Tango dance on their ice skates. They were Miss Eleanor Kankel and Miss Libbie Reineger. Although the dance may not have been perfectly performed according to ballroom rules, there were no tumbles.

The Lincoln Park Driving club held a matinée on one of the lagoons. There also were a large number of skaters.

WOMEN'S HIGH COST PANACEA CALLED "DREAM" BY MERE MAN.

Two Who Advocate Long Term Farm Loans Challenged by Husband of Chicago Suffrage Leader.

Miss Lillian W. Johnson of Memphis, Tenn., and Miss Ernestine Noa of Chattanooga, Tenn., known in the east as "the young crusaders for lower prices," unfolded last night, before the Current Events class of the Congregational church of Evanston, their panacea for the high cost of living. Long term loans for farmers at low rates of interest would, they insisted, increase production, by enabling farmers to make improvements on their land and thereby cheapen the necessities of life.

"I am glad you young women are having these dreams," said Mr. McCulloch, "but the remedy you suggest won't work in America."

This brought a testy reply from Miss Noa. "Evanston is a favored section," she said, "but you don't know about the rest of the union."

The fluid is emptied into a large circular tank in which it is treated with acids, these being poured in and mixed with it by means of powerful pressure from beneath. When it has been well shaken it is allowed to settle, and the acids then separate from it and sink to the bottom of the tank, taking with them some of the tar that remained in the oil. The acids are then removed and the oil is washed with salt water. Finally it is bleached, and it is then ready for the market.

Answers to Saturday's Puzzle.

ANSWER TO PUZZLING PEWS.

There must have been 808 guests at the church wedding.

From the pew No. 60 to pew No. 82 there were 22 pews, or one entire row, since 60 and 82 were opposite.

No. 60 was the tenth pew in the row and the thirty-second pew of the center rows.

Altogether there were 88 pews in the center rows, seating 528 people, and 56 pews in the wings, seating 280 people—808 guests in all.

The World's Cooks

German Seasonings.

BERLIN.

IN the German food stores, the small dry herbs and many other seasoning substances which we are accustomed to buy by the quarter pound, and may have to go to the drug store for and buy by the ounce, are here to be seen in great twenty quart covered glass jars with the price per pound marked upon them. Paprika, for instance, is sold by the pound, and for about the same amount that we pay for a quarter or even an eighth of a pound, if put up by the most highly reputable firm.

Besides such things as laurel, bay leaf, sage, etc., they have dried, green string beans, which were cut up in little strings before they were dried (Schnittbohnen), young carrots treated in a similar way, and even the prettily variegated soup greens (suppenkraut).

The Gewurzdosis, for which I have got so many definitions—a spice much used with roasts of all sorts—I am now convinced is nothing more than our whole allspice. Gewurz alone means spice. And speaking of spices proper, the dictionary defines "Nelke" as a pink or carnation, and with this meaning it occurs in beautiful German stories. But in cooking it means a clove, which the Germans think looks like a little pink. On the other hand, the odor of the pink is that of the clove.

The market and cook book names for things are not taught to German students, unless they study domestic science. For this reason perplexity follows perplexity. "Kalb" is the word for both calf and veal. "Milch" is milk. When these two words get put together they mean a calf's sweetbread.

Besides the things mentioned above great quantities of grated bread crumbs (the grated white roll—"bread" almost universally means the black bread) are sold, and not only that which looks a bit like graham flour, because crust and all is grated, but that which is colored as well. This latter is used for the breadcrumbing of chops, with egg, of course, it being supposed that the brown color gives the meat a prettier appearance.

A tapioca colored red is to be had in the food stores, and the coloring in some of the barrels of pickles shouts to the heavens that it is artificial. By the way, capers are here sold by the barrel.

The Germans not only have a large number of proprietary sauces of their own, but they import sauces from everywhere. The Germans also prepare excellent home sauces, and they mix their fresh butter with various herb powders or chopped green herbs so that it makes a delicious dressing for fish.

However, they are not so generous with their butter in cooking as the French are, and their "Petersilien" potatoes, which are supposed to be like the French boiled potatoes with chopped parsley, have almost no butter at all.

I have never tasted a nicer horseradish sauce (with fish) than I have had here. The flavor of horseradish was mild and the whipped cream medium, with which it was put together, made it ideally dainty. There were no grains of horseradish, but seemingly the juice of the root had been pressed out into the flocky cream.

With a white sauce foundation, a white sauce made with a stock rather than milk, like ours, the Germans make a larger number of sauces, most of them quite highly seasoned, but good because thoroughly cooked, since they consider that it takes three-quarters of an hour to cook the foundation sauce—every slightest grain of the butter being "roasted."

HORSERADISH SAUCE ("A. B. C. of Cookery")—Two tablespoons of grated horseradish, one-eighth of a liter of bouillon or stock (about a half cup), twenty-five grams of butter (a little less than an ounce), twenty grams of onion, twenty grams of flour (about two-thirds of an ounce, and it takes four even tablespoons to make an ounce), and a cup of bouillon, with salt to taste. Preparation: Grate and peel the horseradish quickly and let it draw in the half cup of stock in an earthenware pot. Add the foundation sauce to it (this is made of butter, flour, and other ingredients) with the salt to taste. If the horseradish is sharp add two tablespoons of milk or cream. Time for making, three-fourths of an hour.

Lillian Russell's Beauty Secrets.

By Lillian Russell

There Is No Age.

[Copyright: 1913: By Lillian Russell.]

ANOTHER positive proof of the fact that age is entirely a condition of the mind comes to us in the case of a charming grandmother who plays baseball with her grandchildren and does it well. She is Mrs. Martha Holland of Weehawken, N. J.

To see this little woman one would say that she was a well conditioned woman of about 45, not being too fat or too thin, and in the perfection of perfect health.

According to her own statement she is 65 years young.

It was five years ago when she realized that she was accepting the attentions which are conventionally handed to elderly women—the proverbial footstool, soft pillows, and easy chairs. She began to look for the rheumatism and headaches, count the wrinkles and white hairs, till one day she came back to her real self and realized that it was her thoughts, and the thoughts of those around her, which were holding her back from being as young as her heart was.

She saw her grandsons playing ball in a vacant lot next door, so she forthwith proceeded to learn the game.

Naturally her family thought she had suddenly gone insane. But later when they saw she was in earnest, that her heart and spirit were as young as their own, they enjoyed playing with grandma in the game.

They taught her to play correctly. And the enjoyment she got out of the game made her as youthful as a girl of 16.

She says herself that if women who begin to have fancies about being sick when they really are not would get out and play baseball with the children they would live longer and be happier.

"There is the good air one gets in her lungs—nothing like it. You can walk or ride or take mild exercise, but there is nothing like running to make your breath deep."

Then, to quote her again: "When women get to my age they need the company of younger folks. There has been plenty in life to make one a bit sad, and when she sits down and thinks over it and lives and talks with people of her own age who have had troubles and like to remember it, she gets old and a nuisance.

"Get out with young ones in a game of ball; keep your muscles strong, your lungs filled with fresh air, your heart light, and you'll be as happy and healthy as I am."

This case is a lesson to women who watch age coming upon them and receive it with open arms, nurse it, and gradually get to like it.

Lillian Russell's Answers.

K. B.: Young people, unless they are ill, should not read in bed. Convalescents who wish to read in the daytime should have the bed so placed that the light from the window will fall over the shoulder. This can be arranged sometimes by changing the position so that for the time being the invalid's head is transferred to the foot of the bed. Such a change affords a pleasing break in the monotony of both position and aspect.

COUNTRY GIRL: Nine times out of ten the cause of an unlovely complexion is indigestion. Most women eat too much. They eat improperly and eat foods that don't nourish them. But even these mistakes might be corrected if they exercised, if they got out in the open air and purifying sunlight, and gave the bad blood made by the malnutritious foods enough oxygen to burn up the impurities. Constant care and attention will prevent corns or bunions from reaching an acute stage. Daily rubbing of any surface inclined to become callous with pumice stone gently and lightly will discourage it, and dipping the stone in a solution of carbonate of potash will increase the efficacy of this treatment.

Now, if you want to be prettier than you are, if you wish to improve your health and resist not only fatigue and disease, but age, go out and walk. Never mind the weather. Remember any exercise to be of benefit at all must be regular.

BELLE: By cutting a green apple with a steel knife you can quickly show the presence of tannin by the dark stain on the blade, and the brown color quickly developed on the exposed slice of the fruit. There is far more tannic acid and cellulose in unripe than in ripe fruit, for in the last days of the sun's ripening process sugar and fruit juices are manufactured from these two substances. Little wonder that the small consumer of green apples pays such a painful tribute for his rashness! Caution must also be observed in regard to overripe fruit that may already have begun to ferment or decay.

MRS. J. A.: The one great advantage of physical culture is that it will either reduce or develop any one part of the body without affecting another. The exercises are given according to what you want to do, reduce or increase. Internal remedies as a rule either increase or reduce the entire body.

E. R.: Dampen your hair with a good curling fluid before doing it up on curlers or before using the tongs. It will keep the hair in curl a couple of days. I cannot print the formula on account of lack of space, but shall be glad to send it to you if you will send me a stamped addressed envelope.

Date Pudding.

ONE cup sour milk, one cup sugar or molasses, two cups (scant) graham flour, one teaspoon soda, three tablespoons butter, one teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg, and cloves, one pound dates (stoned). Steam two hours, serve with foam sauce or with sugar and cream.—Kindness of E. R. P.

Exchange of French for Music.

"I am a native French woman and have been in this country only a few years. I want to offer an exchange of French lessons for instruction in music. Mrs. J. W."

An opportunity which some one who would learn to speak good French will doubtless be glad to embrace. To learn any language with one whose native tongue it is is the ideal way of acquiring it. No teacher except a French man or woman can give the exact intonations and inflexions peculiar to la belle langue as can the person who, to quote a Hibernianism, "was born speaking the language." I will be glad to send the address of Mrs. J. W. to any musician willing to make the exchange she suggests.

Asks for a Typewriter.

"I have lots of nice magazines which I will gladly send to some shut-in. I wonder if you would help me to get a typewriter of some kind, as I need one badly, and know of no other way to obtain one than through the Helping Hand Corner. I will gladly pay expressage. I. P."

Will some shut-in, or a friend of a shut-in, write to me for the magazines offered? They will while away many a weary hour.

As to the typewriter asked for, I find myself wishing that I had a storehouse full of the machines so much desired by so many of my readers. I print requests for typewriters only when they come from persons who, I believe, really need these devices to help them earn a living. And with this thought in mind I venture to publish an occasional appeal like the above.

Offers Service for Home.

"I should like to know of some one who would appreciate a refined young woman in the home to do housework. I should not like to be treated as a servant but as one of the family. I have had plenty of experience in doing housework and have always stayed at home until the last few years. I can give the best of references. "B. L. M."

I gladly print your query, but in doing so I want to add a word of caution. Before taking any position such as you mention be sure to look into the references of the persons offering it. While the world is full of kind and good people—some of whom I hope will write to you—there are also danger spots and pitfalls to be avoided by every young girl who is thrown upon her own resources.

As you wish to be "treated as one of the family," I suppose you mean that you are willing to give your services in return for a home. As you know, we do not ask for salaried positions through our Corner.

Girl Wants a Home.

"I am an educated girl, from a good family, an expert housekeeper and seamstress. On account of a slight deficiency in hearing I find it hard to secure employment. I write to ask if some of the friends of the Corner can secure me a home in a refined home as housekeeper, mother's helper, or seamstress. I am young, healthy, and willing. Won't some kind woman help me secure such work? It will be a kindness never forgottetn by A SOUTHERN GIRL."

I have promised this brave girl to print her letter just as it is. What she says is so clear and concise that it needs no comment of mine. She knows that I wish her godspeed!

Wants to Adopt Baby.

"We are desirous of adopting a young baby, not over a month or two old, as our own, and thought probably you knew of some worthy family or expectant mother who could not afford to raise a little one and who would be willing to let those having refinement and wealth care for it. We have a lovely home of our own, travel a great deal, but have no little children. We hope to give it the best education and happiness in our power. Mrs. M."

The writer of this letter wants a child of respectable parentage and one that, so far as can be known, has no hereditary taints that may mar its future life. When I think of the numbers of poor little babies born to parents who have already so many mouths to fill that the coming of another child is regarded as a calamity my heart aches, and I long to bring the writer of this letter face to face with one of the mothers to whom her offer would mean relief from the care of one helpless baby and peace of mind with regard to the tiny mite for whom she can provide little food and less clothing—one of the innocent creatures brought into this world through no desire of its own and suffering here for lack of the bare necessities of life.

I hope that some correspondent will consider the above offer conscientiously and help the writer in her quest for a baby who, in securing the home and advantages mentioned, may grow into an honored and useful member of society.

Infantile Paralysis.

"My little daughter, 2 years and 4 months old, had infantile paralysis last September. It has left the upper muscles of the right leg paralyzed, and both legs are so weak that she is just beginning to crawl a little. She was healthy and walking and running about for a year when stricken with this dreadful disease. We are giving her medical aid. I wonder if some one in your Corner has had a similar experience and would be kind enough to make suggestions that might help this baby girl. I shall certainly appreciate it. Mrs. H. L. W."

You have our sincere sympathy in your trouble and our heartfelt congratulations also in that you still have your little one with you. The fearful disease you name takes away from homes and hearts so many dear young people that the mention of it makes a mother shudder.

The fact that the little creature begins to creep about is proof that is not paralyzed. As a laywoman, quite willing to be corrected for an error of judgment, I should think that since the child's powers of locomotion and coördination are unimpaired the main thing to do would be to build up her general physical condition in the hope of restoring her to her normal state. But, as I say, I do not claim to have even the "little knowledge that is a dangerous thing" in such desperate diseases as that with which you have had a hand to hand fight. But some one more sadly experienced in this disease than am I may be able to offer helpful suggestions.

But may I advise that, first of all, you adhere rigidly to the regimen prescribed by your physician?

Laura Jean Libbey's Advice

By Laura Jean Libbey

Millionairess for a Day.

[Copyright: 1913: By Laura Jean Libbey.]

NINE poor girls out of ten wonder just how it would seem to be rich—to have all the money they could spend, for whatever caught their fancy; to ride in soft cushioned automobiles; to live in magnificent hotels. It takes a valuable lesson in life to bring girls to a realization that money cannot buy everything. If it could buy happiness the rich would not have to shed tears behind closed doors. Nor can it buy the priceless treasure of love; nor will it be found a balm for the loss of it.

The girl who falls in love with the young man who is making his own way in the world should resolutely make up her mind that high notions and moderate circumstances usually clash. Such pretty romances would often move along smoothly were it not in many instances for meddling relatives, who have outgrown the tender passion, forgetting that love rules the world, and who try to influence the girl in favor of a wealthier suitor. Sometimes, to bring the girl to their way of thinking, they resort to the ruse of declaring that the lover is fickle. A wealthy, aged uncle may have a grievance against the resolute young lover, and to his urging that she shall give up her lover adds that he will make her his heiress if she will consent.

She is told that this is no ordinary proposition. He is worth a million and certainly uncle has, besides, her interest at heart. She remembers her lover has spoken twice pleasantly of the girl in the next block. She jumps to the conclusion that what they say of him must be true—he is in love with the other girl—and in wretched desperation sends back his betrothal ring. Uncle comes to meet her when she arrives on the early morning train. She beholds the handsomest limousine car she has ever seen. The old gentleman informs her this is her own. They arrive at the costly mansion, which uncle also assures her that she is to reign mistress of. But even as she enters the marble hall her heart seems as cold as the polished granite about her. Dinner is served in the magnificent dining room by the pompous butler, who seems quite as cold and stately as uncle. It had never occurred to the girl before that her table manners could have been much improved upon. She was glad when what seemed almost a state affair was over and they repaired to the drawing room. Was there ever a room so big and dark and gloomy, even if it was very magnificent, she thought. Although the huge logs burned in the old fireplace, the wind roared like a banshee down the chimney, careening over the faded flowers of the velvet carpet. Uncle took his seat in his favorite big arm chair, in a sheltered angle by the fireside, nodding to the girl to take the chair opposite.

"You can talk and I'll listen," he says, yawning. Uncle shades his eyes from the fire, leaning his head on his hand, expecting to be entertained. She introduces every subject she can think of, and exhausts them, one by one. He makes few responses, then merely nods.

The fire burns low. Not one of the pompous servants appears to replenish it. The wind whistled loudly down the chimney. The windows rattled in the casement, as the hail storm without pelted against them. The wax tapers which uncle still continued the use of burned low in their sockets. An old bronze clock with a querulous tone snapped the hour of 8. She had long since ceased talking; uncle still nodded his head. It was then she found he was asleep. Eight o'clock! The hour when she was wont to expect her lover and had been all dressed up to receive him in the little parlor of their flat. She was now heiress to a million! But who was there to notice if she wore a rose in her hair or had on her pretty blue frock!

O, was there ever anything so horribly lonely, she wondered vaguely, as to have great wealth and no lover? She cried herself to sleep that night, the most wretched of girls. What a boon sleep is! She dreamed of her lover and that no dark cloud had ever come between them to part them. Her uncle was amazed to hear the next morning that she intended to take the first train for home. Being an heiress for a day had cured her of all desire for wealth without love.

"Loves Very Well."

"Dear Miss Libbey: I went with a young man whom I love very well for two or three weeks. This young man seemed like he cared for me, and the last time we were together we parted on good terms, and he never came any more. Now, I cannot tell you why, and he never wrote or came back to tell me. Now, this young man has gone to another town not far from here, and he is going with a girl out there. How am I to win this young man's love back? MARGARET."

You can't win him back, Margaret. Just make up your mind that he was not the one for you. Some one else will come along shortly. Then you will understand and be glad that you did not marry this fellow.

* *

Shall She Ask Him to Call?

"Dear Miss Libbey: I met a nice young man at the home of one of my friends and began liking him on the spot. He speaks friendly when I meet him on the street. Would it be perfectly all right to ask him down to see me, or do you think he will ask if he cares to call? K."

It would be entirely proper for you to ask the young man to call at your home, if you care to do so. You might invite him when you are having some other company or else ask him to come and spend an evening with you.

BUSINESS, COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL NEWS

NEW YORK STOCKS STILL LETHARGIC

Struggle Prolongs Deadlock in European Money Markets and Draws Gold.

New York, Feb. 9.—The lethargy into which the stock market fell last week indicated professional short covering had been a large factor in the rally of the week, before. The principal problems in the situation being left unsolved, hesitation ruled the operations.

Renewal of the war against Turkey was accepted without excitement, partly owing to an assumption that it might be of short duration. It served, however, to prolong the deadlock in European money markets and to renew the pull on the New York money market. Skilled estimates point to the disappearance of upwards of $800,000,000 from bank reserves through hoarding in Austria-Hungary, France, and Germany.

Bank Note Circulation Grows.

While the basis of the currency is thus reduced, demands for note circulation on the great central banks are larger than usual. Returns from our national banks for Feb. 4, under the controller's call issued last week, will reveal how far the cash reserve percentage here has been affected by the call from abroad.

The heavy reflux of currency to New York since Jan. 1 has maintained the ease of New York money thus far, but the usual period of this inflow is now drawing to a close. The supply of money offering on call is still abundant, but banks are not pressing their funds on time borrowers. Large additional exports of gold, therefore, will infallibly result in higher interest rates at early date. Chances for the intended new security issues would be unfavorably affected thereby.

Dullness in Stock Market.

Within the immediate vicinity of the stock exchange much stress is laid on the proposed regulation by statute of the stock market and financial operations as a cause of the present dullness and depression of speculation. Influences toward further suspense were the adjournment of the United States Supreme court for three weeks without a decision in the Minnesota rate case, and the injunction against the New York subway contracts. Clearing up of the uncertainty over the Union Pacific dissolution plan proved ineffective in reviving speculation.

The gain of nearly 18,000,000 pounds in the stock of refined copper in January, in spite of price concessions to market holdings, increased the impression of a trade recession. Iron and steel trade journals were cautious in expressions of confidence.

NEW YORK INSURANCE HEAD URGES CUT IN FIRE WASTE.

Supt. Emmet Holds High Rates Due to Huge Loss—Wants Strict Laws and Prevention Taught.

The comment of Superintendent of Insurance W. T. Emmet of New York, state as found in his annual report has interested insurance men because of his broad and conservative view of conditions surrounding the insurance community. For instance, in speaking of fire insurance, Superintendent Emmet believes it will always be a natural field for private capital to operate in for purposes of profit.

He calls attention to the fact that the public is dissatisfied with the rates charged, and he believes fire insurance rates are higher than they might be, due to the fact that the national fire waste is greater than it should be. He suggests the passage of more stringent laws for the punishment of the crime of arson. Another cause of the high fire loss ratio he attributes to a widespread ignorance regarding the fundamental principles of fire prevention. He wants the study of the principles of fire prevention and other kindred subjects made obligatory in the public schools. A third cause, he states, is due to faulty building methods, which should be met by the passage of better building laws.

Superintendent Emmet states fire insurance has not proved to be unduly profitable. He says that many of the companies during recent years have made money due to shrewd investment of securities.

He states there have been few suggestions in any of the older states looking towards an extension of governmental power into the field of fire insurance.

The Insurance Brokerage association of Chicago, composed of fire and general insurance brokers, will hold its annual meeting and banquet tonight at the Chicago Athletic club. The business meeting and election of officers will take place prior to the banquet.

Frank F. Holmes, a fire insurance man of Chicago, has been sent to Philadelphia and New York by the Chicago board of underwriters to investigate the fire departments of those cities, comparing their methods and systems with the Chicago department.

South Chicago Poles Hear of Another Case of Flag Desecration Which Arouses Their Indignation.

Cutting up an American flag to make a Boy Scouts holiday is the latest charge of flag desecration in South Chicago. It was admitted last evening by W. S. Daily, in charge of the Russell square playground at Eighty-third street and Bond avenue, that an old ensign had been cut to ribbons for decorating the spokes of a chariot wheel in an amateur circus.

This adds another complaint to be considered at a mass meeting of South Chicago Poles, indignant at what they call insults to the flag of their adopted country. One of the big flags was used to protect the floor of the square auditorium while painters were at work on the ceiling. Daily refuses to take responsibility for that.

"To the sentimentally inclined I will admit the use of the flag for decorating the chariot wheels may seem disrespectful," he said. "I did not intend it in that way at all. We use a flag a month and it seemed to me a matter of economy to utilize the worn out banners."

John Wolski, a former soldier; Frank Rawaski, and Joseph Nazraski are the committee in charge of the mass meeting.

$2,000 Holdup Suspects Liberated.

Two men, suspected of having held up Morris Nieman, employed by a wholesale liquor dealer at 2001 West Chicago avenue, and robbed him of $2,000 on Saturday, were released by the police yesterday afternoon when Nieman failed to identify them. A dozen other men, rounded up in the same search, were not identified and were given their freedom.

G. A. R. VETERANS DEMAND 'HIKE' WITHOUT USUAL AMBULANCES.

Just to prove the G. A. R. veterans have several "hikes" left in them one Chicago post—Old Glory, No. 798—will protest against having ambulances follow this year's Decoration day parade.

"We are all going to march," asserted Ward Sherman at a post meeting in Masonic temple yesterday, "and there'll be no ambulances following to pick us up, either. Unable to march, eh? We'll show 'em all this year."

"There will be more of us young old boys in the parade than lots of people think are alive," said Gilbert Tucker, a special guest.

PLANS 20 ARSON INDICTMENTS.

Assistant Prosecutor Johnston Says Investigation of 30 Fires Has Centered Upon Certain Individuals to Accuse.

February's special grand jury is expected to return twenty indictments, charging Chicago merchants, incendiaries, and public fire insurance adjusters with arson. After more than a month of investigation First Assistant State's Attorney Frank Johnston spent yesterday in his office, sorting the evidence. More than thirty fires of supposed incendiary origin have been exposed and more than fifty men have come under suspicion. In the sifting of this information Mr. Johnston has concentrated on twenty individuals.

Rumely Bulletin No. 12

This Trademark Means Cheaper Power

Horse-Power has been abolished in factories for 100 years; but it still remains almost universally on FARMS.

Until very recently, there was no cheap, portable power, suitable for farm labor.

There was only the Horse—the costly, weak, inefficient Horse, who ate ten times his own weight in food every year.

But now, instead of the Horse, we have the

RUMELY OILPULL TRACTOR

The Rumely factories make many labor-saving machines. They make machines that plow and haul and saw and thresh and hull and shred and bale, etc.

And all the Rumely Machines, 51 varieties, made in 5 factories, are designed to accomplish one great purpose—to equip the farms of the world with MORE AND CHEAPER POWER.

If you own a farm or are interested in farming, be a leader toward better methods and send for a Rumely Catalog and other information on power-farming.

"Occasional Wants"

In the Way of Service And Who Supply Them

Something like an aching void was filled when Tribune enterprise got this new classified department under way.

A handy list of names and addresses that are sure to be wanted some time is a real convenience—especially so when the business firms listed do the unusual kind of work that is not advertised very much in any other way.

"Occasional Wants" is making good as an emergency directory for houskeepers, business men and the general public.

Correct and up-to-date, covering a wide and growing range of service, read at a glance, it will richly repay your inspection when you don't know where to reach the right man for an urgent job.

Published once a week in The Tribune on Monday morning only.
